Participation in longer-term recruitment initiatives.

Participation in job fairs by station personnel with hiring responsibilities

- OPB joined NPR and two dozen other public media organizations from across the country to host the first ever “Public Media Village” at the 2016 joint convention of the National Association of Black Journalists (NABJ) and the National Association of Hispanic Journalists (NAHJ) in Washington, D.C. This is considered the nation’s largest annual gathering of minority journalists. The OPB staff attending the conference and staffing the OPB booth included OPB’s Chief Content Officer, our Vice President of Programming (oversees both TV and Radio programming), one of our Digital Producers, and our Manager of Recruitment and Benefits.
- OPB also had a booth and representative (our Manager of Recruitment and Benefits) at the 2016 Excellence In Journalism (EIJ) conference in New Orleans. This conference is a collaborative effort and includes The Radio Television Digital News Association (RTDNA), Native American Journalists Association (NAJA) and the Society of Professional Journalists (SPJ). The primary focus of EIJ is to be an educational, skills-building, career-oriented conference with high-caliber training.

Participation in events or programs relating to career opportunities sponsored by educational institutions

- OPB’s Manager of Volunteer Resources visited the University of Oregon’s School of Journalism and Communications in January, talking with three classes about working in public media. She also conducted multiple faculty visits, hosted an informational session for students, and met with the staff of the student paper.
- OPB’s Manager of Volunteer Resources visited Journalism classes at Portland Community College and Mount Hood Community College to talk about working in public media and OPB’s internship opportunities for students.
- Throughout the year OPB’s Manager of Recruitment and Benefits meets with students, both individually as well as in large groups (such as Linfield College’s annual visit in January), to answer questions and provide guidance about the job search process and also to facilitate visits to OPB where students interested in media careers may spend a day onsite and sit in on in the news meetings and the production of OPB’s daily radio public-affairs talk show, “Think Out Loud.”

Establishment of an internship program designed to assist members of the community to acquire skills needed for broadcast employment.

OPB continues our robust internship program. OPB's internships are updated and enhanced annually (see more information in the internships descriptions below). During this period, OPB continued to promote new internship opportunities with our engineering and IT teams. During the past year, OPB provided 23 individuals with unpaid educational experiences. In addition to the many unpaid internship opportunities throughout the organization, OPB offers three paid internships.

- OPB offers the Jon R. Tuttle Journalism and Production Minority Internship. This minority internship is intended to increase participation of racial and/or ethnic minorities, as defined by the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), who are traditionally underrepresented within public broadcasting. The Tuttle Internship is a paid summer internship in telecommunications and broadcast journalism that enables an outstanding college or university student to spend the summer studying the field full time in a hands-on environment. A number of OPB senior executives actively participate in the reviewing and selection of the Tuttle intern. OPB had one Tuttle intern this summer.
- OPB also offers a paid Maynard E. Orme Internship. This internship was established in honor of Maynard Orme's (former OPB President and CEO) considerable contributions to OPB to encourage students to cultivate skills in the development and production of high-quality news and public affairs programming. OPB's Senior Vice President and Chief Content Officer actively participates in the review and selection of the Orme intern. OPB had one Orme intern this past year.
- OPB has a paid internship in partnership with the Charles Snowden Foundation through their Charles Snowden Program for Excellence in Journalism. OPB along with other Oregon college educators and Northwest news media organizations give accomplished students professional training in community journalism through 10-week summer internships. OPB is the only non-print media organization in Oregon in this program. OPB had one Snowden intern this past year.

This year OPB is introducing a new paid Internship for Emerging Journalists, creating a public media career pathway for traditionally underrepresented individuals.

Providing training to management level personnel as to methods of ensuring equal employment opportunity and preventing discrimination.

- Annually, OPB conducts an educational session for our board of directors regarding one or more facets of OPB's diversity considerations. Last year we focused on employee staffing. This year will focus on news and content producer efforts with diverse sources.
- Human Resources conducts in-depth conversations and trains search committee members prior to interviews regarding appropriate interviewing styles.
- Human Resources provides consultative support to all staff, including management, regarding affirmative action, continuing our commitment to ensure equal employment opportunity and preventing discrimination.

Participation in activities, other than the listed options

- This year OPB partnered with the International Center for Journalists (ICFJ) and also the State Department to host and provide information to visiting journalists. The International Center for Journalists was established in 1984 as a private, nonprofit organization. The Center helps the news media attain the highest possible standards, fulfill their role as reliable servants of the public, strengthen the independence of the press and broaden news coverage of local and global issues. The Center believes that a professional and well-informed press benefits not only its immediate audience, but people everywhere. For this reason, ICFJ fosters the widest possible exchange of views and information among journalists worldwide and collaborates with newspapers, radio stations, television companies and media assistance organizations in the United States and abroad. Since its establishment, ICFJ has relied on practical attachment programs with U.S. media organizations as one of the most effective ways to train visiting journalists and share American journalistic expertise. As part of our efforts with both the State Department and also the ICFJ, this year OPB has worked with two journalists from Russia and Latvia.

- OPB Open House – This community event is held annually, opening television and radio studios, providing information about OPB to all who wish to come. The OPB Open House includes opportunities to talk to a variety of staff about careers in broadcasting.
