Observations / Comments

The hours on the unit appear to be low for the year of the unit, possibly indicating the hour meter could have been replaced. The rear counterweight paint is scratched. The lower metal on the basket appears to be bent. The decal on the control station of the unit appears to be cracking. The information screen on the unit appears to be faded at the top of the screen. The decal has peeled off the right side at the top of the control station in the basket. The control station and the floor metal have paint splatter on them. The engine oil appears to be overfilled and above the full mark on the dipstick. The metal fan shroud in the engine compartment is missing paint, and rust is forming on the metal. The wiper seal appears to be falling out of the body lift cylinder. The steer cylinder is oily and leaking where the chrome rod goes into the cylinder. It was confirmed with Ricky, the operator, that the beacon is not functioning and the horn is operational.
