On Sunday, November 13, at 2:00PM in Alice Tully Hall, “Leaping Leopold” kicks off a new season of Meet the Music!, the Chamber Music Society’s popular concert series for families with kids ages 6 and up. This all-Mozart program features Bruce Adolphe as Leopold Mozart, father of Wolfgang Amadeus. Bruce will be joined in this witty and music-filled event by four exceptional young artists, pianist Orion Weiss, violinist Katie Hyun, violist Mark Holloway, cellist Mihai Marica, and special guests from the Noel Pointer Foundation Youth Orchestra. [Illustration: Roger Roth.]

In “Leaping Leopold” Leopold Mozart, father and teacher of Wolfgang Amadeus, loudly takes credit for his son’s genius and says, in fact, that he can teach anyone to be a musical genius. As he demonstrates his skill with random diners in a restaurant, he talks a lot about what it takes to become a musician, and eventually we see that he really is a great teacher. But finally, boasting aside, Leopold gets to the heart of the matter: practice, practice, practice! Filled with fun and lots of Wolfgang Mozart’s incomparable music, “Leaping Leopold” is a treat for music lovers of all ages.

Instrument Petting Zoo
Prior to the on-stage event, Meet the Music! will host an Instrument Petting Zoo at 1:00 PM in the lobby of Alice Tully Hall. Free to ticket-holders, the musicians featured on the concert program will personally introduce the young audience to their instruments.

About Meet the Music!
Hosted by series creator, composer, author, and national radio personality Bruce Adolphe, Meet the Music! programs are educational, entertaining, and interactive, and feature live performances by Chamber Music Society artists and guests.
