

The Applebaum Internship Program at the Detroit Symphony Orchestra

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra (DSO) is known for cutting-edge performances, collaborations with the world's top musical artists, and a deep connection to the city of Detroit. In partnership with Applebaum Family Philanthropy, the Applebaum Internship Program at the DSO was established to provide paid internship experiences for Wayne State University students at the iconic cultural institution.

This opportunity enables students to have hands-on career experience through a variety of unique offerings at the DSO that go beyond music: organizational advancement, fundraising, event management, production, marketing, communications, and non-profit business administration alongside leadership development opportunities.

To Learn More...

about the program and opens positions, scan the QR code here or reach out directly to hr@dso.org

By participating in this program, you will...

- Be assigned a portfolio of assignments and contribute to meaningful, hands-on projects
- Have a dedicated supervisor for the duration of the internship who is invested in your growth & development
- Take part in informal learning opportunities, including engagement with organizational leadership (e.g., CEO, Board members, executives, senior staff)
- Take part in professional development sessions exclusively for interns

Timing

The annual partnership with Wayne State University is offered three times a year to Wayne State students, in fall, winter, and summer terms.

Think this opportunity is for you?

This program is designed for students seeking:

- Paid internship experience
- Professional development & leadership experience
- Informal learning opportunities and engagement with professional leadership
- To make an impact in the Detroit cultural arts community

Upon completing this internship, you will become part of the Applebaum Fellows, a group of professionals with additional unique networking and leadership development opportunities.