A valid Motor Vehicle Permit is required to enter the parks. Otto Armleder Memorial Park and Fernbank Park are cooperative ventures with the City of Cincinnati; a Motor Vehicle Permit is not required.

People with disabilities are welcome and encouraged to participate in Great Parks’ programs, services and activities. For questions about accessibility or to make a disability-related request, contact Great Parks’ ADA Coordinator at 513-521-7275.
The weather is finally behaving and that means it’s the ideal time to explore the great outdoors! Check out these spots in your Great Parks this season. Who knows, they may just become your new favorite nature spot.

Highfield Discovery Garden
Located in Glenwood Gardens, Highfield Discovery Garden delights both adults and children. From fairies and dragons to gardens and walking paths to an enchanting treehouse, Highfield is an oasis of wonder that lets your imagination run wild. You’ll find educational programs and activities happening each week so you can learn something new at any age.

William and Gina Gerwin Garnett Wildflower Overlook
Next time you’re in Winton Woods, be sure to stop and smell the wildflowers at the new William and Gina Gerwin Garnett Wildflower Overlook. Frequent guests of Winton Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Garnett enjoyed the plant life that bloomed every spring and summer. After Gina’s passing, William established the overlook to honor his wife’s memory. Find the overlook off Lakeview Drive near the Locust Dell Picnic Area and see the flora that the Garnetts enjoyed for more than 20 years.

Trails
Great Parks has nearly 80 miles of trails, so there’s a trail for everyone! Here are some favorite paths you won’t want to miss:

- Gorge Trail at Sharon Woods that boasts a unique history and is ideal for birding
- Miami Fort Trail at Shawnee Lookout, where ambitious hikers are gifted with a view of the Ohio River, Kentucky and Indiana all from one spot
- Pin Oak Trail at Farbach-Werner Nature Preserve, where visitors can spot creatures like red admiral butterflies and bullfrogs

We hope you get a chance to explore all the natural wonders Great Parks offers this summer. For even more recreation opportunities, visit greatparks.org/recreation.

Earlier this year, Great Parks of Hamilton County completed its first ever Comprehensive Master Plan. Drawing together a shared vision for the future of Great Parks, it sets a prioritized path for upcoming improvements. The plan will guide parks, facilities, programming and services over the next decade.

To ensure the plan would meet community needs and interests, Great Parks gathered input from as many people as possible. More than 2,200 members of the public engaged in the process, both in-person and online, through interviews, surveys, meetings and workshops.

And what did people say they wanted from their Great Parks?

Feedback showed strong support for conservation efforts, active recreation programs, trails, special events and facility updates.

Development of the Comprehensive Master Plan led to a series of recommendations, which were then distilled into the following top eight priorities:

1. Build more trails
2. Add programming and events for diverse audiences
3. Provide access to conservation areas
4. Establish a defined blueway system
5. Focus on partnerships
6. Build ecological resiliency and sustainability
7. Expand access for all users
8. Plan for the future of every park

Now, Great Parks is embarking on the next phase of the plan. This includes the implementation of the comprehensive plan priorities, as well as development of more detailed plans for each park. But these can only be achieved with the continued engagement from park supporters and stakeholders and, most importantly, you.

To read a summary of the Comprehensive Master Plan and discover how you can participate in Park & Facility Master Plans, visit mygreatparks.com.

Trails and volunteering have a lot in common; they both have the power to boost our personal wellness, as well as the health of our communities. It’s obvious that walking, hiking, biking or horseback riding on a trail can lead to a healthier and happier you. Cardiovascular exercise can strengthen your heart, keep your weight in check, lower your risk of many diseases and boost your energy level. Working on trails can have the same results. Volunteering to remove invasive plants, improve trail surfaces or creating a new trail can really get the heart pumping and increase strength and stamina.

What may not be so obvious is that trails can also make our communities healthier. Trails connect neighborhoods with nature and also connect people with each other. They attract tourists that contribute to local economies. Trails improve public health. Trails can also act as important learning tools, providing opportunities to study and protect plant and animal species that might have been difficult to reach without trail access.

This summer, join the fun! Great Parks is home to more than 70 miles of popular hike, bike and horse trails that can help get you healthy and happy. Take a walk, go for a jog or get your heart pumping by volunteering to improve a trail. The benefits to you and your community are endless.

For more information about trail volunteering, or National Trails Day, visit greatparks.org/volunteer.

Take a moment to listen. Do you hear the wind rustle the leaves? A bird singing? An insect humming? Nature is filled with melodies.

Children explore sound in every environment. To nurture their curiosity about sound and nature, Great Parks is building a music garden at Highfield Discovery Garden.

The experience begins when a child sees the graceful, curving treble clef walkway that shapes the music garden. Upon entering, children are encouraged to create their own sounds on large, free-standing instruments representing musical influences from around the world. Ribbons of color in the garden will help children play songs that everyone recognizes. A stage under the trees invites children to be their own star.

Nestled in the lower meadow of Highfield Discovery Garden, the music garden itself is designed to play nature’s melodies with plantings that create sound. Parents, grandparents and caregivers can be confident that their children and grandchildren have an inspiring environment where they can run, play and discover.

Help make this musical garden come to life and inspire the next generation of musicians. By offering your philanthropic support, you become part of a lasting legacy to children and nature in our community. Donate today by visiting GreatParksForever.org/music.
