After breakfast, Driving East of Salalah, we pass the Royal Farm and Maamoura Palace on the way to Taqah, a village famed for sardines and fertilizer where there is an interesting castle. East of Taqah lie the ruins of Sumharam (Khor Rori), where the legendry palace of the queen Sheba is believed to have been. Khor Rori was also a port of frankincense trade. A drive long the coastal road takes you to Mirbat, the old city of Arabian horses and the slave trade. After a photo stop at Bin Ali Tomb, built in the 14th century, visit Mirbat port and the old merchant abandoned houses, with special style architecture of curved doors and windows. Returning to Salalah, we continue through the home of Jebbali people with their camels and cattle herds. At the foot of the waterfalls we reach the Wadi Darbat in a beautiful park and lake surrounded by hills. The greenest point at the hot Arabic peninsula.

Continues towards Mughsail passing Frankincense trees from the Zig Zag Road, at wadi afoul.
