

You'll See... at Lincoln Center

Ulysses, James Joyce's epic story of one day in one city is brought to life in this inventive show by Branar. The performance brings Ireland's most notorious book to audiences aged 8 and upwards, and to all those who haven't got around to reading it yet. Combining live performance, intricate paper design, and an original score, this is theater that will excite both young and old.

This performance runs for about 45 minutes and is open to families, recommended for children aged 8+. As part of our Relaxed Performance series, this show is open to all and especially welcoming for people with autism, sensory and communication disorders or learning disabilities.

Accessible Entrance

The Samuel B. and David Rose Building is accessible from West 65th Street by elevator, stairs, and escalator.

The entrance to the elevator is on the street level. It is located near the northeast corner of 65th Street and Amsterdam Avenue.

The Rose Building staircase reads “Rose” on the steps. It is located in the middle of West 65th Street, facing towards Columbus Avenue.

The base of the street-level escalators is located next to the elevator.

Audience Entrance and Security Gate:

The Box Office for the Clark Studio Theater is located in the lobby of the Rose Building. Guests will be greeted by Lincoln Center Staff and will be directed to enter through a security gate to reach the elevators.

To get to the Clark Studio Theater, guests can enter the Samuel B. and David Rose Building, go past the gate, and use the elevators to get to the 7th floor. Once the doors open on the 7th floor, guests will be in the lobby (pictured below). The entrance to the Clark Studio Theater is on your right.

Performance Space:

The Clark Studio Theater is a flexible black box theater. For this performance, chairs are set in rows on the floor and on risers, with accessible seat locations. Seating is also available on a carpet for guests who may want to sit on the floor.

This performance is general admission, and guests can sit anywhere with an open seat or on the carpet.

The set features a large table, with a paper set design. The performer stands at a large table, arranged with city-scape inspired paper miniatures of buildings and people. Streetlamps are on either side of the table.

Restrooms:

Men's and women's restrooms with infant changing tables and one accessible stall each are located down the hall to the right across from the theater on the 7th Floor. Lincoln Center welcomes guests to use the restroom that most closely aligns with their gender identity or expression, while the law requires gender binary signs.

While You Wait

Guests who arrive early can explore the public areas on campus while they wait.

Located across the street at the southeast corner of David Geffen Hall, the Welcome Center is a place to receive information about programs and events across the campus, book tickets, and grab a coffee or light snack from The Coffee Bar throughout the day.

Hearst Plaza is a wonderful area with green space and seating to enjoy the cityscape.
