

Teatro Al Vacío's Are You There? at Lincoln Center

Teatro Al Vacío returns to Lincoln Center with Are You There?, a joyful exploration of what it means to be truly present and engage with another. Through the use of organic physicality, movement, sounds, props, and music, Are You There? reflects on the experience of listening and responding—and the possibilities of discovering oneself as one discovers another.

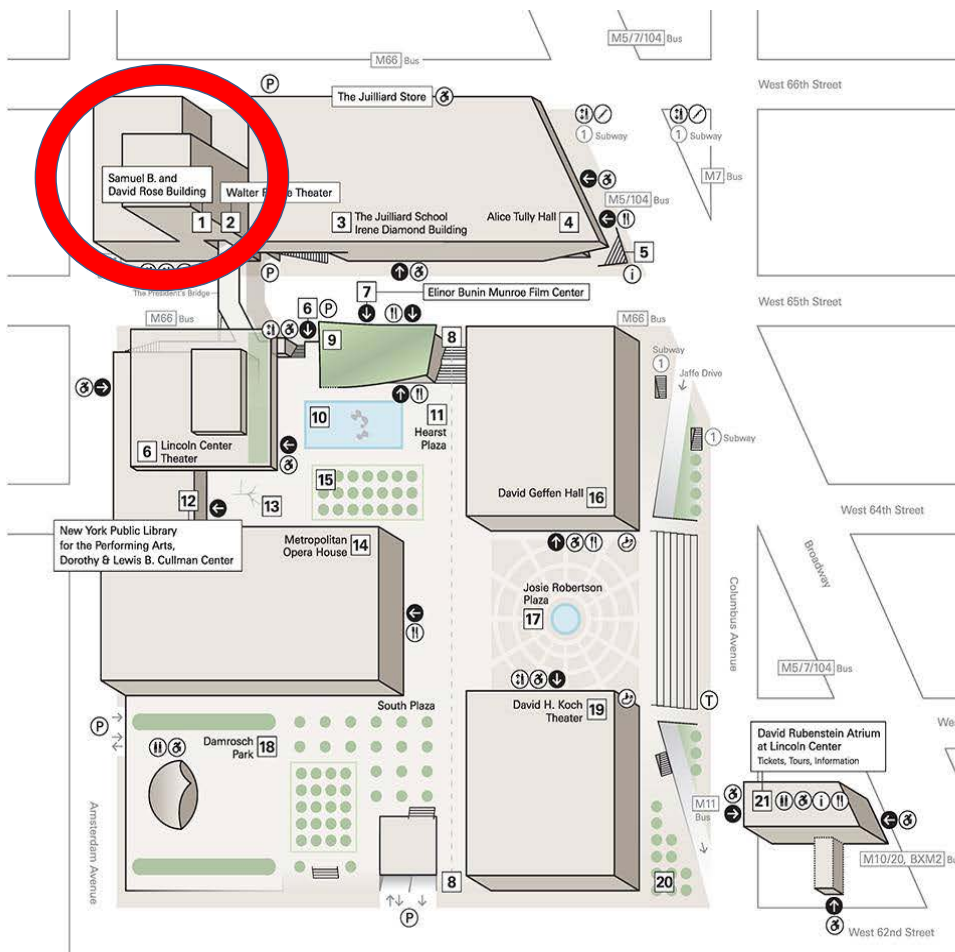

The performance starts at 11:00 am and will be 30 minutes long. This performance is open to families and recommended for children ages 1-4.

It is also a part of our Relaxed Performance series. Open to all, but designed for people with autism, sensory and communication disorders or learning disabilities. The artistic integrity of the piece remains unchanged, however modifications to social and sensory environment may be made.

Accessible Entrance

The Samuel B. and David Rose Building is accessible from West 65th Street by elevator, stairs, and escalator.

The entrance to the elevator is on the street level. It is located near the northeast corner of 65th Street and Amsterdam Avenue.

The Rose Building staircase reads "Rose" on the steps. It is located in the middle of West 65th Street, facing towards Columbus Avenue.

The base of the street-level escalators is located next to the elevator.

Audience Entrance and Security Gate:

The Box Office for the Clark Studio Theater performance is located in the lobby of the Rose Building. Guests will be greeted by Lincoln Center Staff and will be directed to enter through a security gate to reach the elevators.

To get to the Clark Studio Theater, guests can enter the Samuel B. and David Rose Building, go past the gate, and use the elevators to get to the 7th floor.

Once the doors open on the 7th floor, guests will be in the lobby (pictured below). The entrance to the Clark Studio Theater is on your right.

About the Performance:

Teatro Al Vacío performs Are You There?, a movement focused theatrical show. There are no spoken lines of dialogue. Performers will move across the stage as they make rhythmic melodies using their voices and bodies. There will also be moments where there is no music or dialogue, and the only sounds heard are movements on stage such as waving paper, running across stage, or drawing on chart paper.

The lights on stage may dim from a bright white to blue, but the lights will not completely dim.

Audience members can join artists on stage at the end of the show to draw and use props with the performers.

Performance Space:

The Clark Studio Theater is a flexible black box theater. For this performance, chairs are set in rows, with accessible seat locations and mats for guests who may want to sit on the floor. This performance is general admission, and guests can sit anywhere with an open seat or mat.

The performance will feature a large black chalkboard stage floor, facing the audience.

Restrooms:

Men's and women's restrooms with one accessible stall each are located down the hall to the right across from the theater on the 7th Floor. Lincoln Center welcomes guests to use the restroom that most closely aligns with their gender identity or expression, while the law requires gender binary signs.

While You Wait

Guests who arrive early can explore the public areas on campus while they wait.

Located across the street at the southeast corner of David Geffen Hall, the Welcome Center is a place to receive information about programs and events across the campus, book tickets, and grab a coffee or light snack from The Coffee Bar throughout the day.

Hearst Plaza is a wonderful area with green space and seating to enjoy the cityscape.
