

Welcome to You Are Here at Lincoln Center!

Photo by Justin Chao

Welcome to the world premiere of You Are Here, a sculpture garden and soundscape conceived by Andrea Miller.

To create this installation, the artistic team collected stories from New Yorkers about their experiences from the past year.

Free and open to the public at Hearst Plaza on July 14-19 and July 21-23.

Getting to Hearst Plaza

The installation is located in Hearst Plaza, between the Metropolitan Opera House and the Laurie M. Tisch Illumination Lawn. It can be reached from several accessible entrances.

Accessible entrances:

You can enter using the ramp at Columbus Avenue and West 63rd Street, then walk through The GREEN. The closest address for Access-A-Ride is 20 Lincoln Center Plaza.

You can also enter using the stairs or the glass elevator on West 65th Street (between Amsterdam Avenue and Broadway) near the Elinor Bunin Munroe Film Center. The closest address for Access-A-Ride is 144 West 65th Street.

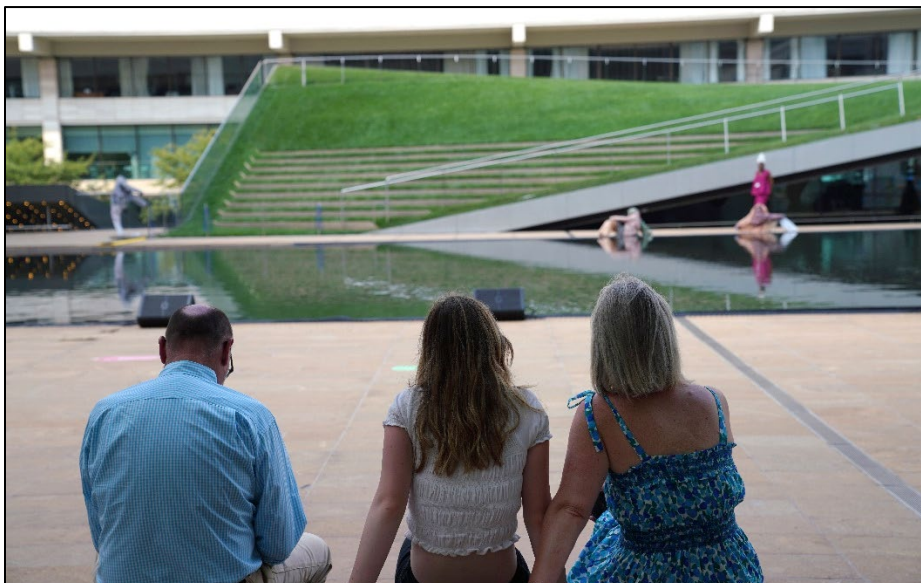

Sculptures:

13 sculptures created by scenic designer Mimi Lien are located across Hearst Plaza.

As you move through the space, you will hear stories from 25 New Yorkers. This soundscape was created by sound artist Justin Hicks.

They share stories, thoughts, and feelings from this past year.

Ways to experience the installation:

Family Audio Tour

Click here to listen to a family tour of the installation and try some discussion, drawing, and writing activities.

Sound Installation

Click here for the audio portraits and transcripts.

Things to Notice

1. What do you notice about the soundscape?

- What types of sounds are featured?
- Where are the sounds coming from?
- Is there a favorite sound or story that you hear?

2. What do you notice about the sculptures?

- Where are they located?
- What are they wearing?
- What shapes and colors do you notice?
- How are they positioned?

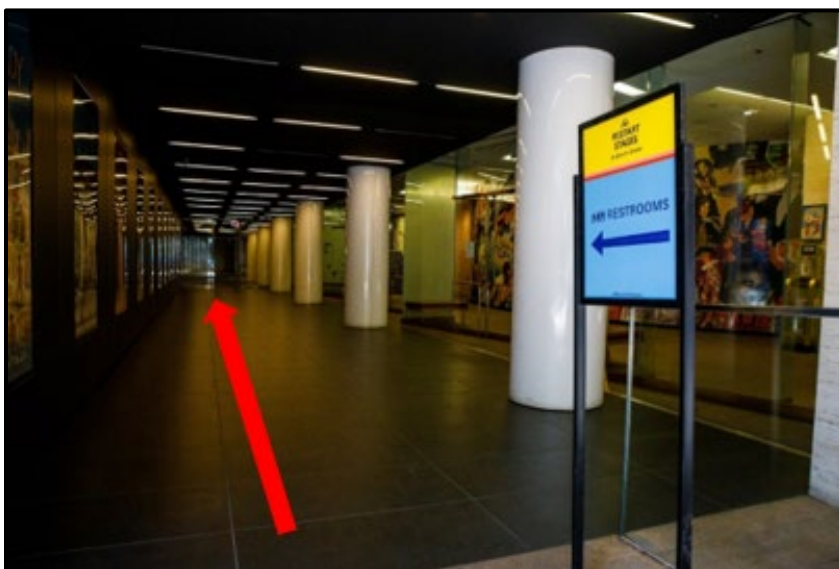

Restrooms

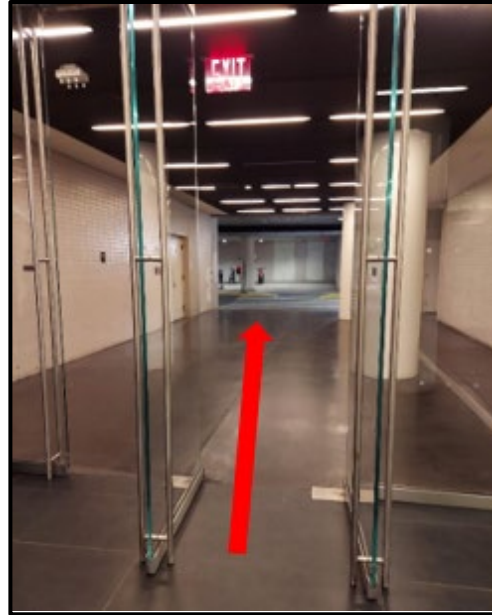

Public restrooms are located on the Concourse Level of Lincoln Center, accessible through the glass doors under the Lincoln Center Theater awning on West 65th Street.

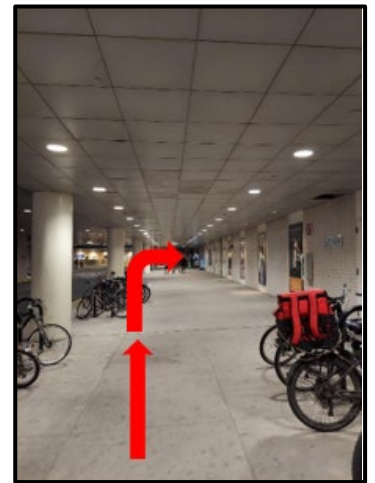

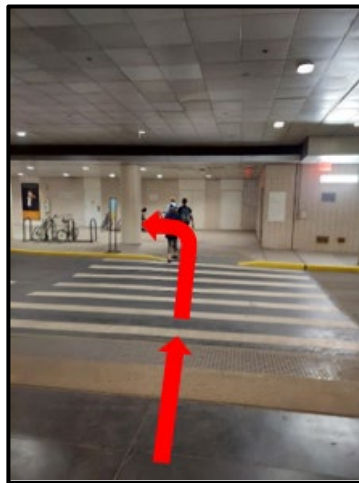

Walk down a long hallway with black floor tiles and large white poles until you reach another set of glass doors.

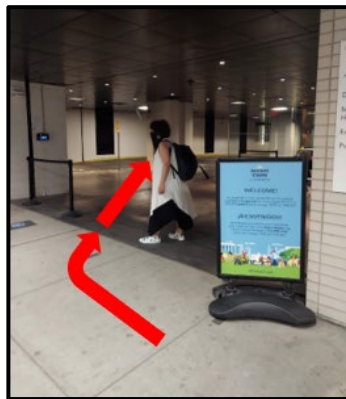

Walk through the glass doors to the crosswalk (check to make sure there are no cars before crossing).

Cross the street and turn left past some bike racks. Keep walking along the sidewalk until there is a glass wall on the right.

Walk past the glass wall and the restrooms will be on the right.

More to Explore

The GREEN is an installation of grass-like material surrounding the large fountain in Josie Robertson Plaza.

This space is open to the public and includes a snack bar to get food or drinks before the show. Click here to learn more about The GREEN.

Photos by Sachyn Mital

The New York Public Library for the Performing Arts has opened an Outdoor Reading Room and seating area.

This space is located on the corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 65th Street. Visit the library's website to learn more.

There is more visual art on campus in an installation called “We Belong Here.” Click here to learn more.

Photo: Andrew Kerekes