WINNERS: BEST CONVENTION CITY

Chosen by readers of USA TODAY and 10Best

Denver, Colo.

Denver's Colorado Convention Center gets the highest of scores for having a state-of-the-art facility capable of handling huge shows and offering convention attendees great amenities. It also ranks high for having hotels nearby, a critical component for exhibitors and visitors. Access to a major airport (DEN) and the ease/affordability of getting around means most people don't mind grabbing a cab to reach area attractions. Larimer Square and Colorado State Capitol are just a short walk away from the center itself.

INDIANAPOLIS FAVORITE CONVENTION CITY

Boston, Nashville, Salt Lake, Atlanta also tops with voters

After four weeks of voting, convention-goers and exhibitors have put Indianapolis in the top slot in our latest Readers' Choice poll for Best Convention City.

It was a hot competition, with convention and visitors bureaus across America actively campaigning for recognition for their local convention center. In the end, affordable and convenient Indianapolis took top honors.

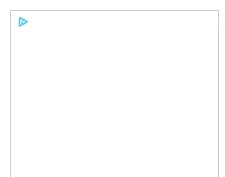

The Indiana Convention Center is connected to more downtown hotel rooms than any other city in the nation, making it convenient for convention-goers to access meeting space, restaurants, the downtown shopping mall and hotels, without even stepping outside. Indy's convention center and its schedule are all the more inviting when you factor in the city's walkability, affordability and its central location. And if you're a football fan, it's pretty thrilling to be across the street from Andrew Luck and the Colts come fall.

Boston, with its ease of inter-city transportation and abundance of entertainment, lodging and dining options landed in 2nd place. Nashville, with its beautiful brand new facility in the heart of downtown, took 3rd.

In this tightly fought race, only 284 votes separated 3rd place from 6th.

Nominees for the contest were chosen by convention expert John C. Rose, who selected 10 candidates from large metros and 10 nominees from smaller "tier two" cities.
