

As the official travel and tourism entity for Huntsville/Madison County, our number one responsibility – and therefore our top priority – is ensuring that every visitor feels welcome in our destination. The Huntsville/Madison County Convention & Visitors Bureau is committed to working with our city leaders, our hospitality partners, and multicultural organizations to ensure that Huntsville continues to build on one of the greatest pillars of our community – diversity.

As part of this commitment, we are intentional about how our efforts as an agency reflect the identity of our city. From the faces shown in our photos and online content, to the voices that contribute to our blog, to the restaurants, shops, and other local businesses we promote, we will take active measures to ensure that ALL minority identities are visible and heard.

This is a continuing process to ensure visitors from all walks of life feel comfortable, welcome, and above all, safe in Huntsville. When we say “we’ve got space,” we mean it – our space is for everyone.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Andrew J. Zales". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "A" and "Z".