Fourth of July festivities are back in full force this year with many events taking place across Rhode Island to celebrate our country's independence. From parades to fireworks displays and concerts, there is something for everyone this Fourth of July.

Independence Day at Dalia on Seaside Terrace

Celebrate the birth of our nation in style with a traditional New England lobster boil, BBQ fare, inspired sides and desserts at the Ocean House in Watch Hill. With the ocean in the background, this is a great location to enjoy a relaxing evening with a fresh selection of specialty cocktails, beers and wines. Stick around till night to witness a magnificent fireworks display over the Atlantic.

How to get a reservation: Reservations can be made online here. Tickets are $175 per adult, $75 per child ages four to twelve and complimentary for ages three and younger.

The details: Saturday, July 2, 7–10 p.m. 1 Bluff Ave., Watch Hill, 888-853-2919, oceanhouseevents.com

Independence Day Lobster Boil at Weekapaug Inn

Head to the Weekapaug Inn for a classic, family-friendly New England lobster boil. The chef and his team will be on site boiling the fresh lobster over the fire pit. Guest can also indulge in a buffet filled with more summery seafood, barbecue fare and vegetarian options as well as an open bar equipped with house wine, beer and cocktails. The evening will finish off with ground "fountain fireworks" that will delight the whole family.

How to get a reservation: Reservations can be made online here. Tickets are $200 per adult, $125 per child ages four to twelve and complimentary for ages three and younger.
