

TRAVEL

Get sporty at these local halls of fame

New England is home to several athletic-themed halls of fame. Here are some to consider.

By Diane Bair and Pamela Wright Globe Correspondent, Updated November 10, 2022, 12:00 p.m.

The International Tennis Hall of Fame in Newport, R.I. DISCOVER NEWPORT

In spite of its name, the Newport (R.I.) Casino was never a gambling house, but a c. 1880s social club, now home to the International Tennis Hall of Fame (www.tennisfame.com). Honoring 262 inductees from 27 countries, the hall also tells the evolving story of the sport. Divided into sections, exhibits span the Birth of Tennis (1874-1918), the Popular Game (1918-1968), and the Open Era (1968-present.) One of the coolest elements is the Roger Federer hologram — you feel like the tennis great is talking to you — and a “Call the Match” exhibit where you can play tennis broadcaster.