Everyone is inexplicably hanging out in Europe sans you, several of your friends had the audacity to stay at THE White Lotus hotel without your permission, and you've had to mute basically everyone you know on Insta Stories as an act of self-preservation. But good news: Your time has come. Said time being Plan a Girls' Trip With Your Friends O'Clock, of course. And while going abroad is fun and whatever (🙄), you know what's closer and very likely cheaper? Traveling somewhere in the good ol' USA.

We've rounded up 40 flawless vacation spots across the country for you and your friends to lounge in for the ultimate girls' trip. And we fully guarantee there's something on here within driving distance of your house, if you wanna skip pricey flights and make a road trip out of it. From enchanting sunsets in Santa Fe that look straight out of a Georgia O'Keefe painting and gorgeous all-natural hot springs in Colorado to the best spots to sip Champagne in Charleston, there's something for every group chat vibe on this list.

Pro tip when it comes to picking a hotel: Stay somewhere fancy and split the cost of a small shared suite. When it comes to how many people can fit in a King-sized bed, the limit does not exist!

Newport, Rhode Island

THE most important thing to do in Newport? The Cliff Walk. It's a truly stunning walk along—you guessed it—a cliff, with the ocean on one side of you and some casual Gilded Age mansions on the other (which yep, you can stop in and tour). This isn't exactly a ~nightlife~ town, so consider it a great opportunity to eat huge amounts at dinner and go back to your hotel room (The Chanler, if you're feeling fancy and love a converted mansion) to sleep it off.
