American Conservatory Theater is a Tony Award–winning theater and educational institution dedicated to cultivating the art of live theater through our dynamic productions, intensive actor training in our Conservatory, and an ongoing engagement with our community. Under the leadership of Tony and Obie award–winning Artistic Director Pam MacKinnon and Executive Director Jennifer Bielstein, we embrace our responsibility to refresh, renew, and reinvent the rich theatrical traditions and literatures that are our collective legacy, while exploring new artistic forms and communities. Since opening our first San Francisco season in 1967, A.C.T. has presented more than 400 productions to a combined audience of more than seven million people. Today, A.C.T.’s performance, education, and outreach programs reach almost 250,000 people in the Bay Area each year.

A.C.T.’s Conservatory, led by Melissa Smith, is a three-year, fully accredited Master of Fine Arts Program consistently rated as one of America’s top actor-training programs. Our Summer Training Congress attracts students from around the world, the San Francisco Semester offers a unique, immersive training opportunity for undergraduates, and Studio A.C.T. helps adults get in touch with their inner artist through part-time, professional-caliber classes. Our alumni are working theater-makers, writing, directing, producing, and performing on our mainstage and around the Bay Area, as well as on stages and screens nationwide.

A key part of A.C.T.’s dedication to lifelong learning is our Education & Community Programs team, led by Juan Manzo. These programs include our Young Conservatory (students ages 8–19), our Fellowship Program for emerging theater professionals, and our ACTsmarter school and community programs, featuring the Student Matinee (SMAT) program, our touring Will on Wheels Shakespeare productions, teaching-artist residences, and workshops at schools and community-based organizations. Every year, these programs provide nearly 20,000 young people and educators from around the Bay Area with opportunities to experience the transformative potential of dramatic storytelling; develop creativity, critical thinking, and collaborative spirit; and foster the artists and audiences of the future.

Now in their second season at the helm, Pam MacKinnon and Jennifer Bielstein continue their commitment to the development of new work and new artists and the creation of an equitable, diverse, and inclusive environment for our employees, students, audiences, and artists. Through this commitment, we aim to impact lives, build community, and train artists who will secure and change the future of theater for San Francisco and the world.

“And they cling to me, appealing from their fathers. This boy is Ignorance. This girl is Want. Beware them both and all their degree, but most of all beware this boy, for on his brow I see that written which is Doom, unless the writing be erased.”

So scary, these words by Charles Dickens. I remember seeing A Christmas Carol with Alastair Sim as Scrooge when I was a little too young, maybe five. My parents thought it was a holiday passage, along with “‘Twas the Night Before Christmas,” but the cemetery shadows and huddled children made me shiver. They’re still haunting.

As a young teen, I remember George C. Scott as Ebenezer—wonderfully twinkly in his sternness. I was struck by Scrooge’s insistence that his act of charity (the Cratchits’ turkey) be given anonymously. Although I’d seen the word on plaques and programs, only then did it occur to me what an anonymous gift could do. A gift without thought for praise and recognition—that blew my mind a little.

As an adult, directing at Houston’s Alley Theatre over the holidays, I saw its Christmas Carol. At the end when their Scrooge stepped out on Christmas morning, smiling with renewed purpose and connection, children ran from the audience to hug him. They laughed and danced, clinging to his coat. Like fans with a rock star, they tumbled down the steps to share the spotlight and the joy of Christmas morning.

At the Cincinnati Playhouse recently, visiting my boyfriend’s family, we sat in the audience with NFL quarterback Andy Dalton. After the performance, he and Scrooge signed autographs side by side. Pro football players are huge, by the way.

And now here we are. A.C.T.’s Associate Conservatory Director Peter J. Kuo and I direct this year’s Christmas Carol, with James Carpenter and Anthony Fusco sharing the mantle of Scrooge. I am excited to experience this palpably strong story with you, the audience. I know many of you make this production part of your family’s holiday tradition year after year. We welcome you to A.C.T. This is, after all, your theater.

Happy holidays,

Pam MacKinnon, Tony Award winner and Artistic Director

WELCOME TO A.C.T.’S CHRISTMAS CAROL.

One of the best things about the holidays is coming together with your community—whether it’s the one you were born into or the one you create for yourself. Through theater, we gather together in a room with others and have a shared experience. This is an increasingly rare act.

Live theater builds community. Through theater, we learn about ourselves when we see our story represented onstage. We learn about others through experiencing their stories. And we escape into another world—where we are momentarily transported as we focus, free of distraction, on the story onstage. All of this develops empathy, which builds stronger communities. By coming to the theater, you are making the Bay Area an even better place!

You’ll see actors from all generations in our production of A Christmas Carol: our Young Conservatory actors, the youngest of whom is seven; our third-year MFA actors, who have been part of the A.C.T. family for three years and are about to embark into the world as professionals; and our professional actors, some of whom have been performing in A Christmas Carol for over a decade. This cast becomes a Christmas Carol family while they are together, with the more experienced actors mentoring new generations of theater-makers.

Then turn from the stage and look into the audience, and you’ll see something similar: children, parents, grandparents, friends, and family members all coming together to share in one experience at the Geary Theater.

We hope you’ll return soon and share in the upcoming stories we are creating for you. In January and February, you can join us for a moving performance by Tony Hale in Wakey, Wakey. In March, please return for Toni Stone, a new play about the first woman to play professional baseball. It is an extraordinary, real-life story of a trailblazing Bay Area athlete. And there is so much more. Check out act-sf.org.

Thank you for being an essential part of the A.C.T. community!

CLOCKWISE FROM TOP The cast of A.C.T.’s 2018 production of A Christmas Carol; Louise Morrissey, Avanthika Srinivasan, Sunil Mukherjee Maurillo, and Linden Koshland; and actors James Carpenter, Catherine Castellanos, Adam Donovan, and Afua Busia.
The holidays bring families together, ours as well as yours. A Christmas Carol at A.C.T. unites actors from the Young Conservatory and the Master of Fine Arts Program to perform alongside seasoned professionals on the Geary stage. It is truly a family affair.

This particular adaptation of the seasonal classic—which has been performed since 2005—is crafted to showcase a variety of experience. It has roles for actors from an elementary school student to an A.C.T. veteran like Ken Ruta, who was part of A.C.T.’s original acting company in 1967.

To make the familial bonds as strong as possible, the YC and MFA Program actors spend a week working together before rehearsals for A Christmas Carol start. During this time, each YC actor is paired with an MFA actor who guides them through the ins and outs of a professional rehearsal room, the bustle of backstage, and the bright lights of the Geary Theater.

“The MFA performers share great advice, acting tips and lots of support,” says Christophe Mitchell, a seventh grader in his fourth Carol who is appearing in multiple roles this year, including a clerk and a fruit seller. “My mentors have taken me out for sushi, we’ve swapped Christmas gifts, and even did a community service project walking around the Geary neighborhood handing out sandwiches and warm socks. That made me feel really good.”

The Carol community extends to the supporting cast of families, many of whom travel into the city every day for weeks to bring their children to rehearsals. The hard work always pays off, says parent Elizabeth Mitchell. “I will never forget the moment when we bumped into Scrooge in the parking lot and he said, ‘Hey Christophe.’ I thought Christophe would never stop grinning.”

The YC actors learn from the professional actors too. “From the professionals, I learned how to be backstage, how to be a good cast member, and how to work with others,” says Sunil Mukherjee Maurillo. For this talented seventh-grade actor, the Geary is a familiar stomping ground; not only was he an understudy in A Thousand Splendid Suns in 2017, but he’s also a two-time Carol veteran who is playing Peter Cratchit this year. “Through being part of Carol, it felt like I became part of a family in some way. It was super fun. I’ve made a lot of friends by acting in A Christmas Carol. It has been a great experience.”

The evergreen winter production is also an invaluable opportunity for the third-year MFA actors, who are preparing to step into the professional acting world. “It was such a wonderful opportunity to watch seasoned actors such as James Carpenter and Sharon Lockwood reinhabit roles they’ve played for so long as if they’d never left them, with fresh and ever expanding energy,” says MFA Program alum Afua Busia. “It was also lovely to learn from the freedom and playfulness of the Young Conservatory.”

“Working with the professional actors was great. Everybody was so gracious,” says MFA Program alum Avanthika Srinivasan, who played Beth in last year’s production (and who starred in Testmatch at the Strand this fall). “With such a big production, you really need to pull your own weight. One of my major takeaways was the sheer professionalism, from their punctuality for rehearsals to the way they discussed their characters with the director to the work ethic they showed every day.”

Even for the professional actors, some of whom have been in Carol for many seasons, the new cohort of YC and MFA Program performers breathes new life into the tale. “It’s wonderful to see these children growing up and developing as actors and human beings,” says the experienced Ken Ruta, who started off playing Scrooge at A.C.T. in the 1960s and now plays Jacob Marley in the current production of Carol.

“The tradition of professional actors mentoring MFA students, and the MFA students mentoring YC students builds on the spirit of generosity in Carol,” says A.C.T. Associate Conservatory Director Peter J. Kuo, who joins Pam MacKinnon as co-director after working last year with long-time director Domenique Lozano.

“Both Domenique and A.C.T. Artistic Director Pam MacKinnon have been generous mentors, developing my relationship with this incredibly relevant story. In the same way, we see the Christmas Spirits mentor Scrooge through his journey to discovering the heart of Dickens’s tale—empathy and generosity. To share this message, both onstage and in the rehearsal room, is the gift that Carol continues to give every year.”
CHARLES DICKENS: COMMUNITY ACTIVIST
THE HEALING HEART OF A CHRISTMAS CAROL
BY MICHAEL PALLER
Writers write for many reasons. Some create to release an inner pressure that stems from a private agenda welling up from the deepest part of themselves. If that impulse finds an analogy in the conditions of the outside world, the writer may become a sort of community activist, whose desire to fix the world springs from the need for artistic expression. Charles Dickens was such a writer. He wrote, of course, to entertain, but from the beginning, he also intended to make people as angry as he was at the condition of England’s poor.

Dickens’s constituency, the community of the powerless, was vast. Of the sixteen million who populated England and Wales in 1840, about 25 percent existed at subsistence level; ten percent could barely feed themselves every day. The vast majority of the poor lived in dank, overcrowded tenements where diseases such as cholera ran rampant. Only 20 percent of children had any schooling; the rest were working, often from the age of three, in mines, mills, and factories. A great many died before reaching adulthood. The poor had no representation in Britain’s democracy: aristocrats comprised the House of Lords, while the House of Commons consisted largely of the newly empowered industrialists, manufacturers, and bankers and those who did their bidding, usually at the expense of the poor. It was on behalf of this dispossessed community that Dickens wrote to a friend in 1838, “I mean to strike the heaviest blow in my power.” He struck the first blows in journalism. After beginning his career as a parliamentary reporter, he founded two newspapers which he filled with social commentary and criticism. But it was in his fiction that his voice was widest heard and most memorable. In Oliver Twist he exposed the pitiless machinery of the workhouse system that punished the poor for the crime of having nothing. In Nicholas Nickleby he exposed the national network of schools whose schoolmasters were more interested in profit and sadism than in education.

Dickens knew from experience what his characters faced. His anger originated in his childhood of poverty, humiliation, and loneliness. When Dickens was ten, his father was sent to debtors’ prison, along with most of the family. Young Dickens was removed from school and put to work in a ramshackle Thames-side factory. For years he could neither talk nor write about this experience, which found its first expression in a sharp but generalized sympathy for the poor.

A Christmas Carol, written in 1843, portrays a man redeemed by memories after years of suppressing them. He recalls the long-forgotten kindnesses bestowed on him in his youth by his sister and the Fezziwigs before he succumbed to the pointless acquisitiveness which blighted his heart and narrowed his vision. Seeing them again starts a change in him—he becomes a more whole man devoted to the welfare of others.

Attacking the society that made unredeemed Scrooges so numerous, Dickens struck one hammer blow after another in the great novels that followed: Dombey and Son, of which biographer Edgar Johnson writes, “[Dickens] for the first time portrayed society as a single interlinked system poisoned by the heartlessness of a money ethic”; Bleak House condemned governmental bureaucracy and the legal system, twin octopuses that squeezed the life from the powerless; and Little Dorrit imagined all of Britain as one great prison, corrupting or destroying all who came in contact with it. However, urging the government and even the religious and philanthropic establishments to come to the aid of the powerless would never be enough, no matter how many sledgehammer blows Dickens struck with his fiction. In the years following Carol, British society’s willful blindness to the desperate circumstances of his community of the powerless was no longer an inspiration for comedy; the late novels burned with scorn and fury. The comic high jinks in the earlier novels for which he’d been beloved were muted or turned into bitter satire, when not absent altogether.

As literary scholar Michael Patrick Hearn points out about Carol, healing a community begins with changing an individual—Ebenezer Scrooge—not the system of which he is part. But what is a system if not a group of individuals who might be ready to change, given the right circumstances? If literature, or theater, can change a system and heal a community, it will happen one person at a time. Think about that, as the lights go down. ■

“They call year two the pressure-cooker year,” says Master of Fine Arts Program actor Allen Darby. “When you move from being a first-year MFA student to the second year, the gloves are off.” Dressed in loose-fitting clothes and with hair tied up with an elastic band, the second-year actor has just come from a dance class. With only 60 minutes to talk and eat lunch before class starts up again, the life of an MFA student is a hectic one.

“The first year was more exploratory,” says Darby. “Now we’re honing what we’ve learned. Our work is under a microscope.” Darby is the first recipient of A.C.T.’s Prospero Society Scholar Award, one of several awards given to MFA actors. “It means a lot because it was given for artistic talent and work ethic. It was a nice way to start the year.”

This new award is supported financially by the members of A.C.T.’s Prospero Society, a group of theater-lovers who have committed to support A.C.T. through a bequest or a living trust. “When MFA actors performed at a Prospero brunch last season,” says Prospero Society Chair and A.C.T. Trustee Jo S. Hurley, “the members really lit up. They had a wonderful time. That’s when I had the idea to create an award to support a student actor we could call our own.”

Hurley is a long-standing A.C.T. subscriber who has been coming to the Geary since A.C.T.’s first years in San Francisco in the 1960s. She fell in love with theater as a young girl in Kansas City. “At the age of nine, I auditioned for a play at a local high school. I got the part because I talked louder than all the other girls,” she says, laughing.

While Hurley rarely misses a mainstage show—The Great Leap, starring BD Wong, was a recent favorite—she is passionate about the Conservatory. “It’s an integral part of A.C.T.,” she says. “After all, it is the middle name in American Conservatory Theater.” For Hurley, supporting upcoming actors such as Allen Darby is critical. “The MFA students are fun, young, and talented. I love their enthusiasm,” she says. “I want the arts to continue in the Bay Area. And the only way they can is with supporters.”

AN ACT OF SOCIAL JUSTICE

MEET DIRECTOR OF EDUCATION & COMMUNITY PROGRAMS JUAN MANZO

BY CLAIRE L. WONG
“To create opportunities for young people to share their stories and their experiences—and providing the space for students to create original pieces—is paramount,” says A.C.T. Director of Education & Community Programs Juan Manzo, who started in September. “It's something I've really grown to love and see as my purpose.” Providing more students the opportunity to receive arts education and attend performances is a large part of empowering students to share their stories.

Over the last five years, A.C.T. has increased access to student matinees (SMATs); facilitated outreach to schools, teachers, and parents; and increased pre- and post-performance workshops for students. “I'm so excited I can bring theater to my students on the scale of A.C.T.,” says Bay Area public school teacher Keith Coppage.

“We've been able to increase attendance to SMATs for our mainstage and MFA Program matinee performances,” says Manzo. “We can give free tickets to schools, provide transportation subsidies, and provide free pre- and post-performance workshops. These workshops help the students become better acquainted with the content and context of the shows, and the experience of visiting A.C.T.”

“A big part of what makes someone a regular theater-goer as an adult is having a positive theater-going experience as a young person,” says Manzo. “What I love about increasing SMAT attendance is that it's about creating opportunities for all students to come to the theater.”

This is Manzo's first season at A.C.T., but he has been in arts education his entire career. From leading arts education programs and professional development workshops in arts integration for teachers and young people in New York and California, to working as a teaching artist and arts education consultant, Manzo has over 15 years of experience in his field. He’s worked for multiple organizations, including StageWrite, The Old Globe, San Francisco Opera, Young Audiences of the Bay Area, La Jolla Playhouse, and Center Theater Group. As a member of the board of directors for the Arts Education Alliance of the Bay Area, he has worked for a stronger and more equitable arts education community in the Bay Area.

“What I bring to the mix is a sense of what it’s like to be in the classroom teaching and co-facilitating with classroom teachers, as well as what it takes to support the programs and help them succeed,” says Manzo. “We want to provide teaching artists the tools and resources that they need to succeed in the classroom and have a lasting impact. Students respond differently to different types of teaching—by giving students creative avenues into their learning, educators can make the learning more student-centered.”

Manzo hopes to continue building strong partnerships and communication with school teachers so A.C.T. can support their learning goals. “My vision for the department here at A.C.T. is to keep exploring how we make theater accessible,” he says. “How do we expand access to it? How do we create opportunities for students to share their stories? I really want to explore how we can partner more with the schools and SFUSD specifically, and to expand opportunities to integrate theater into the curriculum.”

As the 2019–20 season continues, Manzo is looking forward to growing with the education department. “There’s always been a focus on Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion, on using the arts for change, and on working with communities who have limited access to the arts. When talking about the communities that we serve, working with students to help them share their stories is an act of social justice. Giving students the tools that empower them to do that is one of the most powerful things we can do.”

A.C.T.’s mainstage and MFA SMATs and workshops are free for any SFUSD teacher and their students and to Title 1 schools across the Bay (based on availability). To learn more about bringing SFUSD students to A.C.T. productions, call 415.439.2306.
“Theater happens everywhere,” says A.C.T. Community Programs Manager Stephanie Wilborn. For over a decade, Wilborn has been working with community arts organizations, using theater and social justice as a platform to give voice to those who are often overlooked or underrepresented onstage. Wilborn’s work with Larkin Street Youth Services is just one of the partnerships A.C.T. is building with nonprofits throughout the Bay Area.

Larkin Street Youth Services is the largest provider of housing, healthcare, employment, and education services to young people experiencing homelessness in San Francisco. California is home to the highest number of young people experiencing homelessness in the country (38 percent of the nation’s total). Each year, 2,500 youth walk through Larkin Street’s doors in the Tenderloin.

This summer and fall, Wilborn and Cutting Ball Theater (CBT) teaching artist Radhika Rao taught an ensemble class at Larkin Street for transitional age youth, ages 18–24. This ensemble class included warm-up, improvisation, technical theater, and devised theater. “Devised theater is about creating your own story and about community creation,” says Wilborn. This community creation empowers students to share their stories. Increasingly, underrepresented voices in theater are being heard. “It’s not the same narratives of who’s onstage, who’s behind the scenes, who’s telling the stories,” says Wilborn. “We’re seeing different experiences.”

“We worked with young folks finding their voices and coming out of their shells with ensemble classmates and with their peers,” says Wilborn. “What we’re seeing is that students’ relationships to their peers and themselves are changing.” In addition to the ensemble class, A.C.T. MFA Program students held drop-in hours on Fridays, doing script work with Larkin Street students. MFA students can hone their skills as teaching artists and also create mentorships with students at Larkin Street.

A.C.T.’s continuing partnership with Larkin Street illustrates the often-unseen collaborations between Bay Area arts organizations and nonprofits. Wilborn’s colleague Rao (who has also worked as a teaching artist with A.C.T. for several seasons) brought theater arts education to Larkin Street on behalf of Cutting Ball for four years. CBT’s education program partners with many other education groups to provide free classes and working and performance opportunities. “Radhika taught an improv class, which was a result of the collaboration between our two organizations,” says Associate Artistic Director and Education Coordinator of CBT Maya Herbsman.

“Stephanie and Radhika are wonderful and inspiring to work with,” says Larkin Street Academy Assistant Manager of Education Kiki Lipsett. “They are both so skilled in their craft and are very accessible and supportive educators. The classes they teach support our program goals of providing a safe and supportive space for creative expression and artistic development as well as connecting our students with local music and theater opportunities in San Francisco. We hope students finish the program with a clear educational path or internship in the arts.”

A few doors down from Larkin Street is 826 Valencia Tenderloin Center—another A.C.T. arts education partner—where A.C.T. teaching artist Andy Alabran has been working for four years. 826 Valencia supports under-served youth through the creative outlet of writing and providing positive mentorship. As a voice teacher, Alabran helps students prepare and record podcasts of their writing—such as talking about personal obstacles they face or an “I Am” poem. “Sometimes when I’m working with students in the recording booth, I’ll make a suggestion and see it totally unlock something. They’ll open up just a little bit more. And then the whole podcast resonates with who they are as a person.”

While A.C.T. has worked with 826 Valencia for several years, a new partner this season is Dress for Success (DFS) San Francisco. DFS helps women in the Bay Area achieve self-defined success, from providing unemployed and underemployed women with professional clothing for interviews to facilitating access to a network of support and guidance. A.C.T. and DFS partnered for Top Girls and Testmatch and will again for the upcoming Drinks & Drama event for Toni Stone at the Geary on March 6.

From supporting women’s professional development to preparing student podcasts, all of A.C.T.’s partnerships with other Bay Area nonprofits underline the critical need for collaboration and togetherness. “Theater is really about connection,” says Wilborn. “We can’t do it alone.”

MELISSA SMITH (Conservatory Director, Head of Acting) has served as Conservatory director and head of acting in the Master of Fine Arts Program at A.C.T. since 1995. During that time, she has overseen the expansion of the MFA Program from a two- to a three-year course of study and the further integration of the MFA Program faculty and student body with A.C.T.’s artistic wing, while also teaching and directing in the MFA Program, Summer Training Congress, and Studio A.C.T. In 2013, she launched the San Francisco Semester, a semester-long intensive that deepens students’ acting. In 2016, she was honored by Theatre Bay Area as one of 40 individuals who have changed the face of Bay Area theater. Prior to assuming leadership of the Conservatory, Smith was the director of the Program in Theater and Dance at Princeton University. She has taught acting classes to students of all ages in various colleges, high schools, and studios around the continental United States, at the Mid-Pacific Institute in Hawaii, New York University’s La Pietra campus in Florence, and the Teatro di Pisa in San Miniato, Italy. She is featured in Acting Teachers of America: A Vital Tradition. Also a professional actor, she has performed regionally at the Hangar Theatre, A.C.T., the California Shakespeare Festival, and Berkeley Repertory Theatre; in New York at Primary Stages and Soho Rep.; and in England at the Barbican Centre in London and Birmingham Repertory Theatre. Smith holds a BA from Yale College and an MFA in acting from Yale School of Drama. (she/her)

Beverages with lids or caps are permitted in the theater. Food may be enjoyed only in the lobbies and bars.

CELL PHONES
If you carry a pager, beeper, cell phone, or watch with alarm, please make sure that it is set to the “off” position while you are in the theater. Text messaging during the performance is very disruptive and not allowed.

PERFUMES
The chemicals found in perfumes, colognes, and scented aftershave lotions, even in small amounts, can cause severe physical reactions in some individuals. As a courtesy to fellow patrons, please avoid the use of these products when you attend the theater.

EMERGENCY TELEPHONE
Leave your seat location with those who may need to reach you and have them call 415.439.2397 in an emergency.

LATECOMERS
A.C.T. performances begin on time. Latecomers will be seated before the first intermission only if there is an appropriate interval.

LISTENING SYSTEMS
Headsets designed to provide clear, amplified sound anywhere in the auditorium are available free of charge in the lobby before performances. Please turn off your hearing aid when using an A.C.T. headset, as it will react to the sound system and make a disruptive noise.

AFFILIATIONS
A.C.T. is a constituent of Theatre Communications Group, the national organization for the nonprofit professional theater. A.C.T. is a member of Theatre Bay Area, the Union Square Association, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, and the San Francisco Convention & Visitors Bureau.

RESTROOMS
Gender diversity is welcome at A.C.T. We invite audiences to use the restroom that best fits your gender identity or expression. If preferred, a single-user restroom can be found on the 5th floor.

Wheelchair Seating is located in Fred’s Columbia Room on the lower lobby level, the Balcony Lobby, and the Garret on the uppermost lobby level.

A.C.T. is pleased to announce that an Automatic External Defibrillator (AED) is now available in the house management closet in the lobby of The Geary.

LOST AND FOUND
If you’ve misplaced an item while you’re still at the theater, please look for it at our merchandise stand in the lobby. Any items found by ushers will be taken there. If you’ve left the theater, please call 415.439.2471 and we’ll be happy to check our lost and found for you. Please be prepared with the date you attended the performance and your seat location.
