American Conservatory Theater is a Tony Award–winning theater and educational institution dedicated to cultivating the art of live theater through our dynamic productions, intensive actor training in our Conservatory, and an ongoing engagement with our community. Under the leadership of Tony and Obie award–winning Artistic Director Pam MacKinnon and Executive Director Jennifer Bielstein, we embrace our responsibility to refresh, renew, and reinvent the rich theatrical traditions and literatures that are our collective legacy, while exploring new artistic forms and communities. Since opening our first San Francisco season in 1967, A.C.T. has presented more than 400 productions to a combined audience of more than seven million people. Today, A.C.T.’s performance, education, and outreach programs reach almost 250,000 people in the Bay Area each year.

A.C.T.’s Conservatory, led by Melissa Smith, is a three-year, fully accredited Master of Fine Arts Program consistently rated as one of America’s top actor-training programs. Our Summer Training Congress attracts students from around the world, the San Francisco Semester offers a unique, immersive training opportunity for undergraduates, and Studio A.C.T. helps adults get in touch with their inner artist through part-time, professional-caliber classes. Our alumni are working theater-makers, writing, directing, producing, and performing on our mainstage and around the Bay Area, as well as on stages and screens nationwide.

A key part of A.C.T.’s dedication to lifelong learning is our Education & Community Programs team, led by Juan Manzo. These programs include our Young Conservatory (students ages 8–19), our Fellowship Program for emerging theater professionals, and our ACTsmart school and community programs, featuring the Student Matinee (SMAT) program, our touring Will on Wheels Shakespeare productions, teaching-artist residences, and workshops at schools and community-based organizations. Every year, these programs provide nearly 20,000 young people and educators from around the Bay Area with opportunities to experience the transformative potential of dramatic storytelling; develop creativity, critical thinking, and collaborative spirit; and foster the artists and audiences of the future.

Now in their second season at the helm, Pam MacKinnon and Jennifer Bielstein continue their commitment to the development of new work and new artists and the creation of an equitable, diverse, and inclusive environment for our employees, students, audiences, and artists. Through this commitment, we aim to impact lives, build community, and train artists who will secure and change the future of theater for San Francisco and the world.

WELCOME TO A.C.T.—I AM SO HAPPY YOU ARE HERE.

Wakey, Wakey is experimental in the broadest sense of the term. Playwright Will Eno activates intimate personal events in every audience member’s head and heart that can then be shared communally. The theater is the gathering place; you are about to step onto a ride. You are the character Guy’s primary scene partner, not just because he talks to the audience but because he lays himself bare, searches for joy, recounts significant moments, and asks you do the same. The play is an act of imagining, reminiscing, and stepping toward the unknown—together.

It is as present-tense a play as I have ever encountered. As I read Will’s play for the first time, I thought of Our Town (and Emily’s third-act return), I remembered Who’s Afraid of Virginia Woolf? (and Martha’s final confession), I gasped, laughed, and teared up. I also thought immediately of Tony Hale to play the everyman part of Guy. I’d seen Tony onstage a few times, most recently in a 2002 New York revival of a Tina Howe play called Museum, a large-cast play with 42 characters. Tony stood out as an actor with brilliant timing and infinite depth. A true clown, like a Bert Lahr—more Beckett than Cowardly Lion—inconsolable yet funny. After disappearing on me for a spell, Tony showed up on two brilliant, hard-to-define TV shows, Arrested Development and Veep. We had never met, but I reached out to him last year with this play, and it stuck. I am very grateful that he is on our stage. This is a tightrope-walking role. I hope you fall in love not only with him but where he takes you.

Also, please join each other for refreshments after. We are following the script, giving spaces to convene and celebrate a character’s journey as well as your own. Like I said, this is no ordinary play; it’s a slice of life—written, designed, rehearsed, and produced—and you (unrehearsed, undesigned) have a big part to play too.

Enjoy!

Pam MacKinnon, Tony Award winner and Artistic Director

HAPPY NEW YEAR, FRIENDS!

I’ve been looking forward to Wakey, Wakey since we first announced our season. Variety described the New York production as “a work of humor, humanity, and grace that makes you want to hug your lover, your neighbor and maybe an usher on the way out.” What can be better than that!?

This production promises to be especially stimulating as playwright Will Eno poses big questions. Will has also written a companion play especially for A.C.T.’s production. This is such a unique opportunity for you, our audience, to be the first to see a piece of theater that’s been created specifically for this cast, this theater, and this city.

Since today’s performance will give you much to think about and discuss, we want to provide the space to do so. Please stick around for a bit after the show and join us for light refreshments in our lobby spaces. We love to spark conversation and to hear what you think! Afterwards, carry on the conversation on social media: you can tag us on Facebook, Instagram, or Twitter using @ACTSanFrancisco and #ACTWakeyWakey.

If the opening piece piques your interest in our MFA students who perform four of the roles, there are more chances this spring to see our students in action onstage. Check out Christopher Chen’s Passage, featuring our third-year MFA class, running February 20–29 at the Strand Theater. We also have three shows, featuring our first- and second-year students, running in repertory in May: Roberto Aguirre-Sacasa’s Rough Magic, Jen Silverman’s The Moors, and Madhuri Shekar’s In Love and Warcraft. Learn more about all the MFA performances in the Conservatory section of our website, www.act-sf.org.

Finally, I draw your attention to the tribute to Nancy Livingston on page 19. Nancy has been a force at A.C.T. and I’ve loved learning from her, learning about her story, learning about A.C.T.’s history, successes, and challenges. To quote Guy in Wakey, Wakey, “I thought I had more time.” We miss you, Nancy.

Please hug those you care about. Thank you for being with us at A.C.T.

There is a strange alchemy in Will Eno's plays that draws us away from the anxious, racing world outside and into a quiet communion with one another and those solid, undeniable realities that connect us. Almost imperceptibly, he makes us more conscious of the world and more connected to those around us. We are grateful we have the opportunity to share this play with you.

How does it feel to be back at the Geary?
It feels great. The Geary is two very different things. There's the grandness. And there's the part below the stage, where I talked about minor league baseball with the guy who runs the stage door. When I think about Wakey Wakey, it fits both sides of this space. This play, I hope, makes spaces for us to sit with one another in the experience of larger, maybe scary or sad things. This juxtaposition of the human and truthful and grounded with the Geary is kind of epic.

In Wakey, Wakey, one of the concepts you explore is time: how time can be both your friend or your enemy.
I don't have anything super smart to say about time except that, at 54 years old, I love it. I understand it (a bit), certainly more than I did when I was a kid. It's what lets things happen. I am constantly doing the math to think, "What would be a good age for my daughter to be when I die?" I'm hoping I make it to 93 and she'd be in her forties. I understand that's plain greedy given the national average, but I had a grandmother who lived to 103. I certainly hope to live long enough that I'll get back to raging at time and seeing it as incredibly unfair. Short answer: I'm all for it.

Whether it’s time or how we talk, one of the things I love about your plays is they take me out of my habits, my routine—and invite me to see things afresh.
That’s something plays can do—disrupt the forecast and prediction on which we operate. You get startled when your prediction doesn’t match what you’re seeing. I’m reading a great book at the moment about science: Bill Bryson’s A Short History of Nearly Everything. He does amazing things with visual analogies. A very basic yeast cell has the same number of components as a Boeing 777 but is only 20 microns across. He also talks about how rare it is to get fossilized. Take all 206 bones of the human body and multiply by 300 million Americans. All those bones only add up to about a quarter of a fossilized skeleton. That’s the ratio of bone to fossil. When you think about what we know about the creatures who once lived, it’s amazing.

Why do we as humans tell stories?
That’s one of the great mysteries of theater: why we gather together to tell stories. It’s funny—the simpler a question, the harder it is to answer. “Safety” just popped into my head. And that makes me think of danger. To safely participate in some danger together with others seems evolutionarily beneficial. And also in a fun, Halloween-y way, it’s pleasurable to be at risk, either through identifying with the character and the story you’re seeing, or by having some particular drama that you’re in the middle of rise up in you while you’re watching. Researchers have found that people’s heart rates synch as they watch theater. It might just be a function of being together. There’s a human to your right and a human to your left. The cues are alive and changing. Being in a theater feels like being out in the jungle in the dark.
For Tony Hale, performing began with theater. Long before all the television shows and the Emmy Awards, before Toy Story 4 or the new series on Netflix, he was just a seventh-grade kid, newly arrived in Tallahassee, Florida. “I was not a sports kid and my parents didn’t know what to do with me,” recalls Hale. “By the grace of God, there was this children’s theater nearby, Young Actors Theater, and my parents signed me up. It was a space to be silly and stupid, to be free to discover, and to find what I love to do.” Thirty-some years later, Hale is back onstage. Before rehearsals kicked off at A.C.T., Hale spoke with us about his excitement at returning to theater.

What does theater give you that’s different from television and film?
I hope it doesn’t give me a panic attack. [Laughs] I haven’t done theater in a really long time but I’m looking forward to tapping into those butterflies. After a lot of therapy, I’ve learned to take those feelings that used to be dread or anxiety, and redefine them as excitement and a part of the artistic process. So rather than being afraid, I’m going to embrace those jitters and use that energy.

What is it about this play and this playwright which attracts you?
Gosh! There are a lot of things. One is the way that Will Eno both comedically and sincerely puts out incredible deep thoughts—things that everybody is thinking about but we’re afraid to voice—mixed in with humor and vulnerability. And it’s done in a really safe, funny, truthful way.

What does the audience give you as a performer?
Oh, man. You can feel connected. There’s an energy that is immediate gratification. You can feel something’s working, especially with comedy. There’s an intimacy with theater that you can’t get with TV and film. It’s very personal.

Have you worked in the Bay Area before?
I did a character on Toy Story 4 for Pixar and we recorded in Emeryville. Having lived in New York, there’s a similar energy in San Francisco. My wife and I love this city so much.

What do you want the Geary audience to take away from this?
What if I said, “Nothing”? [Chuckles] No, seriously, I’m working on this Netflix cartoon series right now based on a children’s book I wrote, Archibald’s Next Big Thing. Archibald is a very positive chicken who sees the best in everyone and every situation. I hope that people who read that book feel joy and feel encouraged. And I feel exactly the same with Wakey, Wakey. I hope that Bay Area audiences walk away feeling encouraged.

Wakey, Wakey brings up a lot of ideas about being present, about contentment, about life. This play lobs those questions out to the audience, and in those silent periods when they’re just watching or experiencing, gives them a space to think. Theater naturally brings people together of all different beliefs and backgrounds. And for all those people to experience the same feelings and moments in the same space is unique. To be in a large group for an hour and a half—almost like a Quaker church—is a communal group experience, especially with the play Will has written.

How important to you is community?
The way you treat people is everything. Granted, I’m a work in progress. [Laughs] But when you give of yourself, when you really love people, man, the fruit that you get. The influence that you can have in people’s lives, people that feel unseen, people that feel unconnected. When you can connect, that’s the biggest gift you can give somebody.
“The world is a complicated place,” says Anne Kauffman, “and directing theater is my way of facing that.” In two decades working in the American theater, the New York–based director has been unafraid to tackle weighty subjects. In addition to her work on and off Broadway, the Obie Award–winning Kauffman directed Hundred Days at Z Space in 2014, another exploration of humanity. She is no stranger to A.C.T., leading an MFA Program production of Steve Gooch’s uncompromising drama Female Transport in 2005. During Kauffman’s fall visit to San Francisco for a workshop with Will Eno, we sat down with the director to learn more about her production of Wakey, Wakey.
What excites you about Wakey, Wakey?

It’s so different from other plays I’ve directed. It is a great experiment—it’s not a play how we understand plays. Growing up in the theater, we’re all taught the Aristotelian way of looking at plays: there’s a beginning, middle, and end. It’s this beautiful arc and all the moments of the play add up to one thing. Real life is not shaped that way, and neither is Wakey, Wakey. It’s messing with the arc. I think of it as a conversation with the audience. It really makes you ask, “What is this piece?” That’s what I love about it. I predict that Wakey, Wakey is a play that will make me never want to leave the theater.

You’ve known Will Eno for many years. How are you both working to prepare the audience for this new kind of theatrical experience?

Will had the desire to make a piece that came before the main event, and somehow got us into the mindset for Wakey, Wakey. We were tossing a few things around, and one thing that we were interested in was the woman who appears for a brief moment of time in Wakey, Wakey. She appears at an important place in the piece, and so it felt significant that we meet her in a different context. From there, we developed this idea into the first part of the show, which became the companion play.

What elements did you work on together during the workshop?

We were testing tone. Will is tricky tonally, so we were thinking, “What is the touch that we want, how heavy-handed should we be?” It was fun to play with the actors and explore different approaches. Will’s style is no frills. It’s the language, rather than the design, which articulates the world. Directing this play is about getting out of the way of Eno’s language, rather than prescribing what it means—you have to tread lightly on his words. For example, if I say “I’m sad,” and then act like I’m sad at the same time, it sinks the line. It’s much more moving when there’s dissonance between the language and the way it’s acted, when there’s an unknowingness.

What do you think of the way in which Will tackles the complexity of the world in his plays?

The darkness in Will’s plays is so interesting because it’s without the cynicism of other playwrights like Samuel Beckett. Even though there’s edge to Will’s work, there is also curiosity. He’s truly interested in beauty. He’s interested in revealing the world as irony rather than devastation. There’s some fun to be had with the darkness, something optimistic. He finds joy in the shadows.

You’ve worked all around the Bay Area. How do you think Wakey, Wakey will land with the Geary audience?

It’s hard to know how this play will land with audiences who are used to coming to A.C.T. to see your typical theater plays, but that’s what I love about Wakey, Wakey. What I really enjoy about Will as a writer is that he’s using everyday things in ways we’re not used to. He’s using a banana as a phone. He places objects next to each other that don’t seem to belong together, but then you realize they do belong together. He’s an observer of the world in an uncanny way and he helps us reach that understanding too.

What do you want people to take away from Wakey, Wakey?

I want the audience to fall in love with this character and to never want him to go away. I want them to be very sad if something bad were to happen to him. I want them to be comforted by his lack of understanding of the world, because they feel that way too. I want them to be able to laugh and feel superior to him, and then watch as he subverts that superiority and pulls the rug out from underneath them. But what I really want is for them to hope they never have to leave the theater.
DINAH BERKELEY
(Jennifer) is excited to be back on the Geary stage for Wakey, Wakey. She was most recently seen in A Christmas Carol, directed by Peter J. Kuo and Pam MacKinnon. Other works include: Elinor in Kate Hamill’s hilarious adaptation of Sense and Sensibility, directed by Pirronne Yousefzadeh; Ti Jean and His Brothers and A Midsummer Night’s Dream, both directed by Dawn Monique Williams; and the world premiere of The Providence of Neighboring Bodies with Dutch Kills Theatre Company at Ars Nova. She’ll be graduating from A.C.T.’s MFA Program this May. Love and gratitude to the entire cast, crew, Will, and Anne for this experience. (she/her, they/them) dinahberkeley.com

TONY HALE*
(Guy) started his career playing Buster Bluth on the groundbreaking series Arrested Development and has since garnered two Emmy Awards for his work playing Gary Walsh on the HBO hit Veep. Some of his other credits include A Series of Unfortunate Events; The Informant!, Stranger Than Fiction; Love, Simon; The Heat; Happythankyoumoreplease; and voicing Forky in the new movie Toy Story 4. His children’s book, Archibald’s Next Big Thing, premiered as an animated series on Netflix this past fall.

KATHRYN SMITH-MCGLYNN*
(Ms. Forester, Lisa) has performed on stages throughout the Bay Area, including B Street Theatre at The Sofia (Holmes and Watson), Capital Stage Company (Sweat), San Jose Stage Company (Disgraced), and Marin Shakespeare Company (A Midsummer Night’s Dream, Pericles, Love’s Labours Lost, and Twelfth Night). Additional regional credits include The Trojan Women (Shakespeare Theatre Company) and The People’s Temple (Perseverance Theatre Company). LEROY S. GRAHAM III
(Bobby) is a third-year Master of Fine Arts student at A.C.T. and was most recently at the Geary in A.C.T.’s A Christmas Carol as Fred. In addition to working with co-director Peter J. Kuo on A Christmas Carol, Graham first worked under Kuo’s direction playing Lennie Small in Of Mice and Men in A.C.T.’s Skyfest. Past MFA Program credits include A Lyrical Hip Hop Cabaret, directed by Ryan Nicole Peters, and the role of Gros Jean in Ti Jean and His Brothers, directed by Dawn Monique Williams. With the world at his fingertips, Graham is looking forward to what the future holds after graduating from A.C.T.’s MFA Program. (he/him) @le_roi_troisieme

EMMA VAN LARE
(Marisol) is excited to return to the Geary stage after her debut in A Christmas Carol. This summer she made her professional debut as Hamida in the world premiere of Madhuri Shekar’s House of Joy at California Shakespeare Theater, directed by Megan Sandberg-Zakian. She is a third-year student in A.C.T.’s MFA Program. Her Conservatory credits include Ti Jean and His Brothers, Medea, A Midsummer Night’s Dream, and The School for Scandal. emmavanlare.com

JEFF WITTEKIEND
(Jimmy) is grateful to return to the Geary stage. His regional credits include Who Am I This Time? and Hope and Gravity at Circle Theatre, The Heir Apparent and Bedroom Farce at Stage West Theatre, Susan and God at Theatre Three, The Heiress at ICT MainStage, and The Adventures of Tom Sawyer at WaterTower Theatre (all Dallas/Fort Worth). He previously appeared in A.C.T.’s A Christmas Carol. Wittekiend received a BA from Baylor University and is currently in his final year of the A.C.T. Master of Fine Arts Program. He would like to thank Maria, Robbie, Effie, and Buddy for always being in his corner. (he/him)
TODD CERVERIS* (Understudy) is a new member of the Bay Area theater community. His recent television credits include The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel, Homeland, and Madam Secretary. Stage credits include the Broadway productions of South Pacific and Twentieth Century; the world premieres of Southern Comfort, The Great Immensity, Yours Unfaithfully, and Almost, Maine; the national tours of War Horse, Twelve Angry Men, and Spring Awakening; and productions at regional theaters across the country. He is also a writer; his solo play Let Me was a Fringe Variations (co-author) was a Fringe Festival and Storytelling Play at the United Solo Theatre Festival and The Booth was awarded Best Storytelling Play at the United Solo Theatre Festival and The Booth Variations (co-author) was a Fringe First nominee at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe. (he/him)

SAM JACKSON* (Understudy) is a San Francisco–based actor, vocalist, and teaching artist in her first run with A.C.T. She has also stage-managed The Mystery of Irma Vep, Suddenly Last Summer, Big Love, Collected Stories, and Cloud Tectonics (Berkeley Repertory Theatre); The Good Body (Broadway); Big Love (Brooklyn Academy of Music); and The Vagina Monologues (Alcazar Theatre).

AMANDA MARSHALL* (Assistant Stage Manager) is honored to return to A.C.T. for her first production as an official member of Actor’s Equity Association. She is based in San Francisco and has worked frequently at Magic Theatre, A.C.T., and Santa Cruz Shakespeare since graduating from UC Santa Cruz in 2017 with a BA in theater arts and psychology. Recent credits include production assistant on A Christmas Carol at A.C.T., assistant stage manager on The Chinese Lady at Magic Theatre, and stage manager on the legacy revival of Oedipus el Rey at Magic Theatre.

CHRISTOPHER AND LESLIE JOHNSON (Executive Producers) were both born and raised in the Bay Area and have been supporting A.C.T. since 2002. They were executive producers on Rhinoceros, Hamlet, The Hard Problem, The Realistic Joneses, A Little Night Music, Napoli!, Rock ’n’ Roll, Round and Round the Garden, Blackbird, and Curse of the Starving Class. Directors of the Hurlbut-Johnson Fund, the Johnsons support many Bay Area organizations and endowed the Hurlbut-Johnson Chair in Diabetes Research at UCSF. Leslie Johnson is the cofounder and president of Epic Transitions, a Bay Area–based nonprofit dedicated to providing transformational trek experiences to young adults in need of support with life direction.
We mourn the loss of Nancy Livingston, who passed away on November 16. Nancy was A.C.T.’s board chair emerita and a tireless advocate for theater arts in the Bay Area. Born in Shaker Heights in 1947, Nancy moved west, where she built a successful career in the Bay Area as an advertising copywriter. She always had an interest in theater—Equus, starring Harry Hamlin, was an early favorite at the Geary—but her links with the arts deepened when Fred Levin, a clothing manufacturer with whom she’d worked as an advertising account executive, asked her to join him one night at the theater.

Nancy’s strong partnership with Fred drew her into Bay Area philanthropy, through their stewardship of the Shenson Foundation, a donor-advised fund that gives to the visual and performing arts, Jewish social services, and other educational organizations. After contributing to A.C.T. in the late 1990s, Nancy began getting involved with our Board of Trustees, writing copy for the gala and working on the marketing committee.

From the start, Nancy’s drive, grit, creativity, and collaborative skills were evident. She rose rapidly through the board ranks, from vice chair to associate chair and finally to chair of the Board of Trustees in 2010. She played a vital role in the endowment campaign to provide A.C.T. with a strong financial foundation. She followed that by spearheading the $35-million campaign to renovate the Strand Theater, which opened in 2015. “Nancy leaves behind a profound legacy with A.C.T.,” says Executive Director Jennifer Bielstein. “She was a driving force as board chair, in raising funds for our endowment, in our Strand campaign, and as chair of the Business Leadership Council. Her love of A.C.T.’s staff, artists, students, and trustees was immense.” “Nancy was my mentor,” says A.C.T. Board of Trustees President Kay Yun. “I’ve depended on her guidance, wisdom, and love. Nancy was one of the most generous, thoughtful, and insightful people. She loved A.C.T. and she will continue to be a beacon for me as we strive to make her proud.”

Despite her exceptional accomplishments on behalf of A.C.T. and her longstanding commitment to the theater, Nancy was modest about her own contribution. “A.C.T. has a compelling story,” she said, “and we’re all about storytelling in the end. We talk about who we are—it’s the oldest communal activity in the world.” “Nancy was part of the A.C.T. family and story for five decades,” says A.C.T. Artistic Director Pam MacKinnon. “Her passion, candor, and humanity were infectious. Her legacy is lasting and runs deep.” All of us at A.C.T. will miss Nancy, and we celebrate her family and her life.
“A.C.T. is a teaching hospital,” says A.C.T. Associate Artistic Director Andy Chan Donald. “We nurture new work here, which benefits both the training of our MFA Program actors and the work of theater-makers.” This fall saw the world premiere of Kate Attwell’s Testmatch at the Strand Theater. Now, audiences will experience the never-before-seen companion play preceding Wakey, Wakey, which playwright Will Eno wrote for A.C.T.’s MFA Program students.

Every season, MFA actors are involved in the creation of new works at A.C.T. In 2018, Caleb Lewis and the class of 2019 worked with playwright Susan Soon He Stanton on the A.C.T. New Strands Commission, Both Your Houses. “It was exciting to see things we discussed incorporated into the play,” says Lewis. “It’s fulfilling to know that you’re contributing to the creation of a tangible work of art.” For the playwright, hearing actors embody their words helps fine-tune the work. “It was a rare pleasure to create Both Your Houses with the A.C.T. MFA acting class,” says Stanton. “Each actor had a direct role in the creation of their character and I loved writing to their unique voices.”

MFA Program actors in the class of 2020 were in the room with Eno and director Anne Kauffman as they rehearsed the companion play. “It was incredibly fun and helpful to get together with Anne and Kathryn [Smith-McGlynn] and the MFA students,” says Eno. “It’s a really important part of the playwriting process to hear things alive and in time, so you can make adjustments to rhythm and diction and other aspects of language that might differ from person to person.”

As they worked on the companion play, the MFAs had the chance to invest in the process of creating the work and more deeply understand their characters. “It feels luxurious to have the playwright in the room and be able to ask clarifying questions about character arcs, intentions, and relationships,” says Dinah Berkeley. LeRoy S. Graham III agrees. “In digesting the work as a collective, we found areas for more playfulness within the text,” says Graham. “It’s a beautiful piece and bringing our full hearts in the room allowed for great creative development from all angles.”

What happens when you throw together Rocky Horror, Margaret Cho, and a crew of theater-loving San Franciscans in the same party? Answer: the theatrical dynamite of A.C.T.’s Fall Gala. Behind the classical 1892 façade of the Hibernia bank building on Jones Street, Broadway stars and A.C.T. supporters alike rocked the storied structure to the beats of DJ Star Amerasu, raising more than $900,000 for our artist training, education, and community programs.

Partygoers will not forget Cho’s typically irreverent set, the fantastic projection design that made the Hibernia pop, and the flash mob rendition of “Let’s Do the Time Warp Again,” staged by Sam Pinkleton, Ani Taj, and Ada Westfall—the three extraordinary creative talents that will bring Richard O’Brien’s The Rocky Horror Show to the Geary in April.

This spring, ten generous gala guests will get their own Rocky Horror experience—as Geary Theater walk-ons in a special performance of the show. Time Warp–sized thank-yous to Sam and his theatrical partners, to kickass mother-and-daughter gala co-chairs Priscilla and Catherine Geeslin, and to all our great guests who shared their party spirit so generously. See you all at the Spring Fling on May 2 at August Hall!

For tickets and more information about our upcoming Spring Fling, contact Director of Special Events Jody Price at 415.439.2470 or jprice@act-sf.org.

Ticket sales cover only 40% of the costs to bring bold theatrical productions of artistic excellence to the Bay Area.
A.C.T. is one of the largest providers of arts education in the region, reaching over 20,000 young people each year.
Many Bay Area students experience their first live performance through A.C.T.’s diverse community outreach efforts.

PAM MACKINNON (Artistic Director) is celebrating her second season as A.C.T.’s fourth artistic director. She is a Tony, Drama Desk, and Obie award–winning director, having directed upwards of 70 productions around the country, off Broadway, and on Broadway. Her Broadway credits include Beau Willimon’s The Parisian Woman (with Uma Thurman), Amélie: A New Musical, David Mamet’s China Doll (with Al Pacino), Wendy Wasserstein’s The Heidi Chronicles (with Elisabeth Moss), Edward Albee’s A Delicate Balance (with Glenn Close and John Lithgow), Edward Albee’s Who’s Afraid of Virginia Woolf? (Tony Award, Drama Desk Award, and Outer Critics Circle nomination), and Bruce Norris’s Clybourne Park (Obie Award, Tony and Lucille Lortel nominations). Her most recent credits include Bruce Norris’s Downstate (Steppenwolf Theatre Company, London’s National Theatre), Lydia R. Diamond’s Toni Stone (Roundabout Theatre Company), and Edward Albee’s Seascape (A.C.T.). She is an artistic associate of the Roundabout Theatre Company, an advisory board member of Clubbed Thumb, and an alumna of the Drama League, Women’s Project, and Lincoln Center Theater’s Directors’ Labs. She just completed a three-year term as the executive board president of the Stage Directors and Choreographers Society (SDC), and continues to serve on the board. She grew up in Toronto, Canada, and Buffalo, New York, acted through her teens, but majored in economics and political science at the University of Toronto and briefly pursued a PhD in political science at UC San Diego, before returning to her true passion: theater. (she/her)

JENNIFER BIELSTEIN (Executive Director) joined A.C.T. in 2018 with more than 25 years of theater management experience. She serves on the board of Theatre Forward, is a member of the International Women’s Forum, and is president of the League of Resident Theatres (LORT)—an organization that represents 75 theaters nationwide—having previously served as LORT’s vice president; chair of its Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion Committee; secretary; and on multiple union negotiating teams. Before relocating to the Bay Area, Bielstein was the managing director of the Guthrie Theater in Minneapolis, managing director of Actors Theatre of Louisville, and executive director of Writers Theatre in Chicago. She has also worked for Steppenwolf Theatre Company, About Face Theatre, Northlight Theatre, and Lincoln Park Zoo, as well as served on the boards of the League of Chicago Theatres, the Arts and Cultural Attractions Council, and other civic boards. She has received the Center for Nonprofit Excellence’s Pyramid Award of Excellence in Leadership, has been recognized in Louisville’s Business First’s 40 Under 40, and was named by Twin Cities Business magazine as a Person to Know and a Real Power 50 member by Minnesota Business magazine. Bielstein is a graduate of University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, attended Stanford’s Graduate School of Business Executive Program for Nonprofit Leaders in the Arts, and earned an MBA from Bellarmine University, where she received the MBA Faculty Merit Award and was inducted into Beta Gamma Sigma, the honor society for business programs. (she/her)

MELISSA SMITH (Conservatory Director, Head of Acting) has served as Conservatory director and head of acting in the Master of Fine Arts Program at A.C.T. since 1995. During that time, she has overseen the expansion of the MFA Program from a two- to a three-year course of study and the further integration of the MFA Program faculty and student body with A.C.T.’s artistic wing, while also teaching and directing in the MFA Program, Summer Training Congress, and Studio A.C.T. In 2013, she launched the San Francisco Semester, a semester-long intensive that deepens students' acting. In 2016, she was honored by Theatre Bay Area as one of 40 individuals who have changed the face of Bay Area theater. Prior to assuming leadership of the Conservatory, Smith was the director of the Program in Theater and Dance at Princeton University. She has taught acting classes to students of all ages in various colleges, high schools, and studios around the continental United States, at the Mid-Pacific Institute in Hawaii, New York University’s La Pietra campus in Florence, and the Teatro di Pisa in San Miniato, Italy. She is featured in Acting Teachers of America: A Vital Tradition. Also a professional actor, she has performed regionally at the Hangar Theatre, A.C.T., the California Shakespeare Festival, and Berkeley Repertory Theatre; in New York at Primary Stages and Soho Rep.; and in England at the Barbican Centre in London and Birmingham Repertory Theatre. Smith holds a BA from Yale College and an MFA in acting from Yale School of Drama. (she/her)
CELL PHONES
If you carry a pager, beeper, cell phone, or watch with alarm, please make sure that it is set to the “off” position while you are in the theater. Text messaging during the performance is very disruptive and not allowed.

PERFUMES
The chemicals found in perfumes, colognes, and scented aftershave lotions, even in small amounts, can cause severe physical reactions in some individuals. As a courtesy to fellow patrons, please avoid the use of these products when you attend the theater.

EMERGENCY TELEPHONE
Leave your seat location with those who may need to reach you and have them call 415.439.2397 in an emergency.

LATECOMERS
A.C.T. performances begin on time. Latecomers will be seated before the first intermission only if there is an appropriate interval.

LISTENING SYSTEMS
Headsets designed to provide clear, amplified sound anywhere in the auditorium are available free of charge in the lobby before performances. Please turn off your hearing aid when using an A.C.T. headset, as it will react to the sound system and make a disruptive noise.

AFFILIATIONS

RESTROOMS
Gender diversity is welcome at A.C.T. We invite audiences to use the restroom that best fits your gender identity or expression. If preferred, a single-user restroom can be found on the 5th floor. Wheelchair Seating is located in Fred’s Columbia Room on the lower lobby level, the Balcony Lobby, and the Garret on the uppermost lobby level.

A.C.T. is pleased to announce that an Automatic External Defibrillator (AED) is now available in the house management closet in the lobby of The Geary.

LOST AND FOUND
If you’ve misplaced an item while you’re still at the theater, please look for it at our merchandise stand in the lobby. Any items found by ushers will be taken there. If you’ve left the theater, please call 415.439.2471 and we’ll be happy to check our lost and found for you. Please be prepared with the date you attended the performance and your seat location.
