ABOUT A.C.T.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY THEATER is an artist-driven, Tony Award-winning theater whose mainstage work is energized and informed by a profound commitment to developing the next generation of theater artists. Under the leadership of Artistic Director Carey Perloff, A.C.T. is committed to nurturing its rich legacy while expanding its reach into new areas of dramatic literature, new artistic forms, and new communities. Central to A.C.T.'s vision is the interaction of original and classical work on the mainstage and at the heart of the A.C.T. Conservatory.

Founded in 1965 by William Ball, A.C.T. opened its first San Francisco season at the historic Geary Theater in 1967. During the past three decades, almost 300 A.C.T. productions have been performed to a combined audience of almost seven million people in Japan, Russia, and throughout the United States. In the 1970s, A.C.T. solidified its national and international reputation, winning a Tony Award for outstanding theater performance and training in 1979. Today, A.C.T.'s performance, education, and outreach programs annually reach more than 200,000 people in the Bay Area.

Since Perloff's appointment in 1992, A.C.T. has enjoyed unprecedented success with groundbreaking, innovative productions of classical works and bold explorations of contemporary playwriting. A.C.T. seeks plays that are provocative, entertaining, and complex in vision, plays that embrace the uniqueness of live performance. A.C.T. is particularly interested in theater that celebrates the richness of language, revolves around the transformative power of the actor, and invites multiple interpretations. Most importantly, A.C.T.'s goal is to create theater that engages the imagination of its audience.

From the beginning, A.C.T.'s philosophy has called for the union of superior repertory performance and intensive actor training. Its conservatory, now serving 1,400 students every year, was the first training program not affiliated with a college or university accredited to award a master of fine arts degree and is a model for the continued vitality of the art form. Danny Glover, Annette Bening, Denzel Washington, and Winona Ryder are among its distinguished former students.

The 86-year-old Geary Theater, which was damaged in the Loma Prieta earthquake of 1989, reopened in January 1996 after undergoing major renovation resulting in updated stagecraft, enhanced patron amenities, and a total seismic restructuring.

The Meaning of The Rose Tattoo
by Tennessee Williams

The Rose Tattoo is the Dionysian element in human life, its mystery, its beauty, its significance. It is that glittering quicksilver that still somehow manages to slip from under the down-pressed thumbs of the enormous man in the brass-buttoned uniform and his female partner with the pinecone and the chalky smelling black skirts that make you sneeze as she brushes disdainfully past you. It is the dissatisfaction with empiric evidence that makes the poet and mystic, for it is the lyric as well as the Bacchanic impulse, and although the goat is one of its most immemorial symbols, it must not be confused with mere sexuality. The element is higher and more distilled than that. Its purest form is probably manifested by children and birds in their rhapsodic moments of flight and play, especially during the last few minutes of pale blue summer dusk before they light on branches and before their mothers call from the doors, Come home! It is not the obedient coming home and going to bed but it is the limitless world of the dream. It is the rosa mystica, the light on the bare golden flesh of a god whose back is turned to us or whose face is covered and who flies away from us when we call Wait! and rushes past us when we try to stop him. It is the fruit of the vine that takes earth, sun, and air and distills them into juices that deprive men not of reason but of a different thing called prudence...

Finally, and incidentally, it is the desire of an artist to work in new forms, however awkwardly at first, to break down barriers of what he has done before and what others have done better before and after and to crash, perhaps fatally, into some area that the bell-harness and rope would like to forbid him.

It may seem curious that I have chosen a woman to be the main protagonist of a play on such a theme. But in the blind and frenzied...

The Other Meaning of The Rose Tattoo
by Lyle Leverich

Tennessee Williams wrote that the meaning of The Rose Tattoo was "the Dionysian element in human life, its mystery, its beauty, its significance." There was another, more intensely personal meaning. When he began work on the play in 1948, he had shortly before entered into an intimate friendship with Frank Merlo, a spirited young Sicilian-American who had served in the U.S. Navy during World War II. Their partnership would endure for nearly 14 years and prove to be the most rewarding relationship of Williams's entire life.

Although he spent most of his life in a frustrated quest for a true and enduring love, Williams's experiences with Merlo in Italy bring to The Rose Tattoo an optimism uncharacteristic of most of his work. More than two decades after the play first reached the stage, Williams wrote in his Memoirs:

The Rose Tattoo is my love-play to the world. It was permeated with the happy young love for Frankie and I dedicated the book to him, saying: "To Frankie, in Return for Sicily."

Until his death from lung cancer in 1963, Merlo—or Frankie, as he was known to most all who knew him—was companion, secretary, bookkeeper, and travel agent for the celebrity-playwright Tennessee, and lover to the private individual Tom Williams. They first met in Provincetown, Rhode Island, in the summer of 1947. "I came upon him more by plan/than accidents appear to be," wrote Williams in a poem about their initial encounter.

"Something started or something stopped/and there I was and there was he." The following September they met again (a year after the successful opening of A Streetcar Named Desire), and in December 1948 they sailed with Williams's close friend Paul Bowles for Europe. After visits to Tangier and Rome, Williams traveled with Merlo to Sicily and began writing The Rose Tattoo. Williams later said...
Mignon he was or mignonette
avec les yeux plus grands que lui.
My name for him was Little Horse.
I fear he had no name for me.

I came upon him more by plan than accidents appear to be.
Something started or something stopped and there I was and there was he.

And then it rained but Little Horse had brought along his parapher.
Petit cheval it kept quite dry till he divided it with me.

For it was late and I was lost
when Little Horse enquired of me,
What has a bark but cannot bite?
And I was right. It was a tree.

Mignon he is or mignonette
avec les yeux plus grands que lui.
My name for him is Little Horse.
I wish he had a name for me.

—from In the Winter of Cities, Poems by Tennessee Williams that he was directly influenced by the “vitality, humanity, and love of life expressed by the Italian people,” the very qualities that were characteristic of his friend.

Williams was also captivated by Merlo’s candid sense of humor.
Williams—who himself possessed an ungovernable wit punctuated at intervals by wild shrieks of laughter—was always drawn to anyone who made him laugh. In The Rose Tattoo, Williams’s first full-length comedy, he was able not only to imbue the play with marvelous passages of humor, but also to resolve what is basically a tragic situation with a Laurentian union of the sensual with the spiritual, ef-flecting a compassionate affirmation of life and love at the play’s conclusion.

OVERWHELMING DESIRE
From the age of 28, when he had his first homosexual experience (which both repelled and frightened him), Williams longed for a companion, some one friend with whom he could share his fortunes.
His was at first a platonic, homo-exotic response to a number of heterosexual friends. But after he arrived in New York in the early winter of 1940 and discovered the city’s subterranean gay culture, he was at once drawn to its sexual freedom. “I ache with desires that never are quite satisfied,” he wrote in his journal at the time. “This promiscuity is appalling really.
One-night stands.” Later, expressing his overwhelming desire for a true partner, he added:

[My emotional life has been a series of rather spectacular failures—so much so that I am becoming pretty thoroughly despondent about it.

. . . I am losing my looks alarmingly. Haggard, tired, jittery, fretful, bored—that is what lack of a recipdual horse object does to a man.

Tennessee Williams en route to Sicily via Morocco in 1948, with a Pocket
Italian under his arm.
You coming toward me—
please make haste!
J'ai soif! Je meurs de soif!
(You—You—is this you?
“Coming toward me?”)

In Provincetown a few months later, in the early summer of 1940, the “you” of Williams’s prescient poem appeared in the person of a strikingly handsome youth, Kip Kiernan. Although generally attracted to the opposite sex, for a brief time Kiernan gave in to Williams’s importunate yearning. The affair ended calamitously, with Williams crying out:

K.—dear K.—I love you with all my heart. . . .
But, oh, K.—if only—only—What is the use of such thoughts? . . . Somewhere there is another rare and beautiful stranger waiting for me. And this one, perhaps, is the one who will take what I will give. And I will stop being lonely.

It would be another seven years before Williams would discover his “rare and beautiful stranger” in the form of Frank Merlo. But Merlo was not only disposed to “take”; he also gave inordinately of himself to Williams. Their friendship developed quickly, with Merlo becoming the bulwark standing between a success that Williams described as a “catastrophe” and a world clamoring, often scheming, to exploit him. They were as close as two friends and lovers can be, but the undercurrent of Williams’s remembered loss of Kiernan was a wound that never healed. And he never stopped being lonely.

Williams’s frequent trips with Merlo to Italy—where they eventually spent several months each year—were some of the happiest and most productive times of Williams’s life. In a 1951 interview, he described for the preeminent theater critic Brooks Atkinson the effect on The Rose Tattoo of his living with and loving the Italians:

If it is a warmer and happier play than anything I’ve written it is because of that experience. I would not have missed putting these feelings into a play for anything in the world.

During his first stay in Rome with Merlo in early 1949, Williams was inspired to work on his variation of the Don Quixote tragicomic novel that he later titled Camino Real, as well as on his own first novel, The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone. But it was The Rose Tattoo that gave him the most trouble. The play underwent five drafts—first called The Eclipse of May 29, 1919 and later Eclipse of the Sun—before Williams considered it ready for production. He read and reread the script to Merlo, who was more or less a technical advisor, correcting the Italian and suggesting ways to interpret Sicilian character and mannerisms and he gave all the characters their names.

While in Rome, Williams met the great Italian actress Anna Magnani and, with her in mind, he fashioned the character of Serafina delle Rose. Magnani epitomized in her own fiery lifestyle the eventual sexual liberation and salvation of The Rose Tattoo’s Sicilian widow. In contrast to his own shyness, Williams envied Magnani’s openness and her self-assured ability to live outside society while remaining in contact with it. Because she was essentially a movie star unaccustomed to the stage and fearful that her English was inadequate, however, Magnani agreed only to appear in the film of The Rose Tattoo, in which she gave an imperishable performance that won her the 1955 Oscar.

As with the rest of his work, which is deeply personal, Williams invested much of his own personality and the people of his private life in the characters of Thomas Lanier ("Tennessee") Williams was born on March 26, 1911, in Columbus, Mississippi. The most performed—and the most autobiographical—American playwright, Williams wrote some seventy plays, fifteen film scripts, two novels (The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone [1950] and Moie and the World of Reason [1975]), and an autobiography (Memoirs [1975]), as well as scores of essays, poems, and short stories. His most famous works appeared on Broadway and in film throughout the 1940s and 1950s and number among the great classics of American theater.

His first success came with The Glass Menagerie in 1944, followed by A Streetcar Named Desire in 1947, which won the Pulitzer Prize. In 1953 Camino Real was commercially unsuccessful, but Cat on a Hot Tin Roof (1955) also won a Pulitzer Prize and was successfully filmed, as were The Rose Tattoo (Tony Award, 1951), Orpheus Descending (1957), The Night of the Iguana (1961), Suddenly, Last Summer (1958), and Sweet Bird of Youth (1959). His later, less well-known plays include THIS IS (An Entertainment) (which premiered at A.C.T. in 1975); Vieux Carré (1977), A Lovely Sunday for Grive Occar (1978–79); and Clothes for a Summer Hotel (1980).

Williams died in February 1983 in New York after apparently choking on the cap of a pill bottle.

“I discovered writing as an escape from a world of reality in which I felt acutely uncomfortable.”

—Tennessee Williams
The Rose Tattoo. Serafina grieves for her dead husband, Rosario, as Williams grieved for Kiernan. The rose, a symbol of love, is personified in Serafina’s daughter Rosa, who is in turn a representation of his beloved sister Rose Williams. And while they were in Sicily, since Merlo had proposed that Serafina’s new lover be named Alvaro Mangiacavallo (which translates into Alvaro “Eat-a-Horse”), Williams promptly dubbed him “The Little Horse,” in honor of Frankie’s handsome equine features. Less than five feet tall—shorter than Williams—Merlo had been admitted to the navy only because he was exceedingly bright.

A Bridge to the Future
Williams initially turned to Irene Selznick with the hope that she would produce The Rose Tattoo, as she had A Streetcar Named Desire in 1947. At first hesitant to send her a script, and only then if she promised not to show it to anyone else, he told her, “I am still desperately dissatisfied with it.” Selznick replied, “This is not a play but rather a libretto—far more than either, it is a ballet . . . [and] cries out to be sung, or danced, or both, in its entirety.” She went on with a lengthy critique, which in every respect failed to see anything redeeming in the work as a play worthy of production.

Williams was stung, of course, and told Selznick that either she was “dead wrong” or that he was “crazy . . . or that thing had happened which eventually happens to most lyric talents, the candle is burned or blown out and there’s no more matches!” He said that her letter had caused him a day of despair and a sleepless night, but that he had awakened early the next morning:

[I] had my coffee and sat down quietly and rationally to read over the script. Then the amazing thing came about. For the first time since this draft was completed, I liked what I had done and felt that I had done just exactly what I meant to do in all but a few short passages, that in the play, as a whole, I had said precisely what I had wanted to say as well as it could be said, and the play excited.

Williams had the encouragement not only of Merlo but also of Elia and Molly Kazan and of his agent, the redoubtable Audrey Wood. Selznick withdrew, but another remarkable producer, Cheryl Crawford, quickly stepped in to helm the production. It opened in Chicago, and the critic Claudia Cassidy, who had decisively called attention to the greatness of The Glass Menagerie in 1944, praised The Rose Tattoo and even met with Williams to offer constructive sugmal failure like Summer and Smoke, it would have been, either way, bad for me. As it is, I think it provides what is always most essential, a bridge to the future where I hope my best work still remains.

Although its reception was mixed, The Rose Tattoo was praised by Brooks Atkinson, who wrote in The New York Times that Williams had “broken the mold” and produced “the most beautifully written American play of the season... He writes like a man who is free and refreshed.” Howard Barnes said in The Herald Tribune that Williams had written “the vaulting comic-tragedy that all of us expected from him” and hailed The Rose Tattoo as the finest new play of the season, wrought “out of trips to Italy, and from [Williams’s] own flaming talent.” There were those who dismissed the play as a letdown from Williams’s previous triumphs, but The Rose Tattoo went on to receive a Tony Award, as did Stapleton, Wallach, and the production’s designer, Boris Aronson.

The rehearsals were arduous and, in his usual fashion, Williams sent the actors numerous revisions. Crawford resisted the pressures of the press for more information concerning its then unknown lead players, Maureen Stapleton and Eli Wallach—and rightly so, because they emerged triumphantly as stars and went on to long and illustrious careers. Williams later said:

’T’he production of Tattoo was a terrible drain on my energies. I was a wreck the last week in New York, but a satisfied wreck. If it had been a smash hit like Streetcar or a dis-

ASIAN ART MUSEUM
GOLDEN GATE PARK • SAN FRANCISCO
CAREY PERLOFF (Artistic Director) assumed artistic leadership of A.C.T. in June 1992. Known for directing innovative productions of classics and new works adapted from or inspired by classical works and themes, Perloff opened her first A.C.T. season with August Strindberg’s Creditors, followed by acclaimed productions of Timberlake Wertenbaker’s new translation of Sophocles’ Antigone, Anton Chekhov’s Uncle Vanya, and David Storey’s Home. Her world-premiere production of Wertenbaker’s version of Euripides’ Hecuba, with Olympia Dukakis in the title role, played to 99 percent of capacity during A.C.T.’s record-breaking 1994-95 season. Last season she directed A.C.T.’s highly successful West Coast premiere of Tom Stoppard’s Arcadia and the Geary Theater inaugural production of Shakespeare’s Tempest. This season at A.C.T. she directs The Rose Tattoo, by Tennessee Williams, and the world premiere of Singer’s Boy, by Leslie Ayvasian.

In the summer of 1993, Perloff staged the world premiere of Steve Reich and Beryl Korot’s new music-theater-video opera, The Cave, at the Vienna Festival, which was subsequently presented at the Hebbel Theater in Berlin, Royal Festival Hall in London, and Next Wave Festival at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Perloff served as artistic director of New York’s Classic Stage Company (CSC) from 1986 to 1992, where she directed the acclaimed world premiere of Ezra Pound’s version of Sophocles’ Elektra (with Pamela Reed and Nancy Marchand), the American premiere of Harold Pinter’s Mountain Language (with Jean Stapleton, David Strathairn, and Peter Riegert) on a double bill with his Birthday Party, Tony Harrison’s Phaedra Britannica, Thornton Wilder’s Skin of Our Teeth, Lynne Alvarez’s translation of Tirso de Molina’s Don Juan de Sevilla, Michael Feingold’s version of Alexandre Dumas’s Tamer of Evil, Beckett’s Happy Days (with Charlotte Rae), Brecht’s Revisable Rise of Arthuro Ui (with John Turturro), and Len Jenkins’s Candide. Under Perloff’s direction, CSC won the 1988 Obie Award for artistic excellence, as well as numerous Obies for acting, design, and production.

In Los Angeles, Perloff staged Pinter’s Collection at the Mark Taper Forum (winning a Dramalogue Award for outstanding direction) and was associate director of Steven Berkoff’s Greek (which earned the Los Angeles Drama Critics’ Circle Award for best production).

Perloff received her B.A. (Phi Beta Kappa) in classics and comparative literature from Stanford University and was a Fulbright Fellow at Oxford University. She is the proud mother of Lexie and Nicholas.

Off Broadway he produced Ibsen’s Little Eyolf (directed by Marshall W. Mason) and Shaw’s Arms and the Man. Haire joined A.C.T. in 1971 as production continued on page 36

MELISSA SMITH (Observatory Director), the master acting teacher in A.C.T.'s Advanced Training Program, has taught acting to students of all ages in many venues throughout the United States. Prior to assuming leadership of the A.C.T. Conservatory in June 1995, she was director of the program in theater and dance at Princeton University, where she taught acting, scene study, and Shakespeare for six years. Also a professional actor, she has performed off-campus for Broadway in regional theater; her credits include Sonya in Uncle Vanya, directed by Lloyd Richards at Yale Repertory Theatre and in New York, and numerous plays including the work of Mac Wellman and David Greenspan. Smith holds a B.A. in English and theater from Yale College and an M.F.A. in acting from the Yale School of Drama. She has also trained and taught at the Cambridge Patten Studio in New York.

Performance HIGHLIGHTS

On November 27, 1978, then Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk were murdered in their City Hall offices. By the end of the night, over 40,000 people were marching up Market Street, each holding a lit candle, overflowing the stretch between the Castro and City Hall. A candlelight march has been staged on that date every year since then, a memorial to Milk and his charismatic activism. This year the march will be made more poignant as the San Francisco Opera holds the curtain a half-hour for Harvey Milk, the new opera that sings the story of Milk's life and message of political and social empowerment. Co-commissioned by the SFO with Houston Grand Opera and New York City Opera, Harvey Milk gets its West Coast premiere beginning November 9.

Tennessee Williams's plays most often conjure love missed, misplaced, maimed. But Williams called The Rose Tattoo his "love-play to the world," his one script in which his characters are redeemed, rather than destroyed, by passion. Beginning October 24, American Conservatory Theater stages the Tony Award-winning play, giving Artistic Director Carey Perloff an opportunity to slip into something sumptuous. The production features Obie and Emmy Award-winning actress Kathleen Widdoes as the lusty widow Serafina.

At first he was simply the classical guitarist nonpareil, embodying the precision and technique befitting the heir apparent to guitar god Andrés Segovia. But his restless curiosity eventually led guitarist John Williams to a crossover career with musical adventures as far-flung as film scoring, classical-rock fusion, jazz, pop, and world music. On November 10, San Francisco Performances brings the multidexterous maestro to Davies Symphony Hall after a three-season absence from the Bay Area.

Frances Hodgson Burnett could hardly have guessed in 1909 that the book she was writing would become the children's story for the 1990s. The Secret Garden's charms have lately graced countless stages in the Broadway musical version; a delightful film version followed, to great acclaim. Now, Oakland Ballet tells the story in dance. The ballet, by Founding Artistic Director Ronn Guidi and set to music by the very Edwardian Sir Edward Elgar, premieres at UC Berkeley's Zellerbach Hall, November 15-17. —Peter Coply

For future San Francisco Towers resident Bernard Werth, the view from the top started with a long hard look at the bottom line.

The financial benefits weren't the first thing that attracted Bernard Werth to San Francisco Towers.

Comprehensive Life Care and a great location

The first attraction was that San Francisco Towers would be a Life Care facility. So Mr. Werth knew that both his living and medical needs would be completely taken care of. He also liked the fact that his new home promised a beautiful view of the San Francisco skyline.

But having spent an illustrious career as a senior financial officer, he was even more impressed when he viewed the bottom line.

"For me," he explained, "this is a lot better deal than buying a retirement condominium. The price is lower, so I have cash left over that will earn a good return and still be there if I want it. And my kids won't have to worry about keeping up payments while they wait for a buyer—if they can find a buyer. Plus, the part of my entrance fee that's applicable to medical—up to 30%—is deductible from my taxes. But I think the ultimate financial security is knowing the very best medical services will be available when and where I want, at no extra charge."

Reserve now, while apartment selection is still good

The net result? This former senior financial officer and his wife were so impressed they reserved a two-bedroom apartment.

So please call today to find out more about San Francisco Towers. We think you'll find that the only thing better looking than the skyline is our bottom line.

A.C.T. WELCOMES NEW MANAGING DIRECTOR HEATHER KITCHEN

A.C.T. is pleased to announce the appointment of Heather Kitchen as A.C.T.'s new managing director. Kitchen's appointment is the culmination of a year-long international search that began when Administrative Director Thomas W. Flynn announced his decision to leave the institution once the Geary Theater Campaign was concluded and a replacement could be found. As managing director, Kitchen will take over Flynn's duties, reporting to the A.C.T. Board of Trustees and assuming full responsibility for the fiscal and administrative management of the theater and conservatory. A.C.T. Board of Trustees Chairman Alan L. Stein announced the appointment on August 16, and Kitchen assumes her new position in October.

An esteemed Canadian arts administrator with an intimate knowledge of the professional theater, Kitchen has extensive experience in theater management and production. She has also served as a strategic planning consultant for arts and educational institutions and has taught management and theater courses for more than 20 years. Most recently, she served as general manager of the Citadel Theatre in Edmonton, Alberta, where she was responsible for a five-theater complex which produced up to 16 productions annually. Prior to her work at the Citadel, she was company manager for the distinguished Stratford Festival while on tour. She was also in stage management at the Festival, the Canadian Stage Company in Toronto, the Canadian Opera Company, and the New Play Centre of Vancouver. For three years, she was also production manager at Theatre New Brunswick.

"Heather's unique background in finance and management make her a perfect choice for A.C.T.," says Stein, "now that Tom Flynn has decided to move on. Tom has done a tremendous job guiding A.C.T. through the challenges of the last several years and was critical to the successful conclusion of our capital campaign. Heather's talents are precisely what the company needs, now that we are back at home in the Geary Theater, financially stable, and ready to plan for our long-term future. The combination of [A.C.T. Artistic Director] Carey Perloff's inspired artistic leadership with Heather's administrative experience forges a dynamic partnership that will successfully take A.C.T. into the next century."

Perloff looks forward to collaborating with Kitchen. "Heather comes to us at a perfect moment in our history," adds Perloff. "As we begin to explore our new life in the Geary Theater and the revitalization of our training programs, Heather's extraordinary..."
experience and energy will help ensure that our art continues to flourish. She is incredibly passionate about theater, as well as a consummate businesswoman, and she has made a lifelong commitment to the arts. Her appointment at A.C.T. will offer opportunities for growth to all of us at A.C.T., and by extension to our audience.”

Kitchen, who was born in Toronto, Canada, and currently resides in Stratford, Ontario, is a graduate of the University of Waterloo with an honors degree in drama and theater arts. She earned her M.B.A. from Canada’s leading business school, The University of Western Ontario. “I am thrilled to be joining A.C.T.” she says, “and to be moving to San Francisco. I’m committed to supporting Carey’s artistic vision and am eager to collaborate with the excellent arts organizations which thrive in the vibrant and diverse Bay Area community.”

Flan will remain with the company through October to oversee the transition period.

CONSERVING FINE ART

American Conservatory Theater is both a producing theater and a conservatory. From the company's first season in San Francisco in 1967, a passionate commitment to the ongoing training of theater artists has been a fundamental part of its philosophy. With a wide variety of programs, the A.C.T. Conservatory underscores the responsibility of mature artists to pass on what they have learned over the years to younger members of the profession.

A.C.T. was the first fully accredited independent theater in the nation to grant a master of fine arts degree to students who train within its ranks. Up to 1,400 actors take part in the conservatory's programs each year. This season, 50 students are in residence in the Advanced Training Program (ATP), the cornerstone of the conservatory (which has been restructured to add a third year of study, beginning with the class entering in September 1997); more than 1,300 others receive short-term or part-time theater education in Studio A.C.T. (a weekend and evening program) and the ten-week Summer Training Congress; while the Young Conservatory offers classes to young people from 8 to 18 years old. In addition, more than 75 ATP graduates are enrolled in the A.C.T. Master of Fine Arts Program.

Distinguished actor and educator Melissa Smith assumed leadership of the A.C.T. Conservatory in June 1995 as conservatory director and master acting teacher of the ATP. Since her arrival, she has been working with faculty and students to develop a curriculum that cultivates the inner life, as well as the technical expertise, of emerging actors.

"What most excites me about heading A.C.T.'s conservatory is the opportunity both to expand upon its long and distinguished tradition of outstanding actor training, and to guide it in new directions," says Smith. "Maintaining a link between training and performance has always been and will continue to be an integral part of A.C.T.'s mission." As A.C.T.'s mainstage seeks to develop and produce new dramatic forms, so the conservatory seeks to incorporate new techniques to prepare actors to inhabit those forms. It is imperative that actors receive training that will prepare them to be as virtuosic as the directors and designers they will be working with throughout their professional lives.

Each year hundreds of talented young actors from all over the country audition to be a part of the ATP, which is the conservatory's most rigorous offering. Each student receives intensive training in the classroom, as well as practical experience in the rehearsal and performance of full-length dramatic works, from the classical to the contemporary and beyond to the cutting edge, directed by leading members of the theatrical profession. The ATP, which leads to continued on page 50 the award of an M.F.A. degree to qualified candidates, is designed to educate and stimulate the most creative, promising young actors who will shape the future of the theatrical art form.

The recent addition of a third year to the ATP is funded by a $350,000 grant from The James Irvine Foundation. The third year will emphasize rehearsal and performance, culminating in a public performance series held in diverse locations throughout the Bay Area. Eight recent ATP graduates appear this month in the initial performance project of the revised M.F.A. program, The Reincarnation of Jamie Renn, by Lynne Alvarez, October 3–6 and 10–13 at the New College of California, at 766 Valencia Street in San Francisco. From the Conservatory to the Mainstage: A.C.T.’s 1996–97 Professional Theater Interns

A.C.T. introduces the 1996–97 Professional Theater Interns (PTIs), eight recent graduates of the conservatory’s Advanced Training Program who continue their training with professional company members on the mainstage in several productions this season. PTIs, including The Rose Tattoo’s Michael DeGood, Shirley Roccia, and Steven Bailey, are selected each year in accordance with the casting needs of the upcoming season’s plays and earn membership in the Actors’ Equity Association union as paid performers.

The season-long apprenticeship, with its packed rehearsal and performance schedules, is a lesson in the exhilarating and hectic life of the professional actor. PTIs meet regularly with members of the A.C.T. artistic staff and conservatory faculty, who guide their transition into the company and work with them on various aspects of their artistic development.

All PTIs are sponsored through fellowships. For information about sponsorship opportunities, contact the A.C.T. Development Department at (415) 439-2453.

FROM THE CLASSROOM TO THE THEATER: A CREATIVE COLLABORATION

by Jessica Werner

Since her appointment as director of the A.C.T. Conservatory in 1995, Melissa Smith has worked with A.C.T. Artistic Director Carey Perloff to revitalize the relationship between the two primary facets of A.C.T.: the producing wing of the organization, which each year mounts a season of plays on A.C.T.'s mainstage in the Geary Theater, and the conservatory, which trains the next generation of theater actors. Central to this creative partnership is the belief that each branch of A.C.T. is a resource for the other, providing a diverse pool of artists, teachers, and students who, working and learning together, nurture the aesthetic life of the institution as a whole.

EXPERIMENTING WITH NEW WORK

In addition to offering first-class training to almost 1,400 students each year, the conservatory has become a forum for the development of new dramatic work, as well as a testing ground for plays under consideration for future production in the Geary. The Young Conservatory's New Plays Program is nationally renowned for commissioning and performing ground-breaking new writing for young people, while Advanced Training Program (ATP) students have become increasingly involved in workshops and performances of new plays by writers with whom A.C.T. hopes to establish an enduring connection.

"The conservatory is, in part, the research and development branch of the institution," says Perloff. "It offers us a kind of laboratory for experimenting with new art forms. It is a unique venue in which scripts can be brought to life--in dramatic readings, workshops, and studio performances--providing everyone at A.C.T. with opportunities to explore unfamiliar plays and playwrights before committing extensive resources to a mainstage production."

A studio production last spring by first-year ATP students of Sophie Treadwell's expressionistic thriller Machinal, for example, inspired Perloff to invite director Laird Williamson to helm a mainstage production of the play, which opens at the Geary Theater in February.

"Especially for an expressionistic play like Machinal," observes Smith, "which is enigmatic on the page, a student performance provides a viable way to explore somewhat risky work. Students also benefit by developing a sense of the larger direction A.C.T. is taking as a producing organization, so that they feel more in touch with the larger institution of which they are an integral part." Conservatory readings of plays under consideration for mainstage production also provide students with the skills they will need to approach auditions and cold readings with confidence in the future.

The ATP also devises student production schedules that encourage an artistic dialogue with A.C.T.'s mainstage repertory. Last season during The Cherry Orchard, for example, the ATP presented a series of Russian classics. Next spring, as an artistic parallel to Machinal and Singer's Boy, by Leslie Ayvazian, the ATP will showcase works by contemporary women playwrights.

While A.C.T. mainstage and visiting actors have always been encouraged to share their knowledge with students, efforts have been made in recent seasons to bring the full range of theater artistry into the classroom. To foster efficient coordination of the increasingly complex interaction of the artistic and conservatory wings of A.C.T., particularly with respect to the development of new work, former Artistic & Literary Associate Larry Bieterman has been transferred to the newly created position of associate conservatory director. Renowned scenic designer Ley Arceas, who will design this season's Singer's Boy, brings his extensive regional and Broadway theater experience to his work in the ATP. Last year he directed Len Jenkin's avant-garde Dark Ride as part of the ATP's New Forms series, and this year he will direct two more ATP productions. A.C.T. Associate Artist Albert Takazauckas--who will direct The Royal Family next spring-- of triumph, disappointment, separation, and Williams's paranoid, jealous suspicions.

At the last, Tennessee and his Little Horse were together. When Williams learned that Merlo had been diagnosed with an inoperable cancer, he burst into tears, reminded that his first real love, Kip Kiernan, had died of a brain tumor at age 26. Williams wrote:

You know how love bursts back into your heart when you hear of the loved one's dying . . . What I didn't know was that I was as much in love with Frankie all that difficult time of the early sixties as I had ever been before . . . . As long as Frank was well, I was happy. He had a gift for creating life and, when he ceased to be alive, I couldn't create a life for myself.

Williams told Paul Bigelow, "I think my place is alone with Frank till things work out whichever way they are going to. He's one of the few I've loved deeply." Williams spent the final days at his friend's hospital bedside.

At 11:05 p.m. on September 20, 1963, in his 41st year, Frank Phillip Merlo died. A light went out in Tennessee Williams's world that would never shine again with the brightness of the life they had shared together.

Lyle Leverich is the author of "Tom: The Unknown Tennessee Williams (Crown Publishers). He will speak at A.C.T. Perspectives: "The Rose Tattoo and the Complex Legacy of Tennessee Williams," 7-9 p.m., November 18, at the Geary Theater.
Steven W. Bailey (The Salesman) is a 1996 graduate of the A.C.T. Advanced Training Program and recipient of the Hewlett Foundation Professional Theater Intern Fellowship. A.C.T. studio roles included Pyotr Suslov in Summerfolk, Michael Rowen in The Kentucky Cycle, and Friar Lawrence in Romeo and Juliet. This summer he performed with the Utah Shakespearean Festival as Bardolph in Henry IV, Part 1, Angelo in The Comedy of Errors, and Old Siward in Macbeth. Other credits include Charley's Aunt, Noises Off, Janis, A Man for All Seasons, and Woof! the Psychic Dog. Bailey has appeared in several commercials and independent films, and in the CD-ROM game Phantasmagoria.

Marco Barricelli (Alvaro Mangoianello) has worked with many theater companies across the country and makes his A.C.T. debut in The Rose Tattoo.
