The Gold Card® presents your annual report.

The Gold Card® Year-End Summary of Charges from American Express.

With the addition of the Year-End Summary, the Gold Card just may be the simplest, most impressive way to put your life in order.

It's a comprehensive, chronological account of your yearly billed Gold Card transactions by category and location. Telling you where you spent it, how you used it, when you used it, and what you spent. Which can be helpful in separating your business and personal expenses for tax purposes.

In addition, the Gold Card offers a wide variety of other benefits. It may include a personal line of credit, cash access services, and worldwide travel advantages.

And there's also the convenience of American Express® ENVOY. A personalized travel agency available 24 hours a day through a toll-free number. All of which makes the Gold Card a much sought-after privilege.

London Report
by Michael Ratcliffe

The more or less permanent crisis over the funding of the arts in Britain boiled over acrimoniously this summer as soon as the General Election was safely out of the way. Richard Luce, the Minister for the Arts, who disastrously combines a talent for bullying and provocation with a lack of any power base in Westminster or Whitehall — he is not a member of the Cabinet — made a "key-note" speech implying (implication is his style, which means that nobody is ever quite sure whether he means what he appears to have said) that there would be no further increases in state subsidy of the arts, unless arts organizations started to raise more money from commercial sponsorship by themselves. Then the Government might match it with monies of its own. This is called “incentive” funding. What the Minister forgot to mention was that the modest Government fund set aside for this purpose was already exhausted. Also that tax-inducements to sponsors, in the American tradition, do not exist here.

Worse, much worse, than the self-contradictory nature of his economic arguments was the philistine nature of his tone. He intimated that people in the arts were conning a public increasingly indifferent to their work. (There is no evidence for this, by the way.) He went on to suggest that theatres should produce more “popular” work; the subtext of this was that only “popular” work would attract sponsors and that only sponsorship would attract extra funding from the Government. Or would, that is to say, if the money were available. A culture of safe bets is a long way off, but for the first time the consequences of disobedience were set before us. The more you complain publicly and embarrass the Government, the less money you will get.

Shortly after this, Sir Kenneth Cork, former Chairman of the RSC and head of the recent Government-inspired enquiry into the state of the theatre throughout Britain, which revealed disastrous and self-destructive under-investment outside...

tural politician in the British theatre, and the only one of its leaders with the guts to speak out against the Government’s betrayal of its own ideas. Hall, too, never tires of repeating what the philistines in Government and the Press choose to gight: it is only through the last 40 years of public funding of the arts for the enjoyment of all that they quality, diversity and exportability stand as high as they do today.
Hall’s National Theatre has itself been transformed in the last two years after it became likely that no Thatcher Government would come to its aid as long as he remained in charge (he goes in September 1988, retaining his links with Glyndebourne Opera and starting his own West End/Broadway enterprise at the Theatre Royal, Haymarket). For the first time, and years after the RSC led the way, the NT has effected a stream of successful transfers from the South Bank to the West End:
whether Alan Ayckbourn, Neil Simon or George Abbot are collective cause for congratulation when the National fails so horribly with Congreve, Pirandello and Turgenev is another problem, and one that is not going to go away.
The NT’s repertoire has always been more catholic, flexible and opportunist, than the RSCs. The latter’s earnest pursuit of old obsessions which may have earned a rest has now landed us with a complete retrospective of the theatre of Jean Genet, who died this year, beginning with a dull, witless and sexless exhuatation of The Balcony, directed by the company’s Artistic Director, Terry Hands.
The spectacle of people failing to do what they say they are doing occurs in great theatre companies as well as in government. The RSCs self-proclaimed mission is to “deliver the text,” without fuss, of playwrights from Shakespeare to the author of the Chenobyl play, Sarcophagus. But except in the current Titus Andronicus and Merchant of Venice, which I wrote about in August, delivering the tural politician in the British theatre, and the only one of its leaders with the guts to speak out against the Government's betrayal of its own ideas. Hall, too, never tires of repeating what the philistines in Government and the Press choose to ignore: it is only through the last 40 years of public funding of the arts for the enjoyment of all that their quality, diversity and exportability stand as high as they do today.

The spectacle of people failing to do what they say they are doing occurs in great theatre companies as well as in government. The RSCs self-proclaimed mission is to "deliver the text," without fuss, of playwrights from Shakespeare to the author of the Chernobyl play, Sarcopagus. But except in the current Titus Andronicus and Merchant of Venice, which I wrote about in August, delivering the test of classic plays is precisely what they are currently failing to do. The new Twelfth Night at Stratford exemplifies the problem perfectly: Antony Sher's violent, hysterical and psychotically unfunny Malvolio is a selfish star performance which bears little relation to the rest of the show or the other performers. A handsome Greek island setting is rarely used; Aguecheek and Olivia excepted, the delivery of the text is devoid of any special intelligence or insight.

At the start of July, the RSC staged no fewer than six openings in ten days. I saw four: Twelfth Night; The Balcony; Indigo, an excessively poetical but talented piece about the Liverpool slave trade by a young writer named Heidi Thomas -- the kind of commitment the company should continue to make; and They Shoot Horses, Don't They?, a ponderous, thin and rambling three-hour adaptation with some of Horace McCoy's novel embellished with songs, like Miller's American Clock.

Of the two shows I did not see -- Marlowe's Jew of Malta and Ostrovsky's...

Storm — the first was, on the whole, well-received; the second, on the whole, not. None of the six was declared an undisputed hit and carried the réclame of the special occasion. They were simply the latest six productions of the RSC. Critics, of course, are not the public, and RSC audiences support or reject RSC productions as they please — some of the best-reviewed cannot sell out the Mermaid or even the Barbican’s tiny Pit; some of the company’s most meretricious Shakespearian work, on the other hand, packs out the main house.

One of the most depressing things about the RSC at present is that the government’s aggressive blundering forces them into underfunded overproduction, attempts to divide the national companies from each other, and creates a situation whereby to criticize the four large companies — National, English National, Royal Opera and RSC — is considered unpatriotic. Yet it must be clear to everyone now that only the best and most adventurous work should be defended and that art for art’s sake will no longer do.

The RSC’s financial crisis — a deficit of £1.1 million on the 1986 London season — came to a head in July, and has been eased in the short term by a spectacular commercial sponsorship for that amount from the Royal Insurance group. I say “eased in the short term” because the sum is to be spread over three years and is conditional upon the RSC touring the large regional centers (where Royal Insurance interests are substantial). This development is very overdue, but it is wholly in line with the government’s supposed policy of reviving the depressed manufacturing centers. So why are they not funding it themselves? It may seem clever to have commercial interest paying for the implementation of government policy, but the cleverness could backfire on everyone if the sponsor discovers, after all, that Thatcher has no plan to release.

To those who regard R t # 1 as a playground, the description "GT" means a car with an engine, drivetrain and suspension that are up to the task of flattening out the hills and straightening out the curves.

Such a car is the Beretta GT, available with all the niceties such as a 2.8 liter fuel injected V6, 5-speed gearbox, Delco shocks, stabilizer bars front and rear. All wrapped up in a wind-cheering coupe. Just the package for the sporty set, right?

But, what if you're like most of us and need a four-door sedan? Doesn't owning a four-door sedan automatically put you in the dull and boring category? Chevrolet doesn't think so. That's why there is Corsica LT. A four-door sedan with all the elements necessary to make driving anywhere a GT experience. Touring Grand. If you will.

Corsica can be ordered with the same available V6 2.8 liter motor as the Beretta and a sport suspension system. Everything is there except the sleek coupe body. Instead, you get a sleek 4-door body with a drag coefficient lower than a Ferrari Testarossa.

So, there you have it. A true GT sports coupe and a sedan for grand touring. From your Chevy dealer.

From Chevrolet.

Let's get it together. Buckle up.
See your Chevrolet dealer for terms and conditions of the limited powertrain warranty.

A NOTE FROM THE ARTISTIC DIRECTOR

Dear Friend:

Welcome to our twenty-second season in San Francisco. This year, for the first time since 1983, we are presenting the first two productions in rotating repertory and continuing a repertory policy throughout most of the season, so that two, or even three, different productions are available in any given week.

The concept of repertory is an important component of our work for several reasons. For one thing it offers creative challenges to our actors, designers and backstage personnel. Instead of playing a single role eight times a week, A.C.T. actors play or rehearse two or three, and the contrast tends to sharpen, refine and intensify the actor’s work in each part.

Our scenic designers have a different kind of challenge: to create full-scale settings for classic and contemporary plays constructed so that one can be dismantled and another assembled—both in the space of an hour or an hour and a half, sometimes between a matinee and an evening performance.

There are other benefits to repertory, too. Because productions are presented only three or four times a week, the run of each play is extended, giving it more time to find its audience as word of mouth builds in the community. A blockbuster comedy playing several performances a week can help support a less immediately popular but worthy drama that may be scheduled only once or twice in the same week.

In a less tangible sense, a repertory format adds a special kind of vitality, variety and energy to a theatre company. The constant change and renewal is invigorating to the artists and offers a vivid indication of a company’s scope and depth as it alternates between, say, The Seagull, Ma Rainey’s Black Bottom and The Real Thing within a few days, as we did last year.

We are proud to present William Shakespeare’s King Lear and Sam Shepard’s A Lie of the Mind as our opening productions. We hope they signal the beginning of a season rich in entertainment and illumination. Thank you for being with us.

Cordially,

Edward Hastings

PORTMAN PROVES FRIEND TO THE ARTS

A.C.T.'s newest neighbor in the Theatre District is right at home in its artistic surroundings. The new Portman Hotel at the corner of Mason and Post Streets appears to be a 330-room gallery of art — from the 18' by 18' bronze sculpture at the motor entrance to the antique Japanese screen in the rooftop club. In fact, Managing Director Patrick Mere estimates that $675,000 of the hotel's opening budget went toward artwork, primarily the work of Bay Area artists.

And in an unprecedented good neighbor gesture for the San Francisco Arts Commission, John Portman, architect and developer of the hotel that bears his name, donated $10,000 to a 96-page catalog of the city's publicly-owned art.

For A.C.T., The Portman generously agreed to host the Season Gala on October 17, 1987, featuring a lavish dinner and cast party. The hotel has also provided luxury accommodations for a host of illustrious A.C.T. alumni attending the Gala, including Marsha Mason, Harry Hamlin, Richard Dysart and Laurence Luckinbill. Season Gala Chairman Erika Hills has deemed the hotel "the best thing to happen to San Francisco since the arrival of A.C.T."

A.C.T. donors of the Williams, Shakespeare and Sophocles Circles will be receiving a special benefit this season — complimentary parking at The Portman for each of their subscription performances — in recognition of their support to A.C.T.

The entire A.C.T. company wishes to salute the generosity and good will of The Portman. The hotel's loyalty to the arts community is most welcome.

SIMPSON PAPER SPONSORS "LEAR"

Simpson Paper Company has helped A.C.T. get our season and our 1987-88 fund raising campaign off to a great start by making a generous grant to underwrite King Lear through the Simpson Fund, a corporate foundation. A longtime supporter of the theatre, the corporation also distinguished itself last season by co-sponsoring A.C.T.'s acclaimed production of The Doctor's Dilemma.

Headed by President John Fannon, Simpson Paper Company is a major producer of high quality coated, printing, writing and technical papers. Taking an active approach to corporate philanthropy, Simpson Paper Company has a strong interest in promoting the quality of life in all its community. The policy has led the company to play a leadership role in supporting the arts in San Francisco, their corporate headquarters.

"We're well aware of the role that a company such as ours should play in the life of the city," said Fannon. "We're proud to maintain a strong commitment to the arts in San Francisco — and our support of A.C.T. throughout the past decade is a result of that ongoing effort."

"We view A.C.T. as a unique organization making a valuable contribution to the community," noted Fannon, "and, in that sense, the theatre shares common goals with Simpson Paper. We're very pleased to support A.C.T.'s artistic goals and ambitions by underwriting this production."

A.C.T. is proud to include Simpson Paper Company among our growing list of corporate donors, and to offer our sincere thanks for its outstanding support of King Lear.

WHO'S WHO AT A.C.T.

Joseph Bird is now in his 18th season with A.C.T. Educated at Peconic State College and having studied with Lee Strasberg, he became a featured actor in Ellis Rabb's AP-A Phoenix Repertory Company of New York. Mr. Bird spent much of his career performing on Broadway, at the San Diego Shakespeare Festival's Old Globe and in numerous East Coast summer stock productions. His A.C.T. credits include Paradise Lost, Peer Gynt, The Merchant of Venice, Tristessas, Ah, Wilderness!, Much Ado About Nothing, Richard II, The Three Sisters, A Christmas Carol, A Midsummer Night's Dream and The Lady's Not for Burning. Mr. Bird has also appeared on Broadway in The Shoehorn Off with Helen Hayes and in Hamlet with Ellis Rabb.

Richard Butterfield begins his second season at A.C.T. with the role of Edgar in King Lear. Last year he appeared as the Soldier in Sunday in the Park with George, Billy in The Real Thing, Young Scrooge in A Christmas Carol and, among other roles, a drag queen in Passion in Hell, for which his much lovelier wife and four sisters chided him considerably. Mr. Butterfield has worked in the Bay Area with the San Jose Repertory Company, Berkeley Shakespeare Festival, Berkeley Jewish Theatre and Theatreworks of Palo Alto, where he portrayed Franklin Sheppard in Sandebern's Merrily We Roll Along. Among his other credits are Freddie in Good, directed by Julian Lopez-Morillas, Navarre in Love's Labour's Lost, Francis Flute in A Midsummer Night's Dream and Catesby in Richard III with Dakin Matthews. Mr. Butterfield also teaches in the Conservatory and Young Conservatory Programs and will be seen later this season in Diamond Lil and The Birds.

Nancy Carolin, a graduate of the Advanced Training Program, returns to A.C.T. for her third season following appearances last year as Jennifer Dubedat in The Doctor's Dilemma.

Her directing credits include The House of Bernarda Alba, The Lady’s Not For Burning and The Doctor’s Dilemma at A.C.T. in addition to productions at the Berkeley Stage Company, Seattle’s A Contemporary Theatre, the Oregon Shakespearean Festival and the San Jose Repertory Company. She is a member of the board of trustees of the Berkeley Jewish Theatre.

MEGAN COLE returns to A.C.T. after an eleven year hiatus, having been with the company for the 1973-74 seasons, when she appeared in such roles as Yarva in The Cherry Orchard, Queen Elizabeth in Richard III, Mistress Fage in The Merry Wives of Windsor and Abbie in Desire Under the Elms. Since that time she has performed in theatres from coast to coast, including the Hudson Guild in New York City, McCarter Theatre in Princeton, Center Stage in Baltimore, Intiman Theatre in Seattle, Alaska Rep, Oregon Shakespearean Festival, Seattle Rep and South Coast Rep. In 1984, she won the Los Angeles Drama Critics Circle Award for her portrayal of the Widow Quinn in Pinter’s The Western World, and in 1981 was the only American to ever join the Royal Shakespeare Company’s tour of American universities. She has twice appeared as the Narrator in Bernstein’s Kaddish Symphony. Miss Cole tours with her one-woman show and teaches acting and period dance at both Cornish College of the Arts in Seattle and the University of Washington.

PAUL COOLBIRTH makes his professional debut at A.C.T. in King Lear. A graduate of A.C.T.’s Advanced Training Program and former member of Santa Maria’s P.C.P.A., Mr. Coolbirth appeared in, among other roles, the Allen Fletcher production of The Unnatural Mally Brown as Christmas Morgan, the acclaimed Ide’s Delight as Quillery and Macbeth as Ross, in addition to Donovan Masley’s Billy Budd as the Darsker. In San Francisco, Mr. Coolbirth’s most recent credits are Atticus in Edward Hastings’ To Kill A Mockingbird and Davies in John Wilk’s production of The Caretaker.

RON McFARLAND is a founding member of Composers Inc., a group of five Bay Area composers dedicated to the performance of new American music. His interest in recent years has been to write toward opera and musical theatre. Before the success of his three act opera, The Donor Party, Mr. McFarland was known primarily as a composer of songs and instrumental music. His opera, Song of Pygmae, was staged in 1985 on the In Performance series at Forest Meadows. San Rafael and was a finalist in the New York University American Opera Competition in the spring of that year. A piano student of the late Ethel Levitskya and Ivar Nadas, Mr. McFarland studied composition with Arnold Schoenberg. He maintains a studio in Tiburon, where he divides his time between teaching and composition.

J. STEVEN WHITE has been with A.C.T. for eleven seasons in a variety of capacities, including as an actor, teacher, choreographer, adminis- trator and director. He traveled with A.C.T. for lighting for the Los Angeles Theatre Center A.C.T. production of Ma Rainey’s Black Bottom and the New York premiere of Charles Dickens’ Hard Times. His work has been seen at Berkeley Shakespeare Festival, the Fringe Festival in Edinburgh, Scotland, and at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. In 1986 he joined the A.C.T. Associate Artist Group to observe lighting designers in New York City. Currently on the faculty of California State University, Fullerton, he is also a MFA in theatre technology from UCLA.

ALICE ELLIOTT SMITH (Stage Manager) began her career at A.C.T. as a stage management intern. Now in her fifth season, she has been the company’s master scheduler, production coordinator of Plays-In-Progress, director of staged readings, and the lead production assistant for the Troubadour program, director of the studio production Aft, Wilderness! and co-director of Mornings at Seven and Picnic. Last season she was the stage manager for Sugar in Business With No Tel, Really True, Little Me, Waiting Happy, Harald VII, Misalliance, James Earl Jones’ Othello, Doubles and the national company of King Lear in the Rain. In addition to his work in theatre, he has designed for the New York City Opera, New York City Ballet and the New York Pro Musica Antiqua. He received Tony nominations for the sets and costumes for Harald VII and for producing High Spirits, the musical version of Noel Coward’s Blithe Spirit. An Emmy Award-winner as well as a film veteran — his film credits include all four of the Star Trek movies from Paramount and The Last Starfighter from Lorimar — Mr. Fletcher’s design for A.C.T. include The Teming of the Shrimp, Cynara de Bergenza, The Circle, The Matchmaker, The Real Thing, Seagull and Faustus in Hell. With collaborator Eric Drew Feldman, Mr. LeGrand has written award-winning scores for The Lady’s Not for Rent at A.C.T., The Teeth of Crime at Berkeley Rep and Fem at the Eureka Theatre.

JAMES HAIRe (Production Director) began his career on stage in the 1980’s with the famed Eva Le Gallienne’s National Repertory Theatre. Among the productions he stage managed were the Off-Broadway runs ofVous en Faites des Oeufs and the previous season’s The Lady’s Not for Rent, for which he received a Critics Choice award. Their musical work has been heard in other Bay Area venues, most notably the Berkeley Rep in the Musical Theatre Christmas Party, The Broadway Birthday and The Eureka Theatre in Fem and A Narrow Bed. They have been honored twice by the Academy of Arts Alliances and have been nominated for the Drama Desk Award in The Eureka Theatre in Fem and A Narrow Bed. They have been honored twice by the Academy of Arts Alliances and have been nominated for the Drama Desk Award in The Eureka Theatre in Fem and A Narrow Bed.

DUNCAN W. GRAHAM (Stage Manager) is very happy to return to A.C.T. for his third season as an assistant stage manager. Prior to A.C.T. he stage managed for San Jose Repertory Company, Sunnyvale Summer Repertory Festival, Redwood High School and was production stage manager and lighting designer. Last summer, Mr. Graham was production manager for the Montgomery Arts Alliance Festival at Foothill College.

BRUCE ELSPEGER (Stage Manager) joins A.C.T. for the first time this season. He has been the Production Stage Manager at the Intiman Theatre in Seattle for the past three years, in addition to serving as Production Manager with the Baltimore Theatre in Seattle. He also directed the Intiman Theatre acting internship program of A Streetcar Named Desire during his first season, and independently produced and directed various productions in Seattle. He served as stage manager and production stage manager with PCPA/Thespians in Bolinas, California, and Santa Maria prior to moving to Seattle. He studied in London, graduated from Drake University and worked with the Children’s Theatre in Istanbul, Turkey as an art therapist in the Des Moines, Iowa schools.
created sets for the original production and the revival of Shrek and Billy and the productions of Wild Indian and Ventures, for which she received a Drama-Logue award. Her work as a scenic artist has been seen at A Com- pany ofWomen and the Intiman Theatre in Seattle, and the Oregon Shakespearean Festival and at A.C.T. among others, and she recently created a set of sixty murals with long-time collaborator Wayne R. Olds for the Show- Boat Hotel in Atlantic City. A graduate of San Francisco State University, Miss Meister has also studied at Carnegie Mellon University and the High School of the Performing Arts in New York City.

ROBERT FLETCHER (Costumes) was one of the four founding directors of the famous Brattle Theatre Company in Cambridge, Mass- achusetts. He has directed at least 25 New York productions, and his first season started in the fall of 1947, making this year his fortieth anniver- sary in professional theatre, film and television. He is the director of the director-producer, set designer or costume designer in every area of entertainment from grand opera to night clubs, sometimes combining two or more of those offices at one time. He has designed either sets or costumes or both for two dozen Broadway shows, in New York. Private Lives, Private Lives, Re- tailingly Treating, Little Me, Walking Happy, Hadrain VII, Misadventure, James Earl Jones' Othello, Doubles and the national company of Bette in the Rain. In addition to his work in theatre, he has designed for the New York City Opera, New York City Ballet and the New York Pro Musica Antiqua. He received Tony nomi- nations for his set and costumes for Hadrain VII and for producing High Spirits, the musical version of Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit. An Emmy Award-winner as well as a film veteran — his film credits include all four of the Star Trek movies from Paramount and The Last Star- fighter from Lorimar — Mr. Fletcher's design for a.C.T. include The Taming of the Shrew, Cyrano de Bergerac, The Circle, The Matchmaker, The Real Thing and Seagull. Earlier, he has designed both sets and costumes for the major revival of the musical She Loves Me at the Little Theatre in Los Angeles. Kent marks his twenty-third association with A.C.T.

BEAVER D. BAUER (Costumes) returns to the company after designing costumes for last season's The Flying Light Bulb. She has worked extensively as a designer at the Berke- ley Repertory Theatre, Magic Theatre, Eureka Theatre, Lamplighters' Musical Theatre, and the San Francisco Shakespeare festival. Since 1972, she has worked in all capacities for the Angels of Light, a cabaret and theatre troupe specializing in fantastic, outrageous and magical performances. Completely self-taught in all aspects of the field, she is one of the Angels of Light productions Holy Cow, Hotel of Follies and the 1983 production True Tales of Hollywood Horror.

DEREK DUARTE (Lighting) returns to A.C.T. for his second season as lighting designer. Prior to his return, he has designed eight productions last season, including The Real Thing and Sunday in the Park with George, Old Hats, Mr. Rainey's Black Bottom, a Christmas Carol, Mourn- ing Becomes Electric, and All My Sons at A.C.T. and the lighting for the Los Angeles Theatre Center. A.C.T. production of Mr. Rainey's Black Bottom and the New York premiere of Charles Dickens' Hard Times. His work has been seen at Berkeley Shakespeare Festival, the fringe Festival in Edinburgh, Scotland, and at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. In 1986 he joined the staff of the A.C.T. Group to observe lighting designers in New York City. Currently on the faculty of Chichester University in England, he received a MFA in theatre technology from UCLA.

STEPHEN LEGRAND (Sound) rejoins A.C.T. for his second season as sound designer and composer. His work last year included sound for Six Characters in Search of an Author, Private Lives, Private Lives, Retailingly Treating, Little Me, Walking Happy, Hadrain VII, Misadventure, James Earl Jones' Othello, Doubles and the national company of Bette in the Rain. In addition to his work in theatre, he has designed for the New York City Opera, New York City Ballet and the New York Pro Musica Antiqua. He received Tony nomi- nations for his set and costumes for Hadrain VII and for producing High Spirits, the musical version of Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit. Earlier, he has designed both sets and costumes for the major revival of the musical She Loves Me at the Little Theatre in Los Angeles. Kent marks his twenty-third association with A.C.T.

BRENNER, LEGRAND & ERIC DREW FELDMAN (Music, Libretto of the Mind) returns to A.C.T. with their fourth production, the Broadway show's debut and the previous season's The Lady's Not For Burning, for which they received the 1983 Critics Choice Award. Their music work has been heard in other Bay Area venues, most notable the Berkeley Rep in The Bedazzled, the Birthday Party and The Eureka Theatre in Fm and A Narrow Bed. They have been honed twice in the theatre circuit, including their acclaimed dinner show Drink the Water with Sam Levent and Vivian Blaine. Mr. Haire joined the American Conservatory Theatre as a Production Stage Manager and in this capacity has managed more than one hundred productions as well as taking the company on numerous regional, national and international tours, including those to the Soviet Union in 1976 and Japan in 1978.

EUGENE BARCONE (Stage Manager) is a charter member of A.C.T. Mr. Barcione has directed the Pilkend-Prager Program and worked on the televised adaptations of Cyrano de Bergerac, The Taming of the Shrew and A Christmas Carol. He has worked on more than 70 productions at A.C.T.

KAREN VAN ZANDT (Production Stage Manage- ger), now in her ninth season as A.C.T. has stage managed company's productions of The Caine Mutiny in the Park with George, The Real Thing, Mr. Rainey's Black Bottom, A Christmas Carol, Mourn- ing Becomes Electric and Angels of Light. She has also worked at the Marine's Memorial Theatre as Production Stage Manager for The Caucasian Chalk Circle, and as Lighting Director and Technical Director for the Intiman Theatre. Director’s Notes
(To the actors before the first reading of the play)

We are all so lucky to be doing this very fine play.
An American Romance Epic. Romance. Not romantic. La Romance de la Rose. The quest of two estranged lovers for reunion. Epic — the sweep of the vision across the Western states of America.

destroying the House of Troy. Venus in head bandage and Mars in a leather flyer’s jacket continue to love and hate with the same intensity.

The American tradition of the lone figure in the vast landscape, as in the early Western plays: Arizona, The Great Divide, The Girl of the Golden West.

The tradition of incest and family decay that started with The Oresteia.
All of these coaxed in the present. Not Troy or Carthage, but California and Montana. Not the Montagues and Capulets, but the Oakies and the ranchers. Not Orpheus and Eurydice, but a semi-literate couple, an ex-con and a would-be actress.

The ghost play (not for the first time: see Buried Child and Fool for Love). The dead father in Mexico. The dead mother in Montana. At the top of the play, Beth has just returned from the dead. Jake believes Beth is still dead. Beth says, “He killed us both.”

The restating of legend and myth in one’s own time and speech. A continuation of O’Neill in Mourning Becomes Electra and Tennessee Williams in Orpheus Descending. But Shepard goes further than these primitive experiments in blending classical mythology and contemporary life. The Cowboy covers his tracks better. He is less self-conscious, less pretentious. Cain and Abel, or True West. Sigmund and Sieglinde running from Woinar, or Fool for Love.

I want to give A Lie of the Mind as much space as I can; to physicalize its epic proportions.

First and last, the play is haunted by the terrible power of the past which is purged by fire and ritual: flame and flag.

— Albert Takazaukcas

There are many traditional strands woven into the fabric of this play. In the classic tradition: the feuding families — “In fair Venus where we lay our scene . . .” and . . .

“Ah, the Hatfields and McCoys,
They were feuds’ mountain boys . . .”

Layers of mythology — Orpheus brings Eurydice back from the dead. The burning and destruction of the family house. The ritual of fire to purge the past. Oedipus killing his father in Mexico and “marrying” his mother Lorraine. Menelaus getting fair Helen back and ACT 8

Sam Shepard:
Playwright, Actor, Son

by Jonathan Marks

Sam Shepard Rogers VI died in a car crash in New Mexico. A combat bomber pilot who had seen action in World War II, he became a dirt farmer in southern California. For his amusement he drank, played Disneyland jazz, and -- secretly -- wrote. He was no good at farming. He wasn't much good at drinking, either, but he was thorough.

He gave his son his name, and taught him to play the drums. When the seventh Sam Shepard Rogers was 19, in 1962, the two had a bitter fight. Young Sam left, and soon announced his name. He became Steve Rogers, and then Sam Shepard.

His father had wanted him to be a veterinarian. He had spent a bit of time studying agriculture at San Antonio Junior College. He had experience as a sheep shearer, orange picker, and (in his words) as “tornado remover and hot walker” at Santa Anita Race Track. From these experiences he forged a new career: acting.

After a brief tour with a small troupe, the Bishop's Company Repertory Players, he moved to Greenwich Village, and entered an entirely new scene. Acting jobs were scarce, so he made his money as a busboy and waiter, and picked up gigs drumming in jazz and rock combos. He was surrounded by cockroaches, drugs, and women. He started to write.

He wrote fast, like an action painter. He didn't rewrite, he didn't bother much with endings. "You get a certain spontaneous cranky thing if you write real fast," he said in 1969. "You don't get anything heavy unless you spend real time." As fast as he wrote them, they were produced: five plays in 1964, three the next, and the next: "Cowboys, Chicago, Earnest's Mother, 4-H Club, La Turista, Vermin and the Navigator, Operation Sidewinder, Mail Dog Blues, Cowboy Mouth, Back Boy Beast Bait, The Tooth of Crime, Sometimes one of his combos (which bore such names as Lobar and the Hand People or the Holy Modal Rounders) accompanied the performances, with Shepard on drums. Sometimes he acted in his own plays. Very early on he was hailed as one of the leading figures in the revitalization of American playwriting, but he has never been accepted in the traditional marketplace of the commercial theatre. To this day, he has never had a play on Broadway, but his honors have been pro-

golden Palm Award of the Cannes Festival for his screenplays Paris, Texas, and Rockefellers, Guggenheim, and Yale/ABC Fellowships. For a number of years he was playwright-in-residence at the Mark T. Shear in San Francisco. Last year he was admitted to the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

He no longer writes in a white heat; he works carefully, spending "real time" on his life's work: reforging the myth of America. Recent plays such as "Angel City" and "True West, Curse of the Starving Class," and "A Lie of the Mind" have revealed that Shepard has been able to inform the innovative fire and spark of his earliest plays with a mature craftsman's hand.

In recent years, Sam Shepard has gained enormous celebrity as a film actor, in Days of Heaven, Resurrection, Frances, The Right Stuff, and the video version of his own play Fool for Love, among others.

I didn’t go out of my way to get into this movie stuff. I essentially think of myself as a writer. But there’s no reason why you can’t be many different things.”

Samuel Shepard Rogers VII is, essentially, a writer. But he is also an actor, and understands the stage from inside out — an important factor contributing to the stageworthiness of his writing.

Samuel Shepard Rogers VI, while he lived, never revealed to anyone that he was a writer. He never understood the stage, either. He only saw one of his boy’s plays . . . but he was drunk that night, and loudly argued with the characters from his seat.

When his old man was killed, Sam Shepard went to New Mexico to clean out the room where he’d been living. That was when he discovered that he was the son of a writer.

He read some of his father’s work at the funeral.

CONTRIBUTORS

The American Conservatory Theatre is grateful for its continued support from individuals, local and national foundations and corporations, the California Arts Council, the City and County of San Francisco Grants for the Arts, and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Our donors make great theatre possible. We salute them by associating their names with the literary giants of our rich dramatic heritage. This list reflects gifts received between January 1, 1986 and April 30, 1987.

THE NISSAN MAXIMA.
LUXURY WITH A SWIFT KICK.

It's like no other car in the world.
The Maxima SE. that combines the luxury performance that only Nissan can bring. From the form and function, to the quality of components, it's all first-class. And it begins with an interior that's designed to create the comfort you deserve.

You can experience the reclining back seat, deep plush carpeting that you'd find in the most expensive limousine, and still have the headroom and legroom you'd expect in a luxury sedan. And if you think that's all, you're in for a surprise.

In fact, there's nothing else like the Maxima SE. Because it's engineered to exceed your expectations. It's the kind of luxury that people talk about, but rarely experience. It's the kind of luxury that's worth waiting for.

So, come on in and experience the new Maxima SE. It's a luxury that's worth the wait. And a performance that's worth the ride.

THE NISSAN MAXIMA. LUXURY WITH A SWIFT KICK.

It’s like no other car in the world. The Maxima SE. That rare combination of luxury and performance that only comes from precise execution of every last detail. That’s what’s that called quality. At Nissan, we call it pride. And it begins with an interior that’s devoted to comfort.

You can sense it in the reclining bucket seats and deep pile carpeting. You can feel it in the deep-dish wheelbase cassette stereo with graphic equalizer. And you can feel it in the two-way adjustable suspension that finely tunes the ride to your satisfaction.

In fact, everything in the new Maxima SE — from the power sunroof to the full 150-watt control — has been designed to create a unique level of luxury.

And a unique level of performance. Underneath the rich appointments lies an engineering marvel. A three-liter overhead cam V6 that can achieve 0.65 in 3.5 seconds. It’s performance that’s crisp, sharp with a standard five-speed transmission or optional automatic, power rack-and-pinion steering, dual power disc brakes and multispark ignition. Performance you call inspired.

In fact, Maxima is so impressive. Motor Trend Magazine rated it the "best luxury sedan under $25,000." And for the price, the Maxima sticker price is nearly $10,000 less.

The name is Nissan.

We know how arrogant it sounds, but the odds are overwhelming that this will be your Scotch.

Sooner or later, a devoted friend or a trusted bartender will pour you a taste of The Famous Grouse.

You may shut your ears to the facts that it’s Scotland’s own favorite brand...that it’s soaring in London, world capital of Scotch...that it’s the prized buy in duty-free shops...that it’s here, thank goodness, in America.

You may even shut your eyes to the modest message on the label: FINEST SCOTCH WHISKY.

You will not, thank heaven, be able to turn off your own discerning, decisive, impeccable taste.

Whereupon, for another, THE FAMOUS GROUSE. Scotland sends its best.

matching funds for Luce's "incentive" scheme.
There is nothing, as I write, to suggest that she will, and nothing, moreover, to suggest that the RSC's already excessive workload will be reduced; on the contrary, it will probably increase. Those of us who criticize the overall standard and motivation of the company's work at present do so because we feel that their resources—not only financial, but creative, imaginative and human—are seriously overstretched. In June they frightened everyone to death by letting it be known that, if their finances did not improve by the end of the year, they would close either Stratford or the Barbican. Having thus thoroughly raised the alarm, they then denied their intention to do any such thing.

Pending the arrival of Peter Shaffer, Albert Finney, Maggie Smith and others in the autumn, just the right side of the deadline for the Olivier Awards, the commercial West End, with two exceptions, has met its own crisis of short runs and sudden closures either with solid old certainties like Canterbury Tales and An Inspector Calls or with recent shows that were no great shakes even the first time round (Carousel, Light Up the Sky). As a result of all this, we went through one of our "what-is-theatre-for?" phases.

This was considerably protracted in my case by a week's visit to Israel, a country which claims the highest rate of theatre-going in the world, and where theatre like everything else, takes part in an exhilaratingly politicized society which has only two questions on its mind: identity and survival. Even boulevard comedy and farce concern themselves with, say, the nature of Jewishness and the Israeli occupation of the West Bank. Then, too, an entire, scurrilous and very funny revue (visually funny to us, verbally funny to the Hebrew-speaking audience) attacked the rise of Jewish religious intolerance and fundamentalism condemned, so the playwright claimed, by the liberals' guilt over their own secularism, and caused by the rise of extremism in Islam. Our own false distinction between art and entertainment does not exist.

The two West End exceptions to the sure-fire earlier referred to were Sondheim's Follies (at the Shaftesbury) and Simon Gray's Melon (at the Haymarket). In Israel we learned at the meticulous care taken by the producer Cameron Mackintosh over the Hebrew lyrics of Miscables, having them translated back into English to doublecheck for omissions and nuance. Mackintosh has become a producer in the David Merrick mould: having taken a risk, he protects it intensively against avoidable disaster. With Miss behind him — or rather all round him and across the world for the foreseeable future — he has rescued Follies, a show which never seems to have made money for anyone, least of all the original Broadway producers of 1971.

In taking the risk avoided by other producers for 15 years, he has persuaded James Goldman to simplify the plot and rewrite his dialogue completely, and Sondheim to replace four of the original numbers by four less tricky or less bleak, closer to the idiom of an actual Follies show and generally more assimilable by a broader audience today. The show suffers — the marital bickering of the two couples at the Follies reunion sticks out more than ever — but there are queues every night for returns and it looks as though the trick might have worked. Diana Rigg, Julia Mackenzie, Dolores Gray ("I'm Still Here"), Adele Leigh ("One More Kiss") and Lynda Baron ("Who's that Woman?") steal the show.

Directed by Mike Ockrent and designed by Maria Björnsson (Phantom of the Opera), it looks beautiful, witty, haunting and gorgeous, and if it succeeds, it will clearly form the basis of the long-awaited New York revival of the show. Still, it proves, to anyone like me who loves and is continually amazed by Sondheim's work,

that Follies is far from being his best show. We now await the superior Pacific Overtures at English National Opera and Merrily We Roll Along at the Half Moon in the East End.

Gray's Melon — Simon, that is, not Dolores — turned out to be one more night out with middle-class, middle-aged male agony, starring the potentially marvelous, but here under-parted and mannered Alan Bates as the self-pitying publisher-protagonist.

Michael Gambon and Polly Adams in Alan Ayckbourn's "very funny and very dark" A Small Family Business (at the National's Olivier Theatre), in which the playwright proves that he has also "become a director of terseness and class."

Family Business offers the mixture as before, but most of Ayckbourn's plays break some new ground. This one tells of a dowdy fitted-furniture business taken over by corrupt interests and how the family's Mr. Clean (Michael Gambon) has, Godfather-fashion, to condone murder and make corruption respectable in order to save firm and family from ruin.

It is very funny and very dark, opening with a brilliantly perfect farcical sequence in which the hero arrives home to celebrate changing jobs by making love to his wife. She, unknown to him, has planned a surprise party with the entire family crowded in darkness behind the sitting-room door. Aşcejbula’s use of space, with one boring, purpose-built house doing duty for three, often at the same time, is exceptionally clever throughout. He has become a director of versatility and class.

He is also, of course, an exceptionally prolific writer. Since A Small Family Business, he has already written and directed Henecoward . . . for his small home theatre in the round at Scarborough on the Yorkshire coast. Henecoward . . . is a playful, experimental and — to me at least — unsuccessfully resolved piece about a composer in the near-anarchic near-future who is torn between the mischievous reprogramming of androids to get his estranged wife and young daughter back and his artist’s ambition to produce on his synthesizer the perfect musical sound for love. He fails, but it is hard to care as much as one should, for even the human beings are two-dimensional in character and the prevailing mood is either sentimental or cold.

Three shows should be recorded from the somewhat chaotic and disseminated imports of LIFT — the biennial London International Festival of Theatre, which scattered itself across some 20 miles of the capital from the river Thames near Kew Gardens to Shadwell Basin in an as-yet-unglamorized section of the London Docks. It rained for the best part of the three weeks, and my favorite shows were: all indoors, from Mexico, Canada and the U.S.S.R.: Donna Giovanni, a brilliant, erotic transcription of Mozart’s opera into a musical folk comedy for four women and one man (Compania Divas, directed by Jesusa Rodrigues); The Dragon’s Trilogy by Robert Lepage’s Théâtre Repere from Quebec, telling a strikingly original, poetic, country house play, acted in, out and right through the middle of a three-dimensional dacha, with the audience at either end. At four hours, Cercou was interminably garrulous and at least an hour too long, but a great impression was conveyed of Russian emotional energies on the move, sniffing intellectual freedoms on the breeze, longing to be used. Most visiting productions to LIFT would be considered, at some point or other, as self-indulgent and therefore un-English. But the young English audience is responding very keenly to bold and epic work both at home and from abroad. Two bold attempts to grapple with European expressivism and melodrama have elicited the summer months. David Pountney’s production of Shostakovich’s famously scandalous opera Lady Macbeth of Mtsensk (1936, excoriated by Stalin) and Mike Alfreds’s of The Wandering Jew, adapted by him and Micheline Wandor from the immense best-selling serial novel (1844-5) by Eugene Sue.

Alfreds is one of the most individual and distinguished directors in Britain, respected by actors throughout the profession for the searching, simplicity and truthfulness of his work. His productions are never blocked out; the actors have such confidence in him and in one another that they improvise the actual movements afresh every night. Their spontaneous reactions can produce electrifying effects, as in the Cherry Orchard he directed for Ian McKellen’s company at the National last year. On the strength of that he has now acquired his own company to do three productions at the NT. He avoids the obvious, as always, by mounting a four-and-a-half-hour version of a wild 19th-century melodrama which outsold Dickens and Balzac, to the latter’s intense despair.

The Alfreds company imposes both great austerity and extravagance on this piece of kitsch. The result, though extremely resourceful and choreograph-

He avoids the obvious, as always, by mounting a four-and-a-half-hour version of a wild 19th-century melodrama which outdid Dickens and Balzac, to the latter’s intense despair.

The Alfred company imposes both great austerity and extravagance on this piece of kitsch. The result, though extremely resourceful and choreograph-ically dramatic, becomes merely repetitive when the drama of the inheritance being withheld from rightful legatees by the wicked machinations of the church is prolonged artificially by a codicil to the will. Sue is a terrible writer, though technically skilled, so this is hardly Nicholas Nickleby, nor the Golgoni Country Trilogy, which the company tackles next. The Wondering Jew has the potential for a cult. Lady Macbeth was certainly that, packed out for every performance. An astonishing and courageous piece of musical theatre which moves sex, politics, psychology, slapstick, poetry, tenderness and wit. This story of provincial adultery, murder and repression survived everything that Pountney’s glorious and vulgar productions could throw at it. You emerged at the interval and at the end gasping in disbelief and on a great high at such a shared joy in the resources and possibilities of theatre.

This is more than could be said for the Kirov Opera, which brought to Covent Garden, and those very theatres in Manchester and Birmingham which the RSC will no doubt shortly visit, imitative examples of Soviet official culture in Boris Godunov, Eugene Onegin and The Queen of Spades. All three were wilfully conducted by Yuri Temirkanov (the opening of Onegin like fast congregating toffees), played with outstanding accuracy, theatrical color and instinct by the Kirov orchestra; adequately sung; not acted at all; and designed in conventional picture-book architectural landscapes.

Glasson is bringing us a greater diversity of work from the Soviet Union than ever before, including the Mayakovskiy Theatre (Moscow) at the National in October, the Gorky Theatre (Leningrad) and a studio Hamlet from Moscow at the Edinburgh Festival, which is about to engulf me as I write. More of that, I hope, next time.
