AMERICAN CONSERVATORY THEATRE •

An attempt to put into words what makes Shalimar Shalimar.

The mystique of Shalimar eludes definition. Just as it has always eluded the many imitators who have sought to copy it.

One gropes for words to describe it. Alluring. Haunting. Intoxicating. But it is like trying to describe the magic of a Renoir in words.

Perhaps we could say it is the House of Guerlain itself that makes Shalimar Shalimar. This family of great perfumers dates back to 1828 when Pierre François Pascal Guerlain opened a little perfumery shop on the Rue de Rivoli in Paris.

Since that time the Guerlains have given the world many classics. Jicky. Mitsouko. L'Heure Bleue. Liu. Vol de Nuit. Chant d'Arômes. Chamade.

Or perhaps what makes Shalimar Shalimar is the legendary love story that was its inspiration. The love story of a Shah who was so enraptured by his mistress that he built the lovely Gardens of Shalimar as their special place of rendezvous.

As you can see, Guerlain tells this love story in many ways.

Obviously, our attempt has fallen far short. We will never be able to capture the mystery of Shalimar in words.

Fortunately, we were able to capture it in a fragrance.

FLORA'S AND THE WAREHOUSE—

Prescott off Cannery Row (Monterey)
Flora's is open every day, but the tragedy is that nobody under 21 is admitted! This is the famous "home of the four bit lunch!" For the price of a beer or cocktail, plus 50c, you saunter up to the old-time bar and build your own sandwich with breads, meats and cheeses (if it's two-feet high, nobody will give you a second glance). The place is Sally Stanford-Victorian; plush, red velvets, Tiffany lamps and grand camp. Go through the bar and you'll come to my favorite room—full of peep show machines, pinballs and games. Go into the room beyond the game room and you're in The Warehouse, which also has its own outside entrance past an old-fashioned barber shop and through the back of a phone booth! It's a huge room with a small movie screen, revolving ceiling lights out of "They Shoot Horses . . .", and a menu featuring Al Capone's favorite dishes. Really reasonable spaghetti, pizza, salads, garlic toast, and "the finest rotgut available!" Since The Warehouse is only open evenings, there's live entertainment by a fabulous banjo band that plays on the back of an old prohibition-type truck. Children are welcome here with parents, so we can all have fun.

W. & G. FOYLE LTD.—119-125 Charing Cross Road London WC2H OEB
Would you believe that new books cost much less to buy and have shipped from England than here? Foyles Bookshop will send you their latest catalogue free of charge and if you order even one book, you'll be on their mailing list to receive Books and Bookman, a lively literary review with articles and reviews by such as Colin Wilson, Brendan Hennessy and Paul Tabori. Even if you don't order every book in the place (hard to do, since it's the largest bookstore in the world!), you'll love hearing from them. Examples on prices: Doubleday's sells Charles Dickens (by Angus Wilson) for $12.95 (Foyles for $9.60); Brentano's has Fire From Heaven (by Mary Renault) for $7.95 (Foyles for $4.20). Very interesting??

LONDON HOUSE—533 Ramona St. (Palo Alto)

HOURS: 10 AM-5 PM (Tue.-Sat.).
Here it is . . . the tea room you've all asked for. And this one is a special place, really good. We have to confess it is one of our first experiences with tea rooms in California (although we know them in England), but several subscribers wrote in to recommend this one. It seems to be popular with the English colony, since there were many British accents around us. The shop offers a variety of high and low teas; two sandwiches or an English tea plate consisting of a large roll, choice of Caerphilly or double Gloucester cheese, choice of pickled relishes and grapes and apples. It's served in cheerful yellow service on orange placemats, and you have your choice of either the dark wood tea room (pub-like) or the cheerful garden setting. It's a great way to spend Saturday afternoon and you feel so much more genteel when you leave. Hard cider and ales are available, and there's a small gift shop of English imports.

CARISSIMA—903 San Antonio (Los Altos)

HOURS: 10 AM-5 PM, Tues.-Sat.
This is a gift shop founded by energetic Mrs. Brown and her daughter Minty. It specializes in one or few-of-a-kind items that are handmade by people in the area. Soft and cuddly Raggedy Ann dolls, floppy-eared dogs, men's ties, sandbag frogs for doorsteps and candles in the shape of candy apples, Tony-the-Tiger, ice cream sodas and other things you hadn't imagined in candle form before. Minty and her momma are happy to chat with you about all the items when you come in.

MEXICO CITY

an introduction

by GORDON SNIDER

ACCORDING to legend, an eagle sat clutching a snake in its claws by a lake in the Anáhuac Valley and thus signaled to the wandering Aztecs to begin building a city. From such an improbable beginning Mexico City has grown into a metropolis which has somehow managed to combine this rich history with a pulsating life-style that swirls like an enthusiastic river among the ruins and archives of its ancient past.

Nowhere is this more evident than at the Plaza of Three Cultures where it is possible to stand and, with a single sweep of the eyes, view six hundred years of man's development. On the site of an ancient marketplace are the reconstructed Aztec pyramids which once stood as symbols of an ingenious people. Adjoining these monuments is the graceful Santo Domingo Church, built as a part of a newer religion and way of life when the Spanish conquered these same people in 1521. Finally, like a stylish backdrop for a Medieval play, the skyscrapers of the city rise abruptly. Together they form a cultural prism of contrast between Mexico's past and its future.

In reality, the history of this area reaches back much farther than the Aztecs and their eagle, for only thirty miles from the city are the magnificent Pyramids of Teotihuacán. For a very reasonable fee a limousine with chauffeur-guide can be hired at any of the main hotels. The guide will take you to this site where temples, pyramids and courts have been unearthed. Skillfully laid out around the time of Christ, Teotihuacán (City of the Gods) is believed to have been bigger than Rome itself. Only a tiny portion has been uncovered, yet even this is awesome in its beauty and strength.

If a morning trip is planned to these ruins, your guide can also arrange for lunch at either of two unusual restaurants. The first is La Gruta, located in a natural cave whose contours provide a floor and ceiling for the cloth-covered tables, colorful high-backed chairs and elegant bar. There is evidence that the sunlight which shines in upon the cave's diners once provided similar lighting for prehistoric men who made this attractive restaurant their home.

The other resaturant, El Cortijo La Morena, in the town of Texcoco, is reproduced in the form of a miniature bullring. While diners enjoy a marvelous selection of food from their vantage point on the circular second level, a horseman puts on a dazzling display of rope tricks, and young, would-be toreros demonstrate the basic cape passes for fighting the bull. It is important to watch this instruction carefully since the grand finale to the show is to call upon volunteers from the audience who are given the opportunity to test their bravado with a baby bull. The bulls are too small to injure anyone, but they are quick and can pack quite a punch!

Another point of interest on the way back to Mexico City is the Acolmán Monastery which can be seen from the main highway. Built in the form of a fortress, this massive structure served as a nunnery until the Reformation movement of the 1850s closed it down. Today it is an active church that offers a fascinating contrast to the more formal churches seen elsewhere.

Even this brief journey into the countryside can leave no doubt that the focal point for this great land is Mexico City itself, a truly international city. A stroll along the famous Paseo de la Reforma quickly reveals the city's boundless energy. Elegant hotels and strikingly futuristic architecture grace this main traffic artery along with grassy walkways, sculptured stone benches and shade trees. An excellent selection of art galleries, shops and restaurants (most of which serve Continental rather than Mexican cuisine) waits to be explored, especially in the lively Niza-Genova district located just off the main thoroughfare. At night the Reforma will rival any city in the world with its night clubs, bars and discotheques.

Equally striking are the many fine examples of European architecture and sculpture which evoke from the older buildings and plazas a strong feeling of the Old World when compared to the bold designs and colors of this changing city. Perhaps the most beautiful examples of this influence are the famous Basilica de Guadalupe and La Catedral.

The basilica, built in memory of the miracle of Guadalupe, can be seen on the way to the Teotihuacán pyramids. The sooner this shrine can be seen the better, for that matter, since it is slowly settling, with a distinct tilt that threatens its entire structure. This problem is not unique to the basilica. Much of the city stands on soft ground which was uncovered when the Spaniards drained Lake Texcoco and shows signs of sinking.

The Cathedral is an excellent place to begin a tour of the city. This majestic building, with its 27 altars, dominates the Plaza de la Constitucion where the government offices of the National Palace are also located. At night the plaza, also called the Zócalo, is illuminated in a stunning display of lights which can be enjoyed from the observatory or restaurant on the 44th floor of the Torre Latino-Americana.

A few blocks away is the Palacio de Bellas Artes which houses both art exhibits and the theatre, one of whose main attractions is the Ballet Folklórico de Mexico.

Your wanderings through the city should also include the University of Mexico with its colorful array of mosaic art, the flea market (operated only on Sundays), and incomparable Chapultepec Park.

This 2,100 acre park holds amusement areas, riding trails, a zoo, boating lake, and the castle of the ill-fated Emperor Maximilian which is now used as a museum. Its finest treasure, however, is the National Museum of Anthropology. In this single museum it is possible to begin with the most ancient cultures and follow the overwhelming array of historical evidence which leads us to modern Mexico. Yet once this journey through time has been completed, you will have seen only the bottom floors! Upstairs are in-depth scientific descriptions and displays of these same cultures. Since it is not possible to see this museum in less than a full day, it is recommended that more than one visit be planned.

Like the treasured palaces of its past, this city — which so many refer to simply as "Mexico" — offers each visitor a truly rewarding experience. You cannot hope in a week or two to know all of its moods and personalities, but you will have come to understand that this place is more than a gathering of people. Best of all, you will enjoy learning, as the Spaniards did over 400 years ago, that Mexico City is worth the trip. □

LONG TRIPS IN LITTLE CARS NEEDN'T BE ENDURANCE TESTS.

One thing you don't expect in a little car is comfort. With Vega, you're in for a surprise.

We didn't work any miracles, mind you. No little car will ever give you the comfort of a limousine.

But a good little car should get you from here to there without your feeling every mile in between.

And Vega does.

For one thing, it's built to be little outside but big inside. That may sound contradictory, but it means we can provide as much room per passenger as many big cars.

Another thing. Vega has a couple of the most comfortable front buckets you're liable to find anywhere. Seats you sit in, not on.

There are other comforts, too. The engine, for instance. It's big enough to do its work without straining, even at prolonged highway speeds. If your engine feels easy going, you'll feel more at ease too.

The Vega power ventilation system keeps air circulating inside the car as you travel. Or if you pull over just to admire the view.

Full Coil suspension front and rear softens the big bumps and makes the little ones all but disappear. Coupled with Vega's superb handling and stability, those long trips might even stand a few detours. All because we want your Vega to be the best car you ever owned.

Highway safety begins at home. Buckle up before you leave.

Books on Music: The 20th Century

In the first years of the 20th Century, questions were being asked, questions which challenged the then-reigning system of diatonic (major-minor) harmony. Had that system's resources been exhausted? Was there no further meaningful music capable of being written within its framework? Was a new system required to revitalize a tired musical world? In the seventy years since, many answers have been and continue to be offered, many systems have been put forth and many new heroes have been hailed. Yet the turmoil today is greater than ever before.

Today's younger composers, like Penderecki, Stockhausen and Henze, produce music which always seems strange and only occasionally beautiful, and we regard them as just more of the "rebellious youth." But what of Schoenberg and Stravinsky and their contemporaries? Some of us tend to regard them as old-fashioned, old-hat and just plain old. And yet they are the ones who ushered in the new musical trends of the century and, then, they were themselves young rebels. But now that they have been magically transformed into grand old masters we might ask, where has their youth gone?

Joan Peyser's book, THE NEW MUSIC (Delacorte Press, 202p., $7.95) thoroughly succeeds in restoring youth to these composers. Their lives are seen as exciting and momentous adventures, adventures both musical and human. Mrs. Peyser, who recently contributed a series of articles to The New Yorker and whose name is familiar to readers of the New York Times, looks at the developments in music by considering the ways in which three major composers—Schoenberg, Stravinsky and Varèse — responded to what they felt was the challenge of their times, the challenge of finding a successor to tonality.

I cannot agree with Mrs. Peyser when she states, "it was inevitable that tonality would outlive its usefulness." Tonality is to me such a natural thing and all of the systems devised to replace it so artificial, that I am intellectually and emotionally unwilling to accept such a statement. However, the fact that so many of the composers of this century abandoned tonality indicates that there was a very strong need to enlarge the traditional limits of harmony. Mrs. Peyser quotes Schoenberg as saying, "I am the slave of an internal power stronger than my education; it compels me to obey a conception which . . . has greater power over me than any elemental artistic formation." I suspect that my unwillingness to dispense with tonality has to do with being musically passive rather than active: the composer is confronted with this dilemma every time he sits down to compose even one bar of music.

Mrs. Peyser shows us that the motivation was always one which could neither be easily acquired nor discarded. Schoenberg himself described the grip held over him by his music:

In the time of the Chamber Symphony [No. 1] I understood better what I had written and had more personal pleasure with that than with the music that followed. Then to compose was a great pleasure. In a later time it was a duty against myself . . .

At times, Schoenberg's personal life contributed so much misery, so much anguish to his art, that it is amazing that he could go on. If ever a man's music was his own true expression, it was so for this man. "We shall not have our hero in a housecoat." Thus did Felix Greissle, Schoenberg's son-in-law, state the Schoenberg family obsession with privacy. However, I think it much more revealing and ultimately rewarding to have Schoenberg pottering around in a housecoat (hard as that might be to imagine) than to have him isolated from all human experience.

Stravinsky, of course, was very much unlike the "conflicted, visionary" Schoenberg. His ear was attuned to the world of audiences (although he could certainly not be accused of pandering) and this partly accounts for the immense popularity he has always enjoyed in the concert hall and on recordings. This freedom from dogma enabled him to search for the best way at any particular moment. Not wedded to one style of composition, he was able to encompass an extremely varied range of feeling, to convey a breadth of experience quite astonishing and almost without parallel. He has often been compared to Picasso because of the many styles with which they both experimented. Mrs. Peyser quotes Stravinsky, at age sixty-two:

I do not have any ultimate viewpoint of composition and when I write my next symphony it will be an expression of my will at that moment . . . I wish people would let me have the privilege of being a little bit unconscious.

Stravinsky's own excitement is very well conveyed and even in later years, a feeling of naivety and spontaneity apparently never left him. "He never abandoned this mosaic structure that came so unself-consciously to him," Mrs. Peyser writes.

The third composer considered, Edgard Varèse, had a granitic sense of destiny and he reminds me very much of a character in Thomas Wolfe whose massive strength implies some greater spiritual virtue and goodness. Born in France, he struggled for a while in Europe and then came to New York City. However, his struggling had just begun and was to assume immense proportions, both in terms of sound and of intensity. His arguments with the establishment raged on and he never really succeeded in establishing himself. Since his death in 1965, however, he has become a revered and influential figure to younger composers. Again, Mrs. Peyser perfectly captures the tone and character of the struggles.

Many other European and American composers are discussed, with particular attention being paid to recent developments. In all, an excellent book — one that should be required reading for those seeking an understanding of the torment that seized music in this century.

PERSPECTIVES ON AMERICAN COMPOSERS (Norton, 268p., $10.00) is an anthology of writings from the magazine Perspectives of New Music, and, as such, comprises a valuable view of American music. Conversations with Varèse and Piston, especially, are full

A BUSY SUMMER AHEAD FOR A.C.T. THEATRE TRAINING FOR ALL AGES AT THE CONSERVATORY

Training Program

The fifth annual Summer Training Congress begins June 19th and offers ten weeks of intensive training through August 26. Applicants for this program must be high school graduates at least seventeen years old.

For the younger set, A.C.T.'s popular Young Conservatory provides no less than six different courses, all beginning July 18 and continuing through August 31. Minimum age for enrollment is eight and runs all the way up to those in their senior year of high school.

Applications are being accepted now at A.C.T. for both the Summer Training Congress and the Young Conservatory Summer Program.

The Congress, a staple of A.C.T.'s yearly schedule since 1968, came into being as a response to requests from people all over the United States unable to free themselves for full-time theatre training except during the summer months. Each year, A.C.T. augments the faculty of its regular spring and fall sessions and accepts one hundred seventy-five enrollees who attend classes from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays.

The Congress curriculum includes acting, voice, speech, dance, mime, stage movement, theatre games and circus techniques, along with special seminars, workshops, lectures and demonstrations. Joining General Director William Ball as faculty members will be Conservatory Director Allen Fletcher, Executive Director Edward Hastings, members of the A.C.T. acting company and training staff and a variety of guest teachers from theatres, campuses and private studios across the nation.

Training offered at the Congress is comparable to that regularly provided

Although A.C.T.'s current repertory season ends with the final performance of Caesar and Cleopatra on May 6, the closing doesn't mean that the company is disbanding until rehearsals for next season start early in the fall. This summer, in fact, will be a remarkably busy time for many company members, with two major programs in professional theatre training on the A.C.T. schedule.

the professional A.C.T. company. Participants are divided into small study groups to assure maximum individual attention and to make sure that each student is exposed to the full range of training at a rate commensurate with his age, background and experience. The Congress structure makes it possible for A.C.T. to accept applicants at beginning, intermediate and advanced levels. In addition, it offers the opportunity for close association with working theatre professionals.

Congress training differs from that usually found on campuses by being primarily performance-oriented. The emphasis of the program is on the technical, rather than the intellectual, aspects of performance. Most classes are conducted on a workshop basis calling for active participation from each student.

During the past four summers, the majority of Congress participants have been college and university students, teachers and young theatre professionals. Yet people from all walks of life, ranging in ages from seventeen to sixty-five, have enrolled and done outstanding work.

Tuition for the ten-week program is six-hundred dollars. As in previous years, a limited number of partial scholarships are available. These are awarded on the basis of a student's application and, in the case of out-of-state enrollees, on letters of recommendation. Partial scholarships for California residents are awarded on the basis of auditions as well as the applications and letters.

Those seeking complete information and Summer Congress applications should write to Allen Fletcher, A.C.T. Conservatory Director, 450 Geary Street, San Francisco 94102, or telephone his office at (415) 771-3880.

*The popular revival of Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead features Larry Carpenter (left), Marc Singer and Ken Ruta. Tom Stoppard's comic reworking of the Hamlet story will be presented only five more times before the season closes: April 8 and 19 at 2:30 p.m., and April 12, 24, and May 3 at 8:30 p.m.*

"CAESAR AND CLEOPATRA" NOTES

Bernard Shaw

Caesar and Cleopatra takes place in Alexandria in 48 and 47 B.C., three years before Caesar's assassination in Rome, the subject of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar.

Plutarch, to whom Shaw turned in writing his play, comments on Caesar's Egyptian interlude:

"In Egypt Caesar found palace intrigue among Ptolemy XII, Pothinus the Prime Minister and Cleopatra, who had been banished by her brother. Caesar had great trouble from the unfriendly and haughty Pothinus, and succeeded in defeating Pothinus' attempts to murder him only by sitting up all night. Caesar then sent for Cleopatra, who was smuggled into his quarters wrapped in a rich carpet. Captivated by her charm and bold wit, he fell in love with Cleopatra and fought to gain full power in Egypt for her.

"In this fight his small army suffered many disadvantages by being in a strange country. The Egyptians diverted the canals and thus cut off his water supply. When they tried to cut off his communications by sea, he set fire to some of his ships and thus accidentally to the docks and to the great Alexandrian library. In a desperate battle he leaped from a sea wall into a small boat to save his soldiers, who were in danger . . ."

Shaw envisioned Julius Caesar as possessed of a "natural greatness" growing out of his "genuine originality." The playwright explains, "It is in this sense that I have represented Caesar as great. Having virtue, he had no need of goodness. He is neither forgiving, frank, nor generous, because a man who is too great to resent has nothing to forgive . . ."

About his tawny young enchantress, Shaw remarks, "Cleopatra was only sixteen when Caesar went to Egypt; but in Egypt sixteen is a riper age than it is in England. The childishness I have ascribed to her, as far as it is childishness of character and not lack of experience, is not a matter of years. It may be observed in our own climate at the present day in many women of fifty."

Tom Stoppard

Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, those two faceless minor figures from Hamlet, have traditionally been forgettable fellows. Directors tended to cast them with leftover actors, while audiences, if they even bothered to try, could rarely tell them apart. In his famous film production of Hamlet, Laurence Olivier eliminated the two characters altogether. They remained a kind of occupational hazard to anybody staging Shakespeare's tragedy, until playwright Tom Stoppard hit upon something very meaningful about this pair of classmates from Prince Hamlet's university days.

"Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are the most expendable people of all time," says Stoppard. "Their very facelessness makes them dramatic; the fact that they die without ever really understanding why they lived makes them somehow cosmic."

Revealing why he chose R & G as the main characters for a contemporary comedy, Stoppard comments on their relevance to the world in which we now find ourselves: "Almost everybody thinks of himself as nobody. A cipher, not even a cog. In that sense, Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are everybody. I feel that I am like that."

For his play, Stoppard plucked R & G from the fringe of Shakespeare's tragedy and put them at the center of the action. Consequently, Hamlet, Claudius, Gertrude, Ophelia and Polonius suffer a corresponding reduction in importance and become minor characters in the Stoppard comedy. The effect is a sort of inside-out Hamlet, a keyhole view of the royal tragedy at Elsinore in which we see the whole thing through the often bewildered and uncomprehending eyes of Rosencrantz and Guildenstern.

Following a brief, exploratory production at the Edinburgh Festival, the play had its first professional production by the National Theatre at the Old Vic in London in April, 1967. Two years later, after it had opened to acclaim in New York, A.C.T. gave Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead its Bay Area premiere. The comedy was voted best play of the 1967-68 Broadway season by the New York Drama Critics' Circle and went on to win the Tony Award as well.

SLEUTH NOTES

Sleuth arrives onstage at the Geary nearly three years later than originally planned. Back in 1969, producers approached William Ball about presenting the then unknown thriller in the A.C.T. repertory prior to a New York opening. Ball was excited about the play, but conflicting production schedules subsequently forced cancellation of the project.

The play was at that time called Anyone for Murder? Among the other titles reportedly considered by playwright Anthony Shaffer for his five-character thriller were Anyone for Tennis? and Who's Afraid of Stephen Sondheim?

Eventually, its producers decided that Sleuth would open first in London. The play had its world premiere there on February 12, 1970, won several major theatre awards and is still going strong. The Broadway production opened on November 7 of the same year and continues to play to sellout houses, while a touring company recently broke records at Los Angeles' Ahmanson Theater. Sleuth was honored with a Tony Award as best play of the 1970-71 season.

A.C.T.'s production marks the return to the company of both Ellis Rabb and Peter Donat. Rabb previously directed such A.C.T. shows as The Merchant of Venice, The Tavern and The Selling of the President. Donat comes back to San Francisco after winning critical praise in the Broadway production of There's One in Every Marriage and New Haven's Long Wharf Theatre production of The Way of the World.

Anthony Shaffer is a former lawyer and journalist who also writes scripts for films and television. Sleuth is his first play for the stage. His twin brother, Peter, with whom he has collaborated on several detective novels, is the author of The Royal Hunt of the Sun, Black Comedy and Five Finger Exercise.

The idea for Private Lives came to Noel Pierce Coward on a sleepless night in 1929 while he was stopping in Tokyo during an Oriental sojourn. The Japanese Sandman finally found his way to Coward's hotel room at four a.m.—"by which time," the playwright recalled years later, Private Lives, title and all, had constructed itself." He decided to let the play "mature" for a while before committing it to paper.

After traversing Japan and Korea, Coward's Asian peregrinations brought him to Shanghai, where he promptly became the temporary residence of a hardy virus and prudently took to his bed in the Cathay Hotel where he lay "sweating gloomily."

Recalling the incident in his 1937 biography, Present Indicative, Coward wrote that "the ensuing convalescence was quite productive, for I utilized it by writing Private Lives."

Private Lives introduced two of Coward's most dazzling characters, Amanda and Elyot—a glorious couple in whom the very essence of world-weary sophistication happily co-exists with untarnished childlike wonder and delight.

Glamorous and affluent, they couldn't make a go of their marriage and decided to be sensible about it and get a divorce. Now, five years later, they meet by chance at a ritzy French hotel and fall in love all over again. What could be more romantic?

Very little, except that, in the years since their breakup, each has remarried somebody else, leaving poor Amanda and Elyot with a pair of superfluous spouses on their scrupulously manicured hands.

How things work out for our leisure-class quartet is what Private Lives is all about. Directing this first play by Noel Coward to join the A.C.T. repertory is Oscar winner Francis Ford Coppola. The playwright, incidentally, recently celebrated his seventy-first birthday.

"CONTRACTOR" NOTES

David Storey, the son of a mine-worker, was born in Yorkshire, England, in 1933 and studied at the Slate School of Fine Arts in London. Married since 1956, he is the father of three children.

The author of The Contractor writes from a close personal involvement in his characters' environment, and his novels and plays are often autobiographical in their vivid background material. Coming from the north of England, Storey has been a professional athlete like the hero of his novel and screenplay, This Sporting Life, and a teacher like the title character of his first play, The Restoration of Arnold Middleton. He also worked for a tent-erecting firm like the one which provides the setting for his novel, Radcliffe, and The Contractor.

London's Royal Court Theatre presented The Contractor in 1969 and Storey's best-known play, Home, in 1970. Both works went on to long and successful London runs, and Home was later produced on Broadway and television for American audiences, with John Gielgud and Ralph Richardson in the leading roles.

Critics have been diverse in their interpretations of The Contractor. Some have seen the raising and striking of its huge tent as symbolic of the rise and fall of England's national greatness. "In a still larger sense," one reviewer added, "the tent is emblematic of the vanity of human wishes—in art, in science, in business, in love, in life." Still other observers view the play's characters as representing the moral erosion of the working class.

The Contractor is a play in which the dialogue and the physical action (the raising and striking of the tent) are inseparable and completely dependent on each other. With that in mind, the A.C.T. cast worked with the tent and its equipment from the first day of rehearsals.

List qualifiers donate $25 or more. Please call the California Theatre Foundation 982-0977 regarding corrections. April list is a partial list.

YOUR $10 SHARE WILL SAVE $350,000

A.C.T. and the San Francisco Bay Area will lose a vitally needed Ford Foundation grant of $350,000 unless it is matched with funds from local contributors by April 30. We're still short of the total $120,000 goal...but gaining steadily...and we need your support NOW—before the deadline.

Special student matinee performances, a comprehensive theatre training school, ninety repertory productions in five years...all these and more have been made possible by the annual matching grant from the Ford Foundation.

A.C.T. CAN'T AFFORD TO LOSE IT!

Our goal: 12,000 friends of the theatre to contribute one $10 share each. More, if you can. Please help with a contribution.

Make your check payable to A.C.T., and mail to "MATCH THE A.C.T. GRANT," 450 Geary Street, San Francisco 94102. Thank you.

PETER DONAT is featured in Anthony Shaffer's suspense-thriller "SLEUTH," playing only nine performances before the current A.C.T. season of repertory closes May 6.

A BUSY SUMMER (Continued from p. 17)

Lou Ann and Ross Graham conduct a seminar of Young Conservatory members, while other students experiment with make-up in the background.

A.C.T.'s Young Conservatory, under the direction of instructors Ross and Lou Ann Graham, offers a variety of summer programs to suit individual needs, interest and age groups. Students attending are divided into three groups—ages seven to nine, ten to twelve, and thirteen to seventeen. Personal supervision and direction are the hallmarks of this innovative program with its wide range of theatre studies for young people. All applicants are interviewed by the Grahams prior to enrollment.

This summer, the Grahams have scheduled a class in voice and dance for the theatre and another concentrating on the backstage, technical aspects of theatre, both meeting twice weekly. Tuition for each of these is fifty dollars.

A trio of other classes meets three times every week. Included are mime and movement; vocal expression; and scene studies, the latter concentrating on acting skills. Tuition for any of these is seventy-five dollars.

In addition, a special rehearsal and performance class will meet daily, Monday through Friday, culminating in public performances of full-length plays. Tuition for this intensive session is one hundred twenty-five dollars.

Parents and young people wishing additional details and applications should write to A.C.T. Young Conservatory, 450 Geary Street, San Francisco 94102.

Prospective participants in either the Summer Training Congress or the Young Conservatory Summer Program are urged to apply at their earliest convenience.

Gamay Noir

This red wine grape flourishes in the vineyards of The Christian Brothers

For some time now we have been nurturing a delightful French émigré in our vineyards here. The Gamay Noir grape is the authentic grape of Beaujolais. In its home district it is the grape used to produce the famous fruity, flavorful Beaujolais.

We are quite pleased with the manner in which this red varietal has taken to our Napa Valley vineyards, and we are now ready to offer an unusually fine wine from it. The Christian Brothers Napa Valley Gamay Noir has several highly desirable characteristics. It has a great mellowness and velvety softness, with a rich taste of the grape and is perfectly dry as are most noteworthy red wines.

Proper aging, both in oak casks and in the bottle has developed all of its early promise. You will notice, too, that our Gamay Noir has a particularly fine bouquet.

Gamay Noir is an exceptionally pleasing wine—one that should be enjoyed at cool room temperature. Try it with a rare roast, or a steak. It is equally at home with spaghetti or cheeses.

You will find our Gamay Noir most reasonably priced at about $2.25 a bottle. Should your wine merchant fail to have it in stock, write to me.

of insight. Varèse, talking about his development, says that he could never understand why we should be limited to it [tonality] when our instruments can give us anything we want, and why it should be imposed as a prescriptive, as if it were the final stage of musical development.

Walter Piston, one of our most urbane and civilized composers, shows a keen intelligence and a wistful awareness of the confused state music now finds itself in. He is fond of tonality and supposes that it, in turn, is a loyal friend. He feels that it is almost impossible to play music, tonal or non-tonal, in any but a tonal sense. He tells of experimenting with the string quartets he knew that played the Schoenberg quartets and asking them, "How do you go about getting it in tune?"

They all seemed puzzled at first, but finally practically all said, "We keep playing until it sounds in tune to us." I said, "Fine," but I wondered if that was what Schoenberg wanted.

Piston, who is known to practically all music students through his textbooks on harmony and counterpoint, has a sense of integrity and an historical perspective which is unusually sober and useful today. Tonality will not go away, he says, and as it has been such a strong influence, it is simply foolish to ignore it. The Establishment is "something against which all creative artists have always had to struggle and it is something the listening public . . . believes to be fundamentally right and everlasting." Furthermore, as he so rightly states, it is naive to hope that the public's mind will be changed by issuing manifestos of one sort or another.

Elliott Carter, Roger Sessions, Aaron Copland and other American composers contribute articles and the sum of their efforts is engrossing. A sense of strength permeates the writings and it is a strength which derives from honesty, pride and compassion.

Ned Rorem is an American composer born in 1923 who has distinguished himself largely in his lovely songs (although he has composed in a variety of mediums with a good deal of success) and who has written a series of diaries which have shown a decided flair for the written word. His latest book, CRITICAL AFFAIRS: A COMPOSER'S JOURNAL (Braziller, 216p., $5.95), portrays the composer drifting through life, somewhat cynical, somewhat bemused and somewhat concerned. He is very quotable and this book, an anthology of articles from various magazines, covers a wide variety of subjects: other contemporary composers ("the preponderance of Bouleziana dazzles by means of intelligence"), Satie ("Satie never scared anybody"), critics ("Where true vitality is found, criticism seems most superfluous") and rock ("As social phenomenon rock is ever more intriguing, though as musical experience it is now virtually nil").

Ah yes, and "Ladies' Music." Rorem is amusing, thoughtful and stimulating and this chapter is required reading either for men or women (perhaps both). After all, we are reminded, the patron saint of music was a woman, the virgin Cecilia. And if the saint is a woman, why have so few women become successful composers? Rorem replies:

Whereas poems, even great poems, can be completed in haste or at a supermarket, or in the maternity wards, and whereas pictures, especially terrible ones, can be drawn by literally anyone . . . musical composition (great or terrible) is not a language for dabblers. A minimum of professionalism and a maximum of time are required to produce a communicable score.

This points to the conclusion that, now that women have time on their hands (presumably they have stopped going to the supermarket and to the maternity wards in such large numbers — or perhaps they just spend less time there), women composers will proliferate, adding to the confusion, din and, probably, distinction of music. But they must be patient, for although gift knows no gender, as Rorem says, neither does lack of gift. Incidentally, several of the articles were written for House Beautiful, Mademoiselle and Vogue — and it is obvious that the readership of those magazines has inspired Rorem to write some of his most perceptive and enjoyable prose.

At a time when much writing on music, and especially on contemporary music, tends to be extremely technical in nature and to be written by writers whose command of the language is less than inspired, it is refreshing to be able to read three books which are both clear-headed as far as technical matters go and fun to read. Together with the types of perception they also possess, these books inspire in their readers that most noble ambition: to go out and listen to music. □

PROGRAM NOTES ON WINES

It's always nice to know about wines. Many native Californians, as well as "naturalized" ones, are ashamed to admit that their knowledge of wines is practically nil. Thus they are sometimes embarrassed to order wine in a restaurant or to buy it in a store. Furthermore, when they do get wine, they don't quite know what to do with it.

In case you are starting to blush (in perhaps a burgundy shade), now is the time for you to smile broadly while reading this article so that anyone noticing you will automatically assume that you are a wine connoisseur and merely checking the article's contents to be sure that it is correct.

Here are the basics to remember, and you're off to the tasting room.

1. There are only two colors in wines—Red and White.

2. White wines range from the palest straw color to deep dark brown.

3. All red wine is dry, with the exception of Port, which is sweet.

4. White wines vary in sweetness from the very dry Chablis to the rich, sweet lusciousness of Haut Sauternes.

5. The word "Dry" means the opposite of sweet, when used to describe wine.

6. There are four main classifications of wines, namely:

Table or Dinner—Bordeaux, Claret, Sauternes, Burgundy, Chablis, Riesling, Rhine, Moselle, Chianti, Veronese, Rose.

Sparkling — Champagne, Sparkling Burgundy, Cold Duck, etc.

Fortified — Sherry, Port, Madeira, Malaga, Muscatel, Tokay, etc.

Aromatized—Vermouth, sweet and dry, Aperitifs, Quinined Wines.

7. Avoid serving dry wines with sweet dishes, or with foods with sweet sauces.

8. Dry Sherries are appropriate before the meal. They are excellent when served well chilled.

WORLD-WIDE ENTHUSIASM ABOUT SAN FRANCISCO OPERA'S GOLDEN 50th SEASON

BY RICHARD G. HOUDEK

THOMAS STEWART

BERIT LINDHOLM

JOAN SUTHERLAND

PLACIDO DOMINGO

Venezuela?

It was startling, but it should have come as no surprise to General Director Kurt Herbert Adler and his San Francisco Opera staff when a call was placed recently from Caracas inquiring about the 50th Season.

Indeed, the reports had spread widely about the outstanding repertoire and international artists being presented during the Golden Anniversary Season. Calls continued to come in during succeeding days from Europe, Japan and all parts of the United States.

The excitement over repertoire seems to be generated by the following:

- A complete production of Wagner's monumental Der Ring des Nibelungen tetralogy, the first in San Francisco since 1935 and the only one in America for years to come.

- The American premiere of Gottfried von Einem's The Visit of the Old Lady, in English, based on the play by Friedrich Dürrenmatt and directed by Francis Ford Coppola whose film The Godfather is achieving wide success.

- The Western premiere of Meyerbeer's beautiful, yet rarely performed, L'Africaine.

LUCIANO PAVAROTTI

BEVERLY SILLS

GERAINT EVANS

- New productions of Bellini's Norma, Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor and Puccini's Tosca.

- Productions of Mozart's Le Nozze di Figaro and Verdi's Aida, each with an unusually intriguing cast.

A glance at some of the pictures in these pages will disclose some of the enthusiasm over casting.

It would seem helpful to many to provide a distillation of the many queries from telephoners and correspondents and answer them:

Q. What is the shortest time in which one can attend an entire Ring Cycle in San Francisco?

A. Eight days. Beginning October 17 with Das Rheingold, it is possible to see an entire Ring, including Die Walküre October 20, Siegfried October 22, and Götterdämmerung October 24. Altogether, 12 Ring performances—or three sets—will be offered to allow one to concentrate, or expand, his Ring experience. This Ring, incidentally, will feature the world's finest Wagnerian singers, including two of the world's top Brünnhildes, Birgit Nilsson and Berit Lindholm, the great Heldentenor Jess Thomas and the renowned baritone in this genre, Thomas Stewart, plus many more.

Q. What is the length of the season?

A. Eleven weeks. The Opera opens on September 15 with Norma and closes November 26 with Lucia di Lammermoor.

Q. What special commemoration is planned for the 40th Anniversary of the War Memorial Opera House?

A. On October 15, exactly 40 years, to the day, after the theater was dedicated with a performance of Tosca, a new Jean-Pierre Ponnelle production of the same opera will be presented. The ambience of the evening, inside and outside the building, will recall San Francisco of the early 1930s.

Q. Will there be a Thanksgiving evening performance?

ONE THING'S FOR SURE on the Jack Daniel's tour, we won't rush you. If you want to stop for something, go ahead and stop.

The tour through our distillery takes about an hour. And if you find anything you'd like to linger over, go ahead. You can catch up on anything you missed from Mr. Garland Dusenberry.

(He's the man who takes you through.) Just tell him what you missed and he'll take it from there. But he's a talker. So you might end up being with us more than an hour. But if you don't mind, we certainly don't either.

KIRI TE KANAWA

A. A special nonsubscription performance of Tito Capobianco's production of Lucia di Lammermoor starring Beverly Sills, Luciano Pavarotti, Raymond Wolansky and Clifford Grant, will be presented November 23, Thanksgiving night.

Q. Has Norma been presented before in San Francisco?

A. Only once, in 1937. In addition to prima donna assoluta Joan Sutherland in the title role, this new Capobianco production will feature Huguette Tourangeau, who appeared with Miss Sutherland in last season's Maria Stuarda, John Alexander and Clifford Grant. Richard Bonyngue will conduct, and Jose Varona will create his first stage designs for San Francisco as well as costumes.

Q. Although L'Africaine is seldom performed, isn't some of its music familiar?

A. Through recordings, some of this opera's radiant music, such as the arias "O Paradis" and "Sur mes genoux, fils du soleil," is loved by opera buffs over the world. San Francisco is fortunate to have Shirley Verrett making her long awaited debut here as Selika, the slave girl; Placido Domingo as Vasco da Gama, Norman Mittelmann portraying Nelusko, the slave, and Evelyn Mandac as Inez.

Q. Is The Visit of the Old Lady taken from the play in which the Lunts starred several years ago?

A. Yes, Dürrenmatt's biting satirical play enjoyed a long, successful Broadway run starring Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne and subsequently was filmed with Ingrid Bergman and Anthony Quinn. The San Francisco Opera production features Regina Resnik in the title role, Raymond Wolansky as her former lover and Richard Cassilly as the town's Mayor.

Q. Is opera for everyone?

A. Anyone who has enjoyed great theater, fine music, dance, or a film, or has felt pleasure or emotion, will enjoy opera—it is all of these things and more. For those less familiar with specific operas, informal, informative previews are given in many places throughout the Bay Area in advance of the performances.

Q. Are Opera tickets going to be scarce this year?

A. The wide interest—from the Bay Area and elsewhere—indicates that it will be harder to buy single tickets. The best way to assure yourself seats at all the operas you want to attend is by buying a Season Subscription. The 15 series offered this year include a wide range of choices and prices, including a series of four for as little as $20.00.

Q. Do ticket sales support opera?

A. Ticket sales, even sold out houses, cover only a part of the enormous cost of grand opera. This is why the Opera's generous donors and guarantors have such a vital role in maintaining its stature as one of the world's leading opera companies. Mayor Alioto recently called the Opera "the best thing we have in San Francisco." The San Francisco Opera is yours, and it needs your membership.

Q. How can one become more involved with the Opera?

A. An increasing number of men and women each year join Opera Guild and Opera Action. Both of these organizations provide interesting activities for members as well as worthwhile projects that help to sustain opera in the Bay Area. For information, please call the Guild at (415) 861-4008, Ext. 226; Action at 861-4008, Ext. 237.

A free brochure with all details on the exciting 50th Season of San Francisco Opera may be obtained by writing to Public Relations Department, War Memorial Opera House, San Francisco, Calif. 94102, or calling 861-4008, Ext. 238.

9. White table wines and all sparkling wines should be served chilled.
They may be served with any food, and are appropriate at an time.

10. Red Still wines are at their best when served at room temperature, but they may be served cool if desired.
They go well with all foods, with the possible exception of fish and seafood. However, there is no law which says you should not drink red wine with fish.

11. European Vintage years are important, because the vineyards in Europe through centuries of cultivation have become very delicate and climatic conditions have a large effect on the wines produced from the grapes.

12. Think of wine as something human. Treat it gently. Do not shake it.

13. Store all still and sparkling wines on their sides, so that the corks are moistened by the wine. The corks are thus kept from drying up and allowing air to seep through and attack the wine.

14. Red wines often have considerable sediment which is natural to the wine. If possible, stand the bottle up for twelve hours before serving. The sediment will go to the bottom, and the wine will pour off brilliantly.

15. Red wines will expand and give off added aroma if the cork is drawn an hour or two before serving. This gives the wine a chance to breathe.

16. Both red and white wines may be kept for a few days after opening if they are promptly recorked. White wines should be kept in the refrigerator and red wines in a cool place.

These are the basic rules to remember. And now you are ready to invade the tasting rooms! And in Northern California, we are fortunate to have some of the finest wines to taste in the world. You'll find these wineries within a short distance of the Bay Area. They're open seven days a week and will welcome you with open arms to sample their delicious prides of the vineyards.

And just by having read these rules, voilà—you are an instant connoisseur!
