GUCCI MEETS THE SPORTABOUT.

Since he comes from Italy, the land of sleek, racy automobiles, Dr. Aldo Gucci isn't easily impressed by station wagons.

So, naturally, we were pleased when he agreed to add his own special touch to our little station wagon. He put his famous stripe on the upholstery and door panels. He even put his "GG" trademark on the headliner.

All of which really puts the Sportabout in a class by itself. What other car offers you sleek, racy looks and a rear lift gate on the outside, 60.8 cubic feet of cargo space and a Gucci original on the inside?

See it now at your American Motors dealer's salon. It's the very latest thing this fall.

And neither can municipal refuse systems. Only steel cans can be easily "mined" by magnets out of household refuse and sent back to furnaces for remelting. This is the way progressive cities—like Atlanta, Oakland and others—are recovering 9 out of 10 cans from household refuse collections.

EDITOR'S FOREWORD

In November, 1970, Performing Arts ran a number of excerpts from “The New Opera Glass.” Reader response was such that we had to run the same set of excerpts a second time. Herewith, for new Charley fans as well as for his old admirers, a whole NEW (to these pages, at any rate) set of excerpts from that work and, for the first time anywhere, AN INVALUABLE AFTERWORD CONSISTING OF EXPLANATORY NOTES & ERRATA!

Any questions regarding Charley's synopses NOT answered by the Afterword should be addressed to:

OPERA GLASS
147 S. Robertson Blvd.
Beverly Hills, CA. 90211

When the program magazine of a German opera house (not one of the major ones) informed me that “Amneris was very madly for being thrown away by Radames who favoring his love for Aida,” it seemed that “Foreigners' English,” operatic variety, had achieved the summit. But with the subsequent discovery of the fourth edition of “The New Opera Glass,” a collection of plot synopses published in Germany in 1900, it became evident that a whole new world of linguistic ineptitude would reveal its wonders.

“The New Opera Glass” was written in large part by a Herr Charley (presumably pronounced Shar-lye), about whom my extensive researches have turned up only one additional scrap of information: his first name may have been Friedrich.

As will become evident upon dipping into some of the synopses herewith reproduced, Charley (and his anonymous collaborators) did not speak English as we know it; nor was he too adept at using a dictionary. What he did have in abundant measure was the unwitting ability to amuse and/or mystify the English-speaking reader.

“The New Opera Glass” should, aside from its comic value, interest the opera-phile for its inclusion of a number of now-forgotten composers and their operas — operas which must have been quite popular in turn-of-the-century Germany: “The Clock of the Hermit” (de-Charleyfied: “The Hermit's Bell”) by Aimé Maillart, “Gudrun” by August Klughardt; the faintly-remembered “Taming of the Refractory” (i.e., “Shrew,” but at least an example of cracking a dictionary) by Hermann Goetz (1840-1876); and many others. Then there are forgotten operas by remembered composers, e.g., Flotow's “Stradella.” And, finally, a number of works which are as “standard” today as they were then.

Readers with a working knowledge of German and its syntax may be able to untangle many of Charley's soaring linguistic flights; others may only guess at the peculiar genius which underlies his verbal images.

HER INFINITE VARIETY...

In the words of Plutarch, biographer of the ancient world, "Cleopatra was bright and entrancing, less remarkable for her actual beauty than for her personality. Her conversation had irresistible charm; the natural grace and beauty of her speech and movements were bewitching. She used the intriguing sound of her voice in many languages and rarely needed an interpreter. Antony was so captivated that he forgot his wife and family, his competition with Octavius and his wars against Rome's enemies."

And in the Shakespearean words of Enobarbus, Antony's forthright friend and comrade-in-arms, "Age cannot wither her nor custom stale/Her infinite variety. Other women cloy/The appetites they feed, but she makes hungry/Where most she satisfies . . ."

Cleopatra, whose childhood had to be sandwiched in between a frightening succession of royal assassinations and executions, political plots and poisonings, disputed thrones and military takeovers; whose stormy rule brought Egypt's great dynasty of the Ptolemies to an end; who numbered among her lovers two of the greatest heroes in Roman history, Julius Caesar and Mark Antony; who charmed both Caesar and Antony into going to war for her; who died at the age of thirty-nine, before the passing years could make a liar of Enobarbus; who remains the immortal symbol of Woman at her most bewitching.

"The Serpent of Old Nile," as Antony affectionately calls her, has fascinated writers, directors and actresses for centuries. In Shakespeare's day Cleopatra was portrayed by teenage boys. In our own century, she has been played by actresses ranging from Vivien Leigh, Katharine Hepburn and Margaret Leighton to Claudette Colbert, Leslie Uggams and Elizabeth Taylor.

To begin its sixth San Francisco repertory season, A.C.T. presents the two most distinguished portraits of Cleopatra in our language, Bernard Shaw's Caesar and Cleopatra and William Shakespeare's Antony and Cleopatra. The two great plays also offer heroic characterizations, respectively, of Julius Caesar and Mark Antony, as well as a vast gallery of memorable supporting roles.

Performed side by side in rotating repertory, the pair of works presents a series of sharp dramatic contrasts. Shaw's Cleopatra is sixteen, while Shakespeare's is seen in the last years of her literally fabulous life. Shaw's play—and his view of the budding temptress—is delightfully comic; in Shakespeare's work, the Queen emerges as a mature and magnificent tragic heroine.

The two Cleopatras have many things in common, share many traits and are, in a real sense, two sides of the same coin. Yet each role is complete in itself, multi-faceted in its own way, the singular creation of a master playwright. Each stands alone but is enriched and more completely defined by its relation to the other.

The two productions have different directors and leading players, adding to the sense of contrast and individuality. The Shaw comedy features Peter Donat as Caesar and Lee McCain as Cleopatra under the direction of William Ball. Allen Fletcher's production of the Shakespearean tragedy offers Ken Ruta as Mark Antony and Michael Learned as Cleopatra.

Caesar and Cleopatra

Caesar and Cleopatra takes place in Alexandria in 48 and 47 B.C., three years before Caesar's assassination in Rome, the subject of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar.

Plutarch, to whom both Shakespeare and Shaw turned in writing their plays, comments on Caesar's Egyptian interlude:

"In Egypt Caesar found palace intrigue among Ptolemy XII, Pothinus the Prime Minister and Cleopatra, who had been banished by her brother. Caesar had great trouble from the unfriendly and haughty Pothinus, and succeeded in defeating Pothinus' attempts to murder him only by sitting up all night. Caesar then sent for Cleopatra, who was smuggled into his quarters wrapped in a rich carpet. Captivated by her charm and bold wit, he fell in love with Cleopatra and fought to gain full power in Egypt for her.

"In this fight his small army suffered many disadvantages by being in a strange country. The Egyptians diverted the canals and thus cut off his water supply. When they tried to cut off his communications by sea, he set fire to some of his ships and thus accidentally to the docks and to the great Alexandrian library. In a desperate battle he leaped from a sea wall into a small boat to save his soldiers, who were in danger . . . At last Caesar prevailed and crushed the opposition to Cleopatra.

"He left Cleopatra queen of Egypt, with a baby son named Caesarion. He then went to Pontus to suppress a revolt. He so quickly and thoroughly defeated the rebels that he could honestly report, 'Veni, Vidi, Vici'—'I came, I saw, I conquered.'"

The excerpt reveals that Plutarch's Life of Caesar was a major source for Shaw—and that the playwright didn't hesitate for a second to rearrange or omit certain historical data when it suited his theatrical purposes. Like all great writers dramatizing history, Shaw never let facts become obstacles in his quest for the truth.

To fend off any complaints about Caesar and Cleopatra not having a proper "historical" tone and being "too modern" in manner, Shaw wrote a detailed defense of the play and its principal characters in which he scorned the idea of Progress and its corollary that ancient peoples must have been barbaric and benighted by comparison to modern enlightened mankind:

"My reason for ignoring the popular conception of Progress in Caesar and Cleopatra is that there is no reason to suppose that any Progress has taken place since their time. But even if I shared the popular delusion, I do not see that I could have made any essential difference in the play. I can only imitate humanity as I know it..."

Shaw envisioned Julius Caesar as possessed of a "natural greatness" growing out of his "genuine originality." The playwright explains, "It is in this sense that I have represented Caesar as great. Having virtue, he had no need of goodness. He is neither forgiving, frank, nor generous, because a man who is too great to resent has nothing to forgive; a man who says things that other people are afraid to say need be no more frank than Bismarck was; and there is no generosity in giving things you do not want to people of whom you intend to make use. This distinction between virtue and goodness is not understood in England: hence the poverty of our drama in heroes.

"... The really interesting question is whether I am right in assuming that the way to produce an impression of greatness is by exhibiting a man, not as mortifying his nature by doing his duty... but as simply doing what he naturally wants to do. For this raises the question whether our world has not been wrong in its moral theory for the last 2500 years or so."

About his tawny young enchantress, Shaw remarks, "Cleopatra was only sixteen when Caesar went to Egypt; but in Egypt sixteen is a riper age than it is in England. The childishness I have ascribed to her, as far as it is childishness of character and not lack of experience, is not a matter of years. It may be observed in our own climate at the present day in many women of fifty. It is a mistake to suppose that the difference between wisdom and folly has anything to do with the difference between physical age and physical youth. Some women are younger at seventy than most women at seventeen."

Antony and Cleopatra

Shakespeare's panoramic tragedy telescopes the essential facts of the last decade in the lives of Antony and Cleopatra, foreshortening that lengthy period into an intense dramatic whole. These were the years immediately following the death of Julius Caesar, who was succeeded as ruler of Rome by an ill-fated Triumvirate consisting of Antony, Octavius Caesar and Lepidus. The multiplicity of settings in the play include Rome, the Egyptian court at Alexandria and several battlefields. Most scholars date the writing of Antony and Cleopatra at 1607, during the same period (1600-1608) in which Shakespeare wrote Hamlet, Macbeth, King Lear and Othello.

After noting that his first meeting with Cleopatra caused Antony to forget home, duty and country, Plutarch writes that Antony "went to Alexandria and wasted his most valuable asset, time. Cleopatra used flattery, charm, cleverness and fantastic entertainments to tie Antony passionately to her. She played dice with him, drank with him, hunted with him, and played violent pranks with him on the people of Alexandria. They accepted the foolishness well, saying they were glad he acted his tragic parts in Rome and saved the comedy for them.

"One day, when he had bad luck in fishing, he ordered divers to attach fish to his hooks so that he could seem to Cleopatra to be a great fisherman. She realized what he was doing, but praised him highly; and the next day she invited others to watch Antony fish. An Egyptian diver then submerged and put a salted fish on his hook, to the merriment of all. 'Leave the fishing to us,' she said. 'Your game is cities, provinces and kingdoms.'"

Later in his Life of Antony, when little comedy remained amid the tragic spectacle of Antony's doomed political and military ventures on behalf of Cleopatra, Plutarch reports that even after crushing defeats in battle, "Antony's leadership and resourcefulness saved his men repeatedly... His soldiers remained intensely loyal during this trial, calling him emperor and saying that as long as he was well they were safe.

"They loved him for his courage, eloquence, nobility of spirit, frank manners, and his liberal and magnificent habits. He visited his wounded men, crying in grief over their condition. They appreciated his friendliness, kindness and consideration for the sick and wounded, who seemed even more eager to serve than those who were whole and strong."

Plutarch's tribute to the nobility of Antony was written in the first cen-

There is, of course, a dictionary difference.

But Dr. Ferry Porsche sees it another way.

Artist or engineer, there is always a result. And that result is always judged 2 ways: on idea, and on execution.

So it is under Dr. Ferry Porsche that we build the Porsche 911.

The idea was that a man should be able to transport himself in an exquisite piece of machinery, with enormous safety, ease and control.

The execution was the design, making, and assembly of thousands of parts of metal. And every part had to make a contribution to the idea.

This left no room for the normal tricks of car making.

It meant forming much of the car on workbenches, and finishing most of it by hand.

It meant ignoring the accountant's cry for cost reductions ("You can make this part cheaper and it'll be almost as good...").

It also meant we wouldn't just spot-check every 10th or 20th engine. (We run every one on the test bench before it's put in the car—then run it again on a test track before the car leaves the plant.)

The result is a car with incredible balance and performance. A car that has won repeatedly in competition racing—even beating cars with more powerful engines.

The 911 didn't win those races on the racetrack. They were won much earlier.

On idea. And execution.

“Leonardo da Vinci was considered first an artist, then an engineer. What is your opinion, Dr. Porsche?”

“Is there any difference?”

tury A.D. The following tribute to Shakespeare by Shaw came somewhat later, after Caesar and Cleopatra was completed in 1898: "In manner and art, nobody can write better than Shakespeare, because, carelessness apart, he did the thing as well as it can be done within the limits of human faculty."

An eloquent tribute, to be sure; but Shaw, being Shaw, couldn't resist adding that he thought Caesar and Cleopatra better than Antony and Cleopatra. Following the first performances of his play, in the face of some unflattering reviews Shaw prophesied that theatregoers of the future would regard Caesar and Cleopatra as a masterpiece.

On the latter point, most of us would agree with the old wizard. As for the former—well, let's just be glad we have both plays.

WELCOME . . .

to our sixth season of repertory theatre in the San Francisco Bay Area. We will present a full schedule of new productions and revivals during the coming months at the Geary,⁹ and we hope you will be with us for all of them.

It has been nearly five years since A.C.T. first came to San Francisco, a new company striving to combine the American idea of resident theatre with the European practice of rotating repertory and the classic concept of continuous training, study and rehearsal as an integral and inseparable part of every performer's life.

From the very first, you welcomed us with warm and generous hospitality. And your ongoing support has made it possible for us to continue working toward our artistic goals. That support, in addition to your enthusiasm and your willingness to participate with us in the adventure of theatre, makes us proud—and grateful—to call the San Francisco Bay Area our home.

We hope that your faith in us is reflected in the quality of our productions, and we thank you, our audience, and the California Theatre Foundation, our local sponsor, for the opportunity to work and to grow. We are proud to have you with us for this performance and trust that we may share many entertaining evenings with you in the future.

REDISCOVERING "DANDY DICK"

By Edward Hastings

Arthur Wing Pinero has been rediscovered. Revivals of his plays now appear in London, New York and Vienna—not to mention San Francisco, where Pinero's Dandy Dick will join our repertory on December 14.

The man who was England's most successful playwright in the last two decades of the nineteenth century has been rescued at last from the public neglect to which, ironically, his very success assigned him. Perhaps if Pinero had stopped writing in 1910, when he was still a major figure, our memory of him would be brighter. But unfortunately—and typically—he continued to offer plays to an audience which had outgrown him, trying to recapture his success by repeating his formula.

Eventually, the latest Pinero effort was dismissed by critics as Shaw had dismissed the early ones: "Mr. Pinero, in effect, invented a new sort of play by taking the ordinary article and giving it an air of novel, profound and original thought. This he was able to do because he was an inveterate 'character actor' (a technical term denoting a clever stage performer who cannot act, and therefore makes an elaborate study of the disguises and stage tricks by which acting can be grotesquely simulated) as well as a competent dramatist on customary lines. His performance as a thinker and philosopher is simply character acting in the domain of authorship ..."

Shaw was reacting to what he regarded as a missed opportunity. He recognized Pinero's gifts as an innovative playwright and creator of character but deplored the abuse of that gift in the hands of a hopelessly old-fashioned moralist.

Whatever critics and historians said of Pinero, however, actors praised him. They liked to act in his plays—partly, no doubt, for financial reasons, but also because Pinero wrote good parts. Cast lists of his plays read like Who's Who in the Theatre. Mrs. Pat Campbell had her greatest triumph with Pinero until Shaw wrote Pygmalion for her; Eleanora Duse, Ethel Barrymore and Tallulah Bankhead have all played Pinero's The Second Mrs. Tanqueray. A letter exists from actress Ellen Terry asking Pinero to write a play for the celebrated Henry Irving. He never did, but he wrote for such distinguished actors of his day as du Maurier, Forbes-Robertson (Shaw's original Caesar in Caesar and Cleopatra) and Tree.

Pinero knew how to write for actors because he had been one. He knew what "worked" onstage because he'd frequently had to do this work himself, and he loved doing it. His love for the theatre shines through his famous comedy Trelawney of the Wells, about the Sadler Wells Theatre, the neighborhood playhouse for the stagestruck young Pinero in 1865. (continued on p. 21)

Edward Hastings directs the A.C.T. production of Dandy Dick, opening December 14.

Which Vat 69?

It's a matter of taste.

Is your estate in order? If you think it is just because you've made a Will, you might be wrong.

This is why. In all probability, here's what your widow would get:
A life insurance payment.
A social security payment.
A profit-sharing or pension plan payment.
A savings account or two.
Some miscellaneous stocks and bonds.

Bits and pieces. Odds and ends. They'd dribble in slowly. And they could dwindle away quickly.

But suppose you lumped those assets together. They'd add up to enough money to make money.

Suppose you made a Security Pacific Bank trust part of your Will. You'd incorporate your entire estate into one neat portfolio.

And here's what your widow would get:

A good regular income.
In one monthly check.
For a good long time.

That's because Security Pacific Bank's trust specialists have a proud record in managing estates to support the people they're supposed to support. And the result is a great many well-provided-for widows.

Now. Once again. Is your estate really in order? Think about it.

After a brief career as a law clerk, Pinero determined to become an actor. He played in provincial companies and was discovered by Irving, who invited the youthful character man to join his famous company at the Lyceum Theatre in London. There, Pinero began to write one-act curtain raisers with roles for himself and his friends. Eventually, he tried his hand at full-length plays, but he always wrote with a specific player in mind. He knew the strengths and weaknesses of his fellows, and he knew how he might persuade them to explore and expand their skills.

From the beginning, Pinero directed his own plays and became known for meticulous attention to stage business. Lines were written to be spoken with the accompaniment of specific actions, and the young director insisted on their "rightness." Happily, knowledge of stagecraft was matched by his observation of life, and his early serious dramas were well received by both press and public.

Comedy writing was a logical next step for the successful thirty-year-old writer. Pinero shrewdly brought his slightly cynical view of life to bear on the sentimental crises and victories of the English bourgeoisie. His skill in examining human foibles in the midst of outlandish situations brought immediate success and led to the series of enormously popular Court Farces. The Magistrate, which Pinero wrote for a pair of fellow actors who had newly opened the Court Theatre, broke records and was followed next season by an equally successful comedy, The Schoolmistress. The subsequent season brought Dandy Dick, which opened at the Court on January of 1887.

Each of the Court Farces is marked by a hard but loving vision of men and their nonsense. Human weakness leads to ridiculous complications, in the tradition of French farce but with an English sentimentality and Pinero's special gift for character study.

One remembers Pinero's people long after their plots have been forgotten, and in Dandy Dick particularly, the "play-ability" of the characters is remarkable. The Sporting Dean of St. Marvell's; his horse-racing sister, "George"; his dotty Biblical daughters, Salome and Sheba; and their tin-soldier suitors are part of a Pinero gallery of vivid comic portraits.

How the fate of the church steeple depends on the singed tail of a horse named Dandy Dick is funny in its own right, but the comic situation merits rediscovery primarily because Pinero wrote it to be played by artists with the artistry he understood and loved.

NOTES ON "THE TAVERN"

The most perennially popular of all George M. Cohan's plays and the author's own personal favorite, The Tavern returns to the A.C.T. repertory for its second season. First presented here in June, 1970, at the Marines' Memorial Theatre, the production proved the surprise hit of the season. For the current revival, Ellis Rabb's original production has been restaged for the larger Geary Theatre.

The Tavern is one of three A.C.T. hits from the past being revived during the 1971-72 season, along with Tom Stoppard's Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead, returning in January, and Henrik Ibsen's An Enemy of the People, rejoining the repertory in April.

Cohan, one of the great figures of American theatre history, was a jack of all theatrical trades—vaudevillian, actor, singer, dancer, playwright, composer, lyricist, director and producer. In writing The Tavern, Cohan created not only a melodrama, but also a farce and an affectionate spoof of melodramatic conventions as well.

The play's original Broadway production opened more than a half century ago, in 1920. It was revived ten years later with Cohan himself in the key role of the Vagabond. He was so fond of The Tavern that in 1940 he wrote a sequel to it called Return of The Vagabond. It was to be his last Broadway show, for two years later Cohan died at the age of sixty-four.

"What makes The Tavern different from most farces," says Rabb, who first directed it in 1962 for his APA Repertory Company in New York, "is that Cohan gave it such a lot of heart. In the midst of all the fast action and comedy, there's genuine sentiment, and it all works together beautifully."

The return of The Tavern is doubly welcome, since it also signals the return to A.C.T. of actor Ray Reinhardt, in the role of the Vagabond, after a season's absence.

Pineau de la Loire

A unique bottling of a noble white grape from the cellars of The Christian Brothers

Some of the grapes here in our Napa Valley vineyards have more distinguished names than others. Pineau de la Loire is most descriptive—for this is the grape of the Touraine district in France's Loire Valley.

In its homeland, it produces wines of a fresh, sprightly character. I have been intrigued by capturing this promise. By setting aside all of its limited crop, and fermenting it very slowly, to retain all of the fruitiness of the grape, Pineau de la Loire has yielded an exceptionally charming wine. It is aged to full maturity in vat and bottle and is now ready to be enjoyed at your table.

With its splendid name and noble heritage Pineau de la Loire is a worthy accompaniment to the finest meal. Its medium body and soft, fruity flavor are especially suited to foods that are not too heavily spiced. Shellfish, sole or a light meat are suggestions. It should be served chilled, of course.

Pineau de la Loire is "Estate Bottled." On our wines this means the grapes are solely from our own vineyards. The cuvee number is another designation of its individually controlled production. It is priced at about $3.00 a bottle. Should your wine merchant fail to have it, you may write to me.

When I say Chrysler gives every Imperial a road test, I don't mean they just drive it around the block.

They give it a road test.

I've seen the way Chrysler builds cars; they really care about their product. And when it comes to the Imperial, they don't stop with just building it. They run it through a road test that gives it over 100 different checks. From the windshield wipers to the transmission.

If it's not right, they don't want you to have it. That's nice to know when you spend that kind of money for a new car.

Look inside an Imperial. Examine some of the things they check during the road test. The way the seats work. The fit of the glove box door. The operation of the windows.

Then, feel the carpeting and the upholstery. Sit behind the wheel and look around you. I think the things you can see will tell you something about the way this car's put together.

If everybody would do as much as the automobile industry is doing to clean up our environment, we'd be well on the way to solving many of our problems.

Chrysler has already done a lot to cut down pollution.

And now they've developed a new electronic ignition system that does away with the points and condenser that can wear out. You can order it on every Chrysler.

It helps keep the engine tuned longer. And a tuned engine means a cleaner exhaust.

You're washing your car, you poke at a little spot and a chunk of rust falls off. Ever have that happen to you?

Well, the Chrysler people have been doing something to help keep that from happening. They dip their car bodies in special solutions to help prevent corrosion.

Coming through with the kind of car America wants.

That's their slogan this year. And I think that's the kind of car they're building. One that lasts longer and works better than anything they've ever built before.

I drive an Imperial. What else? It's big and beautiful and plush . . . and my snooty friends love to sit back in it.

But the important thing to me is the way Chrysler puts these cars together. They want this car to last. And I think that's the kind of car America wants.

Allen Fletcher

Ellis Rabb

WILLIAM BALL, General Director, founded the American Conservatory in 1965. This season, he directs the opening production, Bernard Shaw's Caesar and Cleopatra. Prior to A.C.T.'s beginnings, he staged the highly acclaimed Lincoln Center production of Tartuffe in New York and Homage to Shakespeare, starring John Gielgud, Edith Evans and Margaret Leighton, at Philharmonic Hall. His Off-Broadway productions include Six Characters in Search of an Author, which won him the Outer Circle Critics, Obie and D'Annunzio awards; Under Milkwood, honored with the D'Annunzio and Outer Circle Critics awards; and Ivanov, winner of the Obie and Vernon Rice Drama Desk awards. In 1964, he re-created his production of Six Characters in London with a cast headed by Ralph Richardson and Michael O'Sullivan. Among the operas he directed at the New York City Center are Don Giovanni, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Porgy and Bess, The Inspector General, Così fan tutte and Six Characters in Search of an Author. He served as both director and librettist of Lee Hoiby's Natalia Petrovna, a new opera commissioned by the Ford Foundation and produced at the City Center. Mr. Ball has worked as guest director at all major North American theatre festivals, including the American Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Connecticut, the Stratford Shakespeare Festival in Ontario, the San Diego Shakespeare Festival, the Arena Stage in Washington D.C., the Alley Theatre in Houston, and the Antioch and Toledo Shakespeare Festivals. He made his San Francisco directorial debut ten years ago with the Actor's Workshop production of The Devil's Disciple. A graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Mr. Ball has been the recipient of a Fulbright Scholarship, a Ford Foundation Directorial Grant and an NBC-RCA Director's Fellowship. He directed the A.C.T. productions of Tartuffe, Six Characters, King Lear, Under Milkwood, The American Dream, Twelfth Night, Hamlet, Tiny Alice, Oedipus Rex, Three Sisters, The Tempest and Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead. The latter returns to the A.C.T. Repertory this winter for its third season. In addition to his work as a director, Mr. Ball teaches in the company's Conservatory training programs.

JAMES B. MCKENZIE, Executive Producer, is a graduate of the University of Iowa and holds a master's degree from Columbia University. Prior to joining A.C.T., he was one of the East Coast's most active theatrical producers, having been involved in more than 800 plays on Broadway, national and international tours, as well as in repertory theatres and stock productions. A member of the League of New York Theatres, the Association of Theatrical Press Agents and Managers, and the New York and Wisconsin State Councils of the Arts, Mr. McKenzie is also former President of The Council of Stock Theatres. A member of A.C.T.'s board of directors prior to his appointment as executive producer, Mr. McKenzie has also served as producer of the Westport Country Playhouse (Conn.), the Bucks County Playhouse (Penn.), the Peninsula Players (Wisc.), the Mineola Theatre (New York), as president of the Producing Managers Company and as associate producer of the Royal Poinciana Playhouse (Palm Beach). His highly successful Broadway production of And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little, starring Julie Harris, is currently on tour.

EDWARD HASTINGS, Executive Director and Resident Stage Director, was a Production Stage Manager for David Merrick before joining A.C.T.

as a founding member. What is "subsidized" theatre, and why is it needed? Who subsidizes it? How does subsidy work? The answers to this series of questions are vital to the future of theatre in our community and in our country.

To begin with the first, a subsidized theatre is one which depends for its survival on financial support above and beyond its box office revenues. A.C.T. is such a theatre, and William Nuerge, Jr., Executive Director of the California Theatre Foundation, is one of those most directly concerned with A.C.T.'s finances.

Working closely with the members of C.T.F., local sponsor and fund-raising arm of A.C.T., Nuerge constantly seeks to expand the base of financial support for San Francisco's resident theatre company, to insure its stability and continuity.

To the question of why theatre subsidy is needed, he answers, "A.C.T. presents outstanding plays on a scale that simply isn't feasible in a commercial theatre situation. On Broadway, for example, a show of similar scope would have to run for many months before recouping its original investment."

And, Nuerge points out, "A.C.T. has presented some 89 such productions since it came to San Francisco in 1967, ranging from the classics to original musicals to special one-man shows. Its record is unmatched anywhere in the country, and it has made the Bay Area a focus of national theatre attention, as well as a real theatrical resource."

The company's educational services are still another reason for its financial need, Nuerge adds: "A.C.T. presents many special low-price matinees every season especially for students and offers discount tickets to students at all evening performances, too. Without such a service, most students would never be exposed to quality theatre. And without this kind of repertory theatre, great plays like Three Sisters, Oedipus Rex, Antony and Cleopatra or Tartuffe would never be professionally produced."

Nuerge reminds theatregoers that A.C.T.'s yearly grant from the Ford Foundation must be matched by locally raised funds. "This policy," he says, "means that in effect every dollar donated to A.C.T. locally is doubled in value through the Ford grant."

A.C.T.'s fund-raising goal for the coming year is $500,000. "There are many ways in which Bay Area donors can take part in our fund-raising campaign," Nuerge explains. "One way is through sponsorship of a student in A.C.T.'s training program."

"A case in point is actress Kitty Winn, a former scholarship student at A.C.T., who trained for a season, played small roles, graduated to the title role of Saint Joan during the 1970 season and went on to win the Best Actress award at the Cannes Film Festival this year for her performance in The Panic in Needle Park."

Nuerge notes that there are many special donor programs in which Bay Area theatregoers can take part. He urges those interested in lending their support to A.C.T. to contact him at the California Theatre Foundation offices in San Francisco's Phelan Building.

Who'd ever know the beautiful Catalina is Pontiac's least expensive full-size car?

You'd never know by the styling.

Or by the added value. Or by all the standard equipment.

A bumper system to help protect the front.

Two steel boxes filled with a resilient material are placed between bumper and frame. On minor impact, the material absorbs energy and returns to its original shape. And the bumper returns to position.

A way to help protect the bumper.

A thick rubber-like strip you can order guards against dings and scratches.

Typical Pontiac performance.

A 350-cu.-in. V-8 is standard. Or you can order from any of four outstanding V-8s. Turbo Hydra-matic transmission. Power front disc brakes. Variable-ratio power steering. They're all standard.

A long list of safety equipment.

Energy-absorbing steering column. Front-seat head restraints. Dual master cylinder brake system. And many more.

Plenty of reasons for going Catalina.

And they all add up to value. When you buy. When you trade. They're well worth checking out at your Pontiac dealer's.

DINING OUT

Ask any San Franciscan, native or transplant, and he'll tell you that his city has the best restaurants in the World. And, he's right. We do have the best, no matter what type of food you're in the mood for.

But, once in a while we like to get out of town for a leisurely drive and dine somewhere in the country. And, if you've never been to the sleepy little town of Occidental, about an hour and a half's drive from the city, you've a surprise in store. Dressed comfortably, jump in the car—and don't forget the kids, they'll like it too—and head North on Highway 101 over the Golden Gate Bridge. About seven miles past Petaluma, take the turn off at Highway 116 West to Sebastopol. From there, it's six miles to Freestone and another four miles to Occidental, the town that's nestled amidst the redwoods.

You'll have three restaurants to choose from when you get there . . . Fiore's, Negri's, and the old Union Hotel which has been in business under the same family ownership for over 100 years. Their menus are similar, the cuisine being Italian. All three basically have the same choices: fried chicken, duck, or steak, but other things are sometimes available. The quality is excellent and the quantity is fantastic. And they're all open 365 days of the year . . . for dinner only.

Don't be surprised if you have to wait for a table, especially on weekends. It might be just a bit faster at Negri's because they can seat 400 people. In case you do have to wait, you'll find the bar at each restaurant has a very friendly atmosphere, with cocktails at low prices.

The prices range from approximately $3.00 for fried chicken to $5.15 for steak. As an example, at Negri's, the fried chicken dinner is $3.15; it includes assorted antipasto, a tureen of delicious minestrone soup, green salad, ravioli, vegetable, french fries, coffee, dessert (and you can choose apple fritters), and . . . oh yes . . . even a side order of roast beef! And their steaks overlap the plate. They know that you can't possibly finish it all, so they automatically give you a doggie bag. After dinner, loosen your belt, take a stroll and visit the local art galleries and gift shops. And you'll find that you too will be recommending Occidental to your friends. One final note . . . if you're on a diet, don't use too much salt!

SEA AND SKI CANADA

Skiers are a funny breed, and they'll spare no expense to reach the slopes. Most of them head for the Sierras, but many of them have set their sights for the adventurous slopes of Canada.

And for you skiers who are itching to slalom in the neighboring Northland, P & O Lines and Canadian Pacific Air have combined their best to provide you with a unique winter vacation package. Run away to sea . . . and ski!

Two departures are offered in the coming season—one in January and one in February. They offer something that's really different in a winter vacation, one way transportation to or from Canada's Whistler Mountain via P & O's S. S. Oriana with the other half of the trip via luxurious Canadian Pacific Air Jet. Both tours may originate in either San Francisco or Los Angeles and combine the glamour and excitement of an ocean cruise with the adventure of a ski vacation.

Tour #1 is scheduled for departure from San Francisco on the S. S. Oriana on January 15, 1972 at 6 PM. Arrival in Vancouver is at 7 AM on January 17. Five days and nights will be spent at the lodge of your choice at Whistler Mountain, a mere 75 miles from Vancouver. Return to San Francisco via C P Air Jet on January 22.

Tour #2 departs San Francisco via Canadian Pacific Air Jet on February 12. Seven days and six nights will be spent at Whistler on this tour. Your ocean cruise will depart Vancouver at 6 PM on February 19 arriving in San Francisco on February 21 at 8 AM.

This is really an out of the ordinary vacation and offers the best of two worlds. The days on the ship are filled with many varied and exciting activities in addition to the usual fun of the sea cruise. Special for this tour are shipboard ski movies, dry land (maybe we should call it "dry sea") ski school, tips by ski experts plus other special features. And at night you have never seen such apres ski fun that you will experience aboard ship.

The other world is at Whistler Mountain. The terrain and snow are some of the best of any resort in the world . . . and on uncrowded slopes. The lodges are small and congenial. So, if you're a gung ho skier (or like some of us, a bar room skier!) here is the value of the winter season. Cruise and ski this winter.

Bon voyage, and don't leave too many sitzmarks!

RUM MARTINI IT'S CATCHING ON.

One martini drinker tells another and pretty soon the whole crowd knows.

The Puerto Rican Rum Martini is just a shade different from the gin or vodka martini.

A shade better because of the subtlety that light, clear, dry Puerto Rican Rum brings to any routine gin or vodka drink.

To make certain that there's no bite and no strong aroma, every White or Silver Puerto Rican Rum is aged and distilled at high proof. And filtered with charcoal for added smoothness.

So next time you make martinis, make them with Puerto Rican Rum.

It'll make a difference. A subtle one.

Notes & Errata

STRADELLA. The "famous foreplay," once a repertoire staple, is little known today. It is performed by Vessella's Italian Band on RCA Victor Black Label 35276 (78 rpm) which, in 1924, was available in most record stores for $1.25.

SEMIRAMIDE. Charley does not describe the action in its correct chronological sequence. He gives the impression that Nino (or Ninus) "stands up from his grabe" before we have been told that Assur is Semiramide's lovehaver.

LAKME. (1) It is essential that one speak fluent German as well as fluent English to understand Charley's synopsis. This is a poor translation. (2) "Frederich (sic) sticks himself in the bushes . . ." No, he has not entered a thorny berry-patch. Charley mistranslates from the German irregular verb (active or transitive) verstecken, "to hide." (3) "All mixed people" should read "people of many races." (4) "He makes her to sing song . . ." This is, of course, the famous "Clock Song from Lakmé." (5) "Gift": The confusion here is obvious. This is the German word for "poison."

OBERON. "Charles the Gross" should read "Charles the Great" (Charlemagne).

GUDRUN. (1) There is some confusion here as to whether Charley is referring to mountain or horse when he says "on the mount." (2) "Castle of Gerlind near the See . . ." Not having access to either libretto or score for this work, it is difficult to ascertain whether the action takes place near "the See" (i.e., the Vatican) or "the sea." The latter explanation would, of course, indicate a typographical error. (3) The third act synopsis is, even for Charley, confusing. Was Gerlind not "wonderful dressed" while "begging to enjoy Hartmut?" Who is wonderful dressed, Gerlind or Gudrun? A revival of this opera, preferably in an expert English translation, is definitely in order. (4) "is running in the pile of wood" and "stabbing herself" is pleonastic. The common form of upper-class self-immolation during the early Middle Ages was the inducing of infection in the soles of the feet through the acquisition, normally by means of a shoeless run through a woodshed, of large splinters.

THE PURITANS. "The Ambition of Richard" should read "the ambition of Richard" or "Richard's ambition"; in either case a lower case "a" is called for. The Ambition (upper case), a title roughly comparable to the modern "pretender to the thrown," of Richard (or Richardstown) during the Cromwellian era, when the action of this opera takes place, was named Ralph.

MEPHISTOPHELES. "Faust and Wagner are appearing . . ." Wagner, Richard (1813-1883). German composer.

THE CLOCK OF THE EREMIT. (1) Do not blame the confusion regarding the lost monkeys entirely on Charley. In the opera we are not told whether the monkeys were ever found. (2) "All are going away joyfully" — presumably to look for the monkeys.

DON PASQUALE. (1) Second paragraph: It was the custom in early 19th century Italy for middle-aged bachelors to ask for notaries immediately after being ravished. (2) Third act: There is some disagreement among scholars as to the meaning of "He asked for Malatesta because he is very crank . . ." Does Charley mean "cranky" or krank, the German word for "sick"?

BEATRICE AND BENEDICT. (1) The first sentence is unintelligible. (2) "and the curtains fell" — Charley's words should not be taken literally. He, having written his synopses in an age when all theatres had proscenium arches and, therefore, curtains, naturally expected the curtain(s) to fall at the conclusion of an opera. In some of today's theatres there are no curtains; thus, at the end of an opera, the opera simply ends, the cast taking its "curtain calls" anyway, whether or not the audience is applauding.
