The King Who Fell from Grace

by Jeffrey Hirsch

"And he that is today a king, tomorrow shall die."

—Ecclesiastes

The King from THE DANCE OF DEATH by Hans Holbein the Younger (1538)

Good citizens of Elizabethan England — enlightened Renaissance men and women all — had an unusually keen sense of the historical events shaping the times in which they lived. Perhaps their curiosity about the past stemmed from the commonly held 16th century conviction that history displays patterns reflecting God's providential guidance of human affairs. Or it may have been the immediacy with which a monarch's actions could affect his subjects that kept them interested in political trends. A war waged by the king today in some far off land could mean the imposition of heavy new taxes tomorrow and the average fellow's inability to sustain his Tudor lifestyle next week. Or maybe the fascination with the topical events of the times can be explained simply by the fact that the English — then as now — could not resist a good story.

Tales of England's past were being retold in the chronicle-plays of Sidney, Spenser, Lyly and Marlowe when the young actor William Shakespeare decided to try his hand as a dramatist. His earliest plays, the three parts of Henry VI and Richard III, form half of a double tetralogy on the Plantagenet line of kings that was completed some years later with Richard II and the two parts of Henry IV and Henry V. Together, the plays document the struggle for the English crown that went on from the close of the 14th to the end of the 15th century.

The message of Shakespeare's histories is clear: being a medieval English king was a very tricky business. One was never certain where to seek council; there were always more flatterers than honest men at Court. To secure and consolidate one's power, one often had to murder, first, one's enemies, and before long, one's former allies. Possible usurpers, successors and pretenders to the crown were everywhere — they too had to be killed. But one could not execute all of one's subjects.

Inevitably, from banishment would come some son or brother to defend the violated laws of God and Man, and avenge his relation's death. The old king would fall and a new prince ascend the throne to begin the cycle again.

The last 150 years of Plantagenet rule in England describe just such cycles. Beginning with Edward III, seventh of the Plantagenet kings, the fall of the House can be projected forth to Richard III's death at Bosworth and the ascension in 1485 of Henry VII, the first Tudor king.

Richard II was one of seven grandsons of the prolific Edward III. Richard's father, Edward the Black Prince (so called because of his black armor), was proper heir to the throne but predeceased King Edward. Thus it came to pass that Richard, aged 10, succeeded Edward III as King of England in 1377. Richard's coronation ceremony was the most splendid England had ever seen; its pomp and excess were to become a hallmark of his 22-year reign.

Young Richard's rule was, for the most part, evenhanded. John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, Richard's uncle and guardian, served him faithfully as chief advisor. But before he reached the age of majority, Richard forsook his uncle's council and lent his ear to several courtiers of dubious character. The king's fickleness led parliament to mistrust him and incensed his youngest uncle, Thomas of Woodstock, Duke of Gloucester. An anti-royalist faction led by Gloucester saw further evidence of Richard's unfitness to rule in his marriage to the King of France's seven year old daughter.

When hostility between his clique and senior nobles raged out of control, Richard responded by having Gloucester arrested. Some historians view the action as retaliatory and irresponsible, but others argue defensively that, as God's anointed representative on earth, a medieval monarch's power was absolute and inviolate. King Richard was above the law and tradition, while Gloucester's seditious conduct was tantamount to treason against God and Country. "The breath of worldly men," declaims the eponymous sovereign, "cannot depose the deputy elected by the Lord."

William Shakespeare

Shakespeare's recounting of Richard's fall from grace begins in 1398, just after Gloucester's arrest and murder. The play raises the question of the king's complicity in the crime but does not answer it directly. Whether or not Richard starts the play with blood on his hands, he soon ineluctably seals his fate by illegally seizing Gaunt's land thereby depriving Bolingbroke of his rightful inheritance.

The Tragedy of Richard II was written in 1595 as its author approached his 30th birthday. An epidemic of plague had closed London's theatres for the two preceding years during which Shakespeare composed the poems, Venus and Adonis and The Rape of Lucrece and began writing sonnets. It was during this period of lyricism that Richard II, Romeo and Juliet and A Midsummer Night's Dream were set down.

Writing entirely in verse, Shakespeare shaped Richard II's primary historical source, Holinshead's Chronicles of England, Scotland and Ireland, into some of his most lovely and memorable speeches. Richard's elegy on the death of kings has been called "the most perfect thing Shakespeare ever wrote," and Gaunt's praise of England before he dies so masterfully evokes British patriotism that it was often broadcast by the BBC during World War II.

The complete text of Richard II was not published until 1608, five years after the death of Queen Elizabeth I. Prior to that time, in deference to the queen, the play had appeared without the scene in which Richard is deposed.

Elizabeth's concern was in parallels she saw between herself and Richard. Like the late Plantagenet, she had no progeny to succeed her, was accused of unjust taxation and surrounded herself with a circle of favorites. One sycophant, the Earl of Essex, plotted against Elizabeth. On the day before the planned insurrection, Essex engaged Shakespeare's company to perform Richard II, complete with its inflammatory deposition scene, in an attempt to incite the citizenry. Essex's attempted rebellion failed and he was executed for treason. Seeing Essex as her Bolingbroke, Elizabeth beseeched her ministers, "I am Richard II, know ye not that?"

Richard II is a study of the nature of kingliness. The play demonstrates the necessity of competence in a ruler and obedience in a subject. It is a king's divine right to govern but if he lacks the authority, majesty or wisdom to do so, someone better equipped may come forward to seize the sceptre.

Richard II is Shakespeare's first tragic hero in a line that eventually leads to Hamlet and Lear. A man of conflicted intentions, Richard is often referred to as the "poet-king" for his introspection and passion in defeat and the "actor-king" for his self-conscious assumption of the "role" of the fallen monarch after his return from Ireland. In fact, he is nothing more or less than a man who would — but could not — be king. Not so much insincere as excessive, not so much careless as restless, Richard is not a very bad man, just a very bad king. He gains knowledge through experience and strength through adversity but all too late. Self-realization comes only as he faces death: "I wasted time and now doth time waste me," rues the deposed Richard.

At last, the King's fall became the Country's. As Richard II plunged into the abyss of death, England sank into a dark period of nearly 100 years in which havoc was loosed and anarchy reigned.★

I Remember Mama

Mama's Literary Child

by Jeffrey Hirsch

Leif Ericson discovered North America in the year 1000. During the next millennium the Viking explorer was followed to the New World by a mass Norwegian migration. At its peak in the 19th century, over half a million Norwegians sailed to America, settling in the East, upper Midwest and as far west as Seattle and San Francisco. The settlers found the new land hospitable and the American concepts of liberty, human rights and self-determination in fulfillment of their old Nordic ideals. The melting pot process of acculturation began and soon immigrants of peasant stock gave birth to the first generation of Norwegian-Americans, children who grew up to realize their parents' American dreams.

Kathryn Forbes was one such dream child who became a writer. Reminiscences of her San Francisco childhood centering around the figure of a loving and understanding mother — a composite drawn from the author's mother and grandmother — first appeared in magazines in 1941 and two years later, a collection of 17 nostalgic episodes was published as Mama's Bank Account. Response to the book was instantaneous and enthusiastic. Forbes' account of every mother's struggles and triumphs became a bestseller and was translated into French, German, Belgian, Japanese, Korean, Danish, Swedish and, of course, Norwegian. The War Department ordered 50,000 copies of the book and dispatched them to servicemen overseas as reminders of the families that awaited their return to the motherland.

The success of Forbes' book became a natural attraction for the burgeoning entertainment industry. Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, fresh from their first collaboration as composer and lyricist on the smash hit Oklahoma!, elected to make their bow as Broadway producers with a dramatic version of the Mama stories.

John van Druten, an expatriated Englishman, was chosen to adapt the book for the stage. He had first come to the attention of American audiences with Young Woodley in 1928, and would continue to be represented on Broadway with a new play nearly every season until his death in 1957. Among his many acclaimed plays are Bell, Book and Candle and I Am a Camera which provided the basis for the musical Cabaret. An accomplished director, van Druten staged a number of his own plays and as his first go at a musical comedy mounted the premiere production of The King and I in 1950. He also wrote several screenplays, including Gaslight, the 1954 movie for which Ingrid Bergman received an Academy Award.

With skills acquired as a screenwriter van Druten dramatized Forbes' stories, maintaining their episodic quality by employing the device of a narrator to unify the vignettes. This technique had been used to good effect by Thornton Wilder six years earlier in Our Town — however, unlike Wilder's Stage Manager who talks directly to the audience, van Druten's Katrin does not acknowledge it; she is a writer speaking aloud to herself as she composes her tales.

I Remember Mama, under van Druten's direction, opened on October 19, 1944 at the Music Box, just up the block from the theatre where the playwright's long running light romantic comedy, The Voice of the Turtle, was playing. The highly favorable critical reception with which Mama was received caused one observer to remark: "It is not strictly fair to say the American theatre consists of John van Druten. No one can reasonably deny, however, that Mr. van Druten is doing as well as may be expected of an author who can only be in two places at once." The New York production of Mama featured Mady Christians as Mama, Oscar Homolka as Uncle Chris and marked the professional acting debut of Marlon Brando in the role of Nels. The show ran 714 performances making Kathryn Forbes a very proud mama, indeed: "I claim the unique distinction of being an author who was very happy with the adaptation, interpretation and presentation of her literary child," said she.

From Broadway I Remember Mama moved into the heartlands with a national touring company starring Charlotte Greenwood and Kurt Katch. The show played San Francisco's Geary Theatre in 1947 at the same time as an RKO Studio film company was in the city shooting location footage for George Stevens' movie version of the play. After finishing a day's filming at the Ferry Building, the movie's cast, which included Irene Dunne, Barbara Bel Geddes, Oscar Homolka, Edgar Bergen, Ellen Corby, Cedric Hardwicke and Rudy Vallee, saw their counterparts perform Mama on stage at the Geary Theatre.

I Remember Mama — the book, the play and the movie next became Mama — the TV show. Running on CBS from 1949 through 1957, Mama was a landmark series in the history of television. Featuring Peggy Wood as Mama and Dick Van Patten as Nels, the show was a prototype of all the "family" series that followed it: Ozzie and Harriet, Father Knows Best and more recently The Waltons with John Boy, a sensitive writer/narrator looking back on his domestic heritage, are all direct descendants of Mama. Because the show was telecast live, unlike other series of the period that were filmed, memories are all that remain of TV's Mama.

I Remember Mama reappeared on Broadway three years ago as a musical comedy with a score composed by Richard Rodgers, co-producer of the original stage play, and starring George Hearn as Papa, George S. Irving as Uncle Chris and Liv Ullmann as Mama. At age 77 Rodgers was unable to work his old musical magic. In spite of the excellent cast the show did not run long and was quickly forgotten.

Through its many incarnations John van Druten's I Remember Mama has achieved immortality. Along with such plays as You Can't Take It With You and Life with Father it is representative of the great comedies of family life. In common with Hogan's Goat, The Tenth Man and A Raisin in the Sun, I Remember Mama celebrates America's ethnic diversity. Reflecting the conflict between tradition and progress and the theme of growing up, the play brings to light all that is valid and good in the American family. Idealized through the prism of memory, Kathryn Forbes' Norwegian immigrant Mama will always be remembered. ★

Mama's Meatballs

4 servings

Meatballs used to be made of a mixture of ground beef and ground lean pork, sometimes with the addition of ground veal. If you want to make classic meatballs, you may have to grind your own pork. But ground lean beef by itself will do very nicely, too.

Meatballs are a simple dish. There are no herbs, no fancy sauces, no sour cream, no tomatoes. If they are served on a smörgasbord or as an appetizer they can be either cold or hot. As a main dish they can be served with gravy made from the drippings in the pan with an addition of stock, bouillon cubes or soy sauce. The smaller the meatballs, the finer they are. For a smörgasbord they're usually the size of a quarter, or smaller.

Cook small meatballs about 5 minutes, larger ones about 8 minutes. Roll meatballs with your hands. If you keep your hands wet and put the finished meatballs on a moistened cutting board, they're easy to handle. There is a trick to frying them and keeping them round. The butter should be hot. Don't fill the skillet more than two-thirds full. Shake frequently so that the meatballs roll around in the hot butter and are browned on all sides.

Turn heat down and let them cook through. If you fry a lot of meatballs, the skillet may have to be washed (and thoroughly dried) between every two or three batches. Meatballs freeze very well. If you make gravy, the gravy should be frozen separately.

1 lb. (450g) ground meat (beef and pork mixed or beef only)

1 egg

1 1/2 tsp salt

dash of pepper

dash of allspice

1/3 - 1/2 cup (1 dl) unseasoned bread crumbs

3/4 cup (2 dl) table cream or milk

1 medium-sized onion

butter

Peel and grate onion. The grated onion can be fried or used raw, as you prefer. Raw onion gives a somewhat stronger taste. Soak bread crumbs in cream. Mix meat, egg, spices and grated onion. Add bread crumbs to meat mixture, and stir well. Roll meatballs and fry in a generous amount of hot butter.

WINE EDITOR APPLAUDS CLASSIC WHITE

"At around $4, The Monterey Vineyard Classic White is a steal. It has what we look for in far more expensive white wines."

James Villas, Food and Wine Editor, Town & Country Magazine

Pre-eminent among the world's wine writers is the much-interviewed, much-quoted Food and Wine Editor of Town & Country Magazine, James Villas. Recently, after tasting The Monterey Vineyard Classic White, Mr. Villas was amazed to find such a high level of quality in a wine that's relatively inexpensive.

"This is just the kind of great wine value I love to discover. The Monterey Vineyard Classic White has the degree of crispness, the dryness and the clean after-taste I usually expect to find in white wines costing a good deal more. We're obviously dealing with a very gifted winemaker."

The Monterey Vineyard Classic White is a multi-varietal vintage wine that is a complex blend of four premium grapes: the crisp, tart character of Pinot Blanc (39%), the essential fruit acidity of coastal Colombard (28%), the flowery fruitiness of Chenin Blanc (19%), and the unusual finesse and breeding of Chardonnay (14%).

Birth Pangs of a Classic

Ray Reinhardt in THE THREE SISTERS

The Three Sisters seems so perfect in conception and construction that it is difficult to believe Chekhov wrote it in bits and snatches over a nine month period. "Quite possibly, what I am getting at is not a play at all, but some Crimean hodgepodge...a hash with four heroines," he complained at one point to Olga Kipper who was to play the role of Masha in the Moscow Art Theatre production.

A letter dated two days later reads, "I have cooled off toward the beginning of the play; it has all grown cheap in my eyes...and now I don't know what to do. A play ought to be written without taking a breath."

By the summer of 1900, the 40-year-old playwright had been banished to Crimean Yalta by his doctors, who had diagnosed tuberculosis in the advanced stage, complicated with emphysema. Whereas he had formerly dashed off a short humorous story or a one-act farce in an afternoon, now it sometimes took a day to write half a page. A genial host, he was constantly interrupted by a steady stream of friends and young writers come to worship at the shrine. In addition, he was also immersed in building a library for his native town of Taganrog, for which he personally selected over 3,000 volumes. There was no solitude to get on with his writing, which he felt never went well in Yalta. Like his three sisters, he chafed in exile and longed for Moscow.

In late October he delivered a completed draft to Stanislavski who was to both direct the play and act Vershinin. After a first read-through, he left the theatre white-faced with anger. The actors were muttering that it wasn't a play, that there were "no acting roles." He remained in Moscow another few weeks, making extensive revisions and complaining that Stanislavski was directing early rehearsals with too heavy a hand, making crybabies of his characters. What he had written was a comedy.

When cold weather drove him first southward and then to France, Chekhov continued sending revisions and additional dialogue all through the rehearsal period as well as detailed letters to Stanislavski and the actors. He advised Knipper that she must not look sad as Masha. "People who have been unhappy, and grown used to it, don't get beyond whistling and are often wrapped up in their thoughts."

From Nice, he begged for news of the play's progress but seldom liked what he heard. Why so much noise in the fire scene? "There should be noise only at a distance, a confused hollow noise. On stage, everyone is exhausted, almost asleep. If you spoil the third act, the play is done for, and I shall be hissed off the stage in my old age." Also, it was not necessary to have Natasha wandering about the stage and looking under the furniture for burglars in that act. "She should cross the stage quickly in a straight line, without a glance at anyone or anything, à la Lady MacBeth, carrying a candle — it would be quicker and more frightening."

When The Three Sisters opened January 31, 1901, Knipper, whom he married that spring, wrote glowingly of the play's triumph, although the production was not nearly as successful as The Cherry Orchard which the Moscow Art Theatre produced three years later, shortly before his death. Chekhov never saw his "Crimean hodgepodge" played. It was, he said, the most difficult play he ever wrote.

Eighty years later, The Three Sisters is considered his masterpiece — an unmatched prose poem that catches as no other modern drama the light ironies of heartbreak and faded dreams, the sadness and laughter and beauty of the passing moment in a human comedy that is at once as complex and simple as life itself. ★

THE PERFECT SERVANT BECOMES THE PERFECT MASTER

One of the most delightful of all fin-de-siecle English comedies is that durable gem of desert island fantasy The Admirable Crichton by the Scottish playwright-master of whimsey James M. Barrie. The fanciful fable of the perfect servant who becomes the perfect master has charmed audiences for nearly 80 years, beginning with that lion of English critics Sir Max Beerbohm.

Crichton is more than merely admirable: he is impeccable with unruffled aplomb in any situation as the butler to a slightly pompous English peer. When shipwreck deposits the peer, his pretty daughters and their somewhat languid suitors on a tropical isle far from their Mayfair drawing room, the hero-butler rises to his noblest stature as the benevolent — and natural — monarch of his "betters." The situation is so happy for all, that the party is loathe to leave their demi-paradise for staid old civilization when rescue finally comes.

Beerbohm felt Barrie could use a bit more logic, but his Peter Pan (1905) was an "unparalleled achievement," Barrie was "quite the most fashionable playwright of the day," and The Admirable Crichton might almost be ranked with The Importance of Being Earnest.

The premiere performance of The Admirable Crichton featured H.B. Irving as Crichton and Miss Irene Vanbrugh as Lady Mary, both of whom Beerbohm found "admirable." But the play itself was the star of the evening. ★

Curtain Up!

Bringing the Magic to Life

The opening of the American Conservatory Theatre's 16th season is an occasion for great excitement. As the audience takes its seats, it is all there — lights, set, and the thrill of live theatre. The wonder and delight, for them, will occur in one short evening, but the magic takes months of preparation. That A.C.T. is a repertory company is not unique — what makes it unique is that it has its own acting company and plays in 'true repertory.' Within any given week, patrons can see three or four different productions and watch the actors perform a variety of roles. It all takes perfect timing and a team of gifted people who enjoy the challenge.

As early as December, the administration, production and marketing departments pencil in preparatory budgets and subscription prices for the season due to open next October. From April on, the forethought becomes tangible: plays, actors and directors are chosen. Designer's images become life-size and the monumental task of the season's scheduling is in focus.

When the scheduling of performances begins in June, the first to be slotted in are previews and opening nights. Even

Stage Terms

Blocking — The movements or locations of actors onstage, including entrances and exits.

Denouement — means "untying the knot" which is to say, the end of the play, when the last problems are unknotted.

Fourth Wall — The imaginary wall at the proscenium opening, "through" which the audience views the play.

Method Acting — Stanislavski attempted to devise a systematic approach enabling the actor to gain more control over himself and his performance. It involves the control of the body and voice, the "correct state of being" on stage, and inner psychological response as the basis for outer physical actions.

Green room — A lounge in a theatre where actors may relax and receive visitors. There are many conflicting theories of the origin of this term, most of which are undoubtedly mythical. The most popular and obvious idea is that such rooms were formerly painted green — a natural and relaxing color. It is known that the first "retiring room" in Covent Garden Theatre, London, was painted and sometimes used to store scenery, so it is thought that green room may be a corruption of "scene room." In the Elizabethan theatre actors awaited their entrances outside the stagehouse on "the green," suggesting another possible source of the term. Finally, in the late 19th and early 20th centuries actors often received payment for their services in cold (green) cash, offering another somewhat implausible but not impossible derivation of the term. Related terms are "green room gossip" for talk engaged in by actors about the theatre and "green room actor" for a performer whose success is limited to green room posturing.

Strike — To remove from the stage the scenery and properties of an act or scene as in "to strike a set" or to clear the stage as in "strike a show."

though there is a pattern to follow, the variables have to fall into place and the process becomes much like a chess game; one variable may take five moves to correct, which creates another three moves — and so it continues until a solution is found. These variables include making sure that the subscribers see the plays throughout the season and not all within a month and that student matinees are scheduled around school holidays and exam periods; also Equity, the union to which the actors belong, rules that no more than five performances within a three-day period, and no more than an eight-day gap between performances of the same play, can be performed.

The designer's sketch of the set is represented by scale models built in the design studio. The models are then used by the carpenters as they build the set to see what the finished product should look like, and by the director to block the play before rehearsal. (Blocking is the technique used to establish the movement of the actors on the stage, including their entrances and exits.) The buyers in the costume shop then begin to collect materials for the costumes.

By August preparations are well under way and the actors begin rehearsal for the first play of the season. Now the challenge is put to the test: will the costumes fit the actors, are the props right for the set? The momentum and anticipation are in high gear for the final run up to Opening.

It's that momentum, that electricity, that gives A.C.T. its life and energy. So many people with so much talent and pride in their craft, meeting the challenge. That is the excellence at A.C.T. you have come to know and expect, the radiance that fills the theatre each night and brightens our lives. Welcome to our 16th season! ★

LOOKING GOOD

More than 100 outstanding Bay Area women attended the opening of the Christine Valmy Salon on Maiden Lane, which honored the American Conservatory Theatre and Leading Ladies of San Francisco.

A.C.T.'s DeAnn Mears and Frank Savino joined San Francisco Supervisor Louise Renne and Natalia Michalun, President of Christine Valmy Maiden Lane, to cut the ribbon, officially opening her new skin care and make-up salon.

Guests were treated to lunch and wine, accompanied by classical guitarist Marc Regnier, and toured the high-tech salon located in the Livingston Building.

Students from A.C.T.'s Conservatory helped as hostesses and performed as models for the make-up skills of Peter Castillo, the salon's Artistic Director.

Mrs. Michalun, an avid supporter of the performing arts, contributed a portion of the opening week profits to A.C.T. ★

A FEAST 400 YEARS IN THE MAKING.

The BEN JONSON RESTAURANT IN SAN FRANCISCO

Enter Ben's magnificent manor and step back into another world. Sample the delights of the airy Ale Garden where salads, seafood and sandwiches are served. (Elizabethan Brunch is served Sunday.)

Trade boasts and toasts surrounded by the four-centuries' old panelled walls in Albyn's Hall! Warm yourself by the hand-carved fireplace while a string trio and live performers entertain.

For a hearty and unhurried feast, ascent the Jacobean staircase to the eloquent Grand Hall, The Chelsea Room or the Radley Room. Most likely, Ben will come 'round to recite one of his poems or regale you with a story while you delight in Devonshire Duckling, Henry VIII cut Prime Rib, Beefe Wellington or our fresh catch of the day.

Have an affair with Ben.

Let Ben make your next business or social affair unforgettable. The Ben Jonson hosts intimate private parties or corporate entertainments for groups up to 350.

A.C.T.'s 16th Season in Repertory 1981-1982

THE MOST RADIANT SEASON EVER

RICHARD II

by William Shakespeare

The chronicle of the poet-philosopher king who believed in the divine right of monarchs, misruled his poor strife-torn England and ultimately, in his fall, achieved a kind of tragic dignity and grandeur—perhaps the most deeply poetic of all Shakespeare's plays.

I REMEMBER MAMA

by John van Druten

A wonderfully heartwarming story of a Norwegian immigrant family struggling to make a good life in 1910 San Francisco. What Mama lacks in the new language, she makes up for in old-world wisdom—as unabashedly sentimental as an old-fashioned valentine.

THE THREE SISTERS

by Anton Chekhov

In a provincial Russian town at the turn of the century, three sisters long to return to the Moscow of their girlhood. An unmatched prose poem that mirrors the sadness, laughter and beauty of the passing moment and the light ironies of heartbreak and fading dreams. A.C.T. encore presentation.

THE ADMIRABLE CRICHTON

by James M. Barrie

Both downstairs and upstairs, Crichton is a perfect servant, the impeccable butler to a pompous English peer. When a shipwreck deposits the peer and his pretty daughters on a desert island far from their Mayfair drawing room, the butler rises to his noblest stature as the natural master in a captivating and whimsical turnabout by the author of Peter Pan.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

by Charles Dickens

The best loved of all Christmas legends, the immortal story of miserly old Ebenezer Scrooge and his miraculous conversion, as traditional as plum pudding at Christmas—and now a tradition at A.C.T.

WHO'S WHO AT A.C.T.

founded the American Conservatory Theatre in 1965. Beginning in the theatre as a designer, he soon turned to acting and appeared with regional companies and Shakespearean festivals across the country. Mr. Ball made his New York directorial debut with Chekhov's little-known Ivanov in an off-Broadway production that won the Obie and Vernon Rice Drama Desk Awards for 1958. The next few years found him directing at Houston's Alley Theatre, San Francisco's Actor's Workshop, Washington D.C.'s Arena Stage, San Diego's American Shakespeare Theatre, as well as staging several operas for the New York City Opera. His 1959 off-Broadway production of Under Milkwood won the Lola D'Annunzio and Outer Circle Critics' Awards. In 1962, his production of Six Characters in Search of an Author proved another multiple award-winner and enjoyed an extended run in New York. After directing at Canada's Stratford Festival, Mr. Ball returned to New York to write the libretto for an opera, Natalia Petrovna, with composer Lee Hoiby, based on A Month in the Country. In 1964, he directed Tartuffe and Homage to Shakespeare at Lincoln Center, then travelled to London to recreate his staging of Six Characters. A graduate of Carnegie Mellon University, he has been the recipient of a Fulbright Scholarship, a Ford Foundation directorial grant and an NBC-RCA Director's Fellowship. Among the first plays he directed for A.C.T. were Tartuffe, Six Characters in Search of an Author, Under Milkwood, Tiny Alice and King Lear. They were followed by Twelfth Night, The American Dream, Hamlet, Oedipus Rex, Three Sisters, The Tempest, Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead, Caesar and Cleopatra, The Contractor, Cyrano de Bergerac, The Crucible, The Taming of the Shrew, The Cherry Orchard, King Richard III, Jumpers, Equus, The Bourgeois Gentleman and The Winter's Tale. Mr. Ball has directed three of his productions for PBS television, including The Taming of the Shrew, for which he received a "best director" nomination by the Television Critics' Circle. He also works as a teacher in A.C.T.'s Conservatory programs. As founder and General Director of A.C.T., he accepted an Antoinette Perry (Tony) Award for the company from the American Theatre Wing in June of 1979. AN IRISH MIST SETTLED OVER THE EVENING.

The hills roll forever. The lakes radiate light. The dew kisses each morning. The mist settles every evening. You can taste it all, and more.

Irish Mist is the legendary, centuries old drink made from all this and sweetened with just a wisp of heather honey. Irish Mist can be enjoyed anytime, or place, or way: on the rocks; neat; or mixed with anything you like.

It's a pleasing land. It's a pleasing drink.

IN YOUR SEARCH FOR A LONGER LASTING CAR, REMEMBER LONGEVITY IS HEREDITARY.

As car prices have spiralled, so have people's expectations of what they should get for their money.

A recent study by the Roper organization, for instance, has shown that Americans plan to keep their cars longer.

Which could explain why more and more people are buying Volvos.

For 55 years, Volvo's philosophy has been to produce durable, well-built automobiles. Nowhere is that philosophy better embodied than in the Volvos of today.

Recent findings show that Volvo's life expectancy is 1/3 longer than the average life expectancy of all other cars on the road.*

So if you expect your next new car to last a long time, make sure you marry into the right family. VOLVO family. A car you can believe in.

*Analysis conducted by Ken Warwick & Associates, Inc. Based on a comparison of U.S. registration data for Volvo and for the automobile industry as a whole and not by individual make. Summary available at your Volvo Dealer. © 1981 Volvo of America Corporation.

A.C.T. WINS

SAKS' FUNDING

CHALLENGE

San Francisco's American Conservatory Theatre surpassed the city's other major performing arts organizations in ticket sales for the August 13 Saks' Fifth Avenue's Gala Preview Opening.

Invited guests had the opportunity to send the $50 ticket price to the American Conservatory Theatre, San Francisco Ballet, San Francisco Opera or San Francisco Symphony. All expenses for the Gala Preview Opening were absorbed by Saks, and A.C.T. was awarded the highest in ticket proceeds, $34,000. As top fundraiser, A.C.T. will receive the proceeds from Saks' famous designers' evening scheduled for the Spring.

Charlotte Mailliard, Chairman of Saks' Gala Preview Opening, attributes A.C.T.'s success to "the continued support of the theatre's donors, subscribers, and patrons, as well as San Francisco's design community who participate in A.C.T.'s Annual Elegant Celebration of Christmas." ★

Put yourself in their place.

Maugham. Melville. Gauguin. Each told his tale of the legend known as Tahiti.

What you'll find is that none of them exaggerated. Rather nature itself may have.

Gaze upon ribbons of sun-drenched beach entwined in coral. Mountains wilder than shark's teeth. Lagoons whose colors shimmer from midnight blue to champagne.

In Papeete enjoy a marvelous mixture of French lifestyle and cuisine and Polynesian joie de vivre.

Beyond Tahiti explore other islands with names that sound like sea chanties. Bora Bora. Raiatea. Rangiroa.

What you'll find a mere 7½ hours from Los Angeles is a way of life where the pace is easy, the people have laughing eyes, and life is to be enjoyed.

And there is simply no place like Tahiti to enjoy fishing. Diving. Golf. Tennis. People watching.

MONSTER SIGHTED

Mr. Norman Macqueen of De...

he had seen the creature...
Ness monster at 10:30 this morn... ing, near the lake's eastern...
bank. According to Mr. Macqueen... son, the creature is at least 50...
feet in length and resembles...
a large lizard.
While we do not wish to cast...
doubt on the veracity of Macqueen... his report, we feel it only...
fair to say that today's sight... ing is his eighth in as many...
When...

IT WAS seventeen years ago, in August, that Norman Macqueen says he saw the Loch Ness monster.

And Donald Campbell still says he didn't.
