IN THE WORLD OF HIGH-PERFORMANCE SEDANS MAXIMA SE THRIVES ON COMPARISON.

If a sports sedan doesn't make driving a charged experience, it has no right to exist. Nissan's Maxima SE does just that. In fact, the more you compare Maxima to the best the world has to offer, the better it looks.

Compare Maxima's engine: a fuel-injected, 3-liter V-6 power plant found in only one other car, the awesome 300 ZX. It generates more horsepower than a BMW 325e or an Audi 5000.

Compare Maxima's advanced technology: In addition to 4-wheel independent suspension, you can adjust its electronic shock absorbers 3 ways from the cockpit for a smoother ride over varying road surfaces. No European sports car offers this extraordinary feature.

Compare Maxima's standard equipment: with the Maxima SE, power windows, power brakes, power sunroof, all... standard. Where other cars offer stereo, only Maxima gives you a 6-speaker, AM and FM stereo system with graphic equalizer, Dolby cassette deck and automatic volume control.

Best of all, compare Maxima's price. When you consider everything that Maxima SE comes with, you'll be amazed at how little it goes for.

The Best Extended-Service Plan Available. When you buy a car this good, you can back it this good. Up to 5 years, 100,000 miles. Ask about Nissan's Security Plus® at participating Nissan dealers. If you're looking for performance...the name is Nissan.

What does a Bushmills drinker order when his boss orders scotch?

You've got two choices: Play up to the boss, or order the Bushmills you want. If you order Bushmills, he'll be curious. So be prepared to tell him all about it. Tell him it's imported whiskey from the world's oldest distillery. That it's triple-distilled for an uncommonly smooth taste. And you can drink it on the rocks, neat, or with water. So what does a Bushmills drinker order when his boss orders scotch? Two Bushmills. One for the boss, and one for his favorite employee.

Dear Friends,

Thank you for your enthusiastic response to our first letter. Since some of your questions over the years have revolved around the organizational structure of A.C.T. and its governance, let me respond briefly to them for you.

The American Conservatory Theatre Foundation is a not-for-profit corporation, authorized to pursue charitable and educational activities under the I.R.S. designation 501(c)3. A.C.T. was incorporated in 1965. From the first, its purposes have been mainly educational: to foster the creative life of the actor through training and performance, and to raise the standards of the theatre profession. In its original charter, A.C.T. dedicated itself "to restore to the creative artist the right to shape and fulfill his own potential." It was this vision that moved the Ford Foundation in 1973 to give A.C.T. the largest grant ever awarded to a theatrical company; in 1975, Ford provided A.C.T. with the funds needed to purchase the Geary Theatre.

As a national organization dedicated to providing a professional training center for American actors, A.C.T.'s governing board was originally composed of nationally known theatre professionals. Then, when the company was invited to make San Francisco its home, a local fund-raising arm --

Writing Plays is an Act of Faith
By MARSHA NORMAN

Honoring Pulitzer winners is a good idea. But, I'm afraid, it's not enough. We need more than honor. We need for each of you, acting in whatever capacity you can, to act now to save us. We need you to defend us and protect us from a theatrical world that is increasingly ambivalent, at best, about the contribution of the dramatist.

American dramatists of another age would have howled in laughter at that very phrase, “The contribution of the dramatist?” Ha! they would say, “What is the play, for God’s sake? A donation?”

Plays take years to write, and writers take a lifetime to develop. Many people—yes, actors and directors, but also our parents and children, our teachers, other writers and our friends—make valuable contributions to our work. The only way writers can and should repay these people is by continuing to write. For only when living writers continue to write can the theater provide a healthy life and a decent livelihood for all its artists.

There are things you can do to help. First of all, you must allow us our careers. You must support the plays which don’t work, so we can stay alive to write the plays which do.

Liz McCann, a person for whom I have enormous respect in this business, likes to say, “What Broadway needs is more bad plays.” And I agree. Actors and directors need to learn, and dramatists need to practice.

We need more bad plays and more bad musicals, because if artists don’t have the opportunity to work—well, it’s like the athletic department telling its runners that they can’t even get onto the track until they’re ready to win. That athletic department isn’t going to do very well.

And that university should probably consider hiring the coaches.

Writing is what dramatists do. It is mysterious and glorious, dangerous and costly. At its best, it is transparent yet detailed, enduring but ever accessible. Whatever else writing is, it’s not easy. Writing only happens when it is welcomed into the life of the writer and into the world the writer lives in. Writing is what the theater cannot do without. The theater has survived for thousands of years because it has a literature. The literature trains performers and directors, instructs young writers, and reconstructs the past for the audience. If future generations are to have more than a museum theater, if the contemporary world is to be remembered by the theater of the future, living writers must continue to write.

Writing is an act of faith. You do not have to thank us for writing these plays that have become a part of your life. We wanted to write them, we believed that they were stories worth telling, believed that there was a chance for them to find their audience, and believed that they might make a difference. And believed that maybe, just maybe, these plays might support the writing of other plays.

What we need, in order to keep writing, is to live in a world, in a theatrical community where it is still possible to believe these things.

If you want to honor dramatists, if you want us to keep writing, you must show us that we mean something to you. You must stand guard and fight. If necessary, for an American theater that writers can believe in, a place where we are safe, not from the critics or the fates, but safe in knowing that we are and always have been the primary life force, the constantly beating heart of the theater.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Marsha Norman is a native of Louisville, Kentucky where her first play, Getting Out, was produced in 1977 by the Actors Theatre of Louisville. Based on Ms. Norman's experiences as a teacher of emotionally disturbed children, Getting Out subsequently had successful engagements at the Mark Taper Forum and on Broadway in New York. It has been translated into twelve languages and performed extensively throughout the world.

Ms. Norman's second play, Third and Oak, premiered in Louisville in 1978 and was later presented as a part of National Public Radio's Earplay series. Circus Valentine was seen at the Actors Theatre of Louisville in 1979 as part of the annual Festival of New American Plays.

The Holiday was written in 1980 on a commission from the Mark Taper Forum where it received its first reading but was never produced. The play was given its premiere by the Circle Repertory Company in New York and had its first West Coast production under the direction of Edward Hastings at A.C.T. during the 1982-83 season.

Ms. Norman's work outside of the theatre has included writing for Visions and Skg on television and the authorship of a number of screenplays. She has served as book editor of the Louisville Times where, for a time, she wrote a column for children. Ms. Norman also is an accomplished pianist.

NIGHT, MOTHER—THE MOVIE

Tom Moore, director of A.C.T.'s productions of Three Sisters, The Little Fables and Hotel Paradise, reports from his home in Los Angeles that pre-production for the movie version of night, Mother went very smoothly. Rehearsals began December 16 and filming is expected to commence January 20.

And has the transition from stage to screen been achieved with ease? "Working with movie stars is just like working with anyone," comments Moore. "Both actresses are focused and ready to take on Marshall's screen play, which has been opened up a lot." Look for a September, 1986 release.

If, as an A.C.T. ticketholder, you are unable to attend a performance, you may make a tax-deductible contribution to the theatre by turning in your tickets at the box office prior to the curtain. Donations are accepted by telephone only on the day of the performance. A receipt for tax purposes will be issued in exchange for the tickets.

LATE ARRIVAL AT THE THEATRE
A.C.T. performances start on time! Curtain times vary, so please check your tickets! Latecomers will not be seated until intermission or a suitable break in the performance so those who have arrived on time are not disturbed.

NOTICES
Please observe the no smoking regulations. The use of cameras or tape recorders is not permitted. Kindly refrain from carrying in refreshments. In respect for the health of our performers it is the policy of this company not to actually light cigarettes during the play. The management reserves the right to change the attraction without prior notice to the patrons.

CONTINUOUS

The American Conservatory Theatre is grateful for its continuing support from individuals, local and national foundations and corporations, the California Arts Council, the City and County of San Francisco Hotel Tax Fund, and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Our donors make great theatre possible. We salute them by associating their names with the literary giants of our rich dramatic heritage.

the California Association for A.C.T.— was established in 1981. A.C.T. assumed the responsibility for its own fundraising and the two organizations—C.A.A.C.T.
and A.C.T.—were combined.

Today the A.C.T. Foundation is directed by a 16-member Board of Trustees. The Board represents a balance of expe-rrienced, professional theatre personnel and Bay Area community members knowledgeable in the goals of the company
through years of commitment and support of A.C.T.

Following customary theatre practice to traditional, operating budgets are prepared each year by A.C.T. management for the approval of the trustees.
Major budgetary allocations are reviewed and decided on by the Board while mangears fiscal responsibility for day-to-day operating decisions. As with any non-profit corporation, no individual may own any part of the corporation.
In
event of dissolution, all assets must be disbursed to another non-profit corporan.
Notwithstanding the temporary operating deficit described in my previous letter, A.C.T. has a positive net worth of substantial proportion. Its assets include the historic Geary Theatre along with the adjoining corner properties, the transferable development rights for the theatre and a reserve fund currently held in investment securities.

Of all our resources, however, the most treasured is the one we celebrate this season: 20 years of consecutive service to the Bay Area community. During these years, A.C.T. has developed the most sophisticated actor training institute in the nation. Many A.C.T. innovations—
