

Celebrate two decades of AA meetings at the Arts Centre, Melbourne, where all of August we'll be welcoming new and old members

Get to know our meeting

Q. What was the Arts Centre meeting previously called?

A. Showbiz was the original name because the groups founder, fearless Paul, worked as an agent for actors and performers. Later Irish Billy, a performer, became secretary until 2015 when, after a period of inactivity, the current secretary and treasurer activated the meeting.

Q. Did you know we've had International celebrities?

A. OK we can't say exactly who because we would breach their right to anonymity which was the primary reason for early meetings as actors did not want to be easily identified at open meetings. Later meetings were open to all members and our group name changed to The Arts Centre AA meeting.
