6 Ways to Create a Family Keepsake with Your Grandchildren

Your vacation memories, preserved for a lifetime

by Elena J. Calle, Contributor

Together, aunts and uncles, grandchildren can be an ever-growing family. What better way to remember your time spent together than to create a family keepsake? Whether it’s a family photo album, a special heirloom, or a handmade project by the kids, you can keep these memories alive forever.

1. Create a Memory Box

Collecting items from your trips makes a fun story for kids. Write down what you see and what you do. Add homemade crafts, photos, and souvenirs as fun mementos to remember.

2. Put Together a Page Turner

Save tickets, postcards, and photos from your trip. Then, create a scrapbook or a book titled “Our Family Vacation.” You can add your pictures, drawings, or papers to the page or write a story about your trip.

3. Say Cheers!

Make your own cocktail recipe book. Write down your favorite drinks and the memories associated with them. Share your recipes with family and friends.

4. Have Fun with Fabric

Turn your family photos into unique clothing or accessories. Create a family picture frame, a throw pillow, or a tote bag.

5. Write, Write, Write

Write down your thoughts and memories from your trip. You can keep it as a journal or turn it into a book. This can be a great way to remember your trip and the stories behind it.

6. Personalized Baby Gifts

Give a baby a gift that they’ll always remember. Personalized items, such as a onesie or a blanket, are a great way to make a baby feel special.
