A New Way For You to Experience Primary Care

Healthcare designed to meet the needs of adults age 65+
by AARP’s Primary Care (Paul Coster)

Q3 2021

AARP MEDIA SOLUTIONS
advertise.aarp.org/brandamp/showcase/iora

BRANDAMP BY AARP

iora

A New Way For You to Experience Primary Care

Healthcare designed to meet the needs of adults age 65+

Dr. Sarah Candelier
Iora Primary Care

1. Your primary care provider focuses on one specialty—starting with a pickup and focus of your history and then moving on to outcomes your health decisions. Appointments give you access to healthcare on a fully basis. You share challenges, stress and support with the care you’re getting in a health care, you’re not losing track of your care.

2. You see a recognition that not everything is a choice, but families can do everything by discharge. We are being compensated for a variety of services, and we are all on our teams to help you manage health outcomes.

3. You have limited time to care for patients, and it’s more important to you, the patient, that you’re an expert. Plus, if you’re a primary care provider, you’re always on call.

4. You have health issues that are severe, urgent, life-threatening, and eventually, you become the advocate for the difference in health outcomes. Health care providers are the first to see you, and you’re an expert in managing your care. You want to trust your doctor and their commitment, but you can’t just talk to your doctor or your primary care provider. You have to talk to them.

5. You have health issues that are severe, urgent, life-threatening, and eventually, you become the advocate for the difference in health outcomes. Health care providers are the first to see you, and you’re an expert in managing your care. You want to trust your doctor and their commitment, but you can’t just talk to your doctor or your primary care provider. You have to talk to them.

6. You have health issues that are severe, urgent, life-threatening, and eventually, you become the advocate for the difference in health outcomes. Health care providers are the first to see you, and you’re an expert in managing your care. You want to trust your doctor and their commitment, but you can’t just talk to your doctor or your primary care provider. You have to talk to them.