Avoid building over BGE's gas service lines

Before starting any new construction at your home, it's crucial to contact BGE.

Building over an existing underground gas service can create significant problems. When a structure like a deck, porch, shed, garage, patio, pool, stairs, or storage tank is constructed over a gas line, it can make the gas service inaccessible. This can lead to reliability issues and, more importantly, serious safety risks.

Contact BGE via email at gasmeterservices@bge.com prior to the start of any new construction project to avoid gas build overs and call 811 to locate your existing gas and electric services.

Don't get spooked by high bills
