

Exercise C8.1: Sentences to translate into Latin

1. The citizen, who had written long letters to the senator, greatly desired to praise him.
2. Although they fought as fiercely as possible for a long time, our men died in vain.
3. The letters were more famous than that man who had written them.
4. This old man is more stupid than that old man!
5. O children, I want you to approach the rather fierce teacher bravely.
6. In vain the very stupid children read the rather long books.
7. The old man had desired to greet the other old men in the middle of the forum.
8. I shall read letters to you often, but you will read these books more often.
9. The boy and the girl, working in the house, wept because they had the worst father.
10. Were the Greeks fiercer than the Romans? The Romans conquered more kings.

medius is an adjective, so it agrees with the noun it describes e.g. in mediā silvā – in the middle of the wood.