

Ireland's History: Prehistory to the Present

Links to Websites

Chapter 9 The Rebellion of 1798 and the Impact of the French Revolution

THE UNITED IRISHMEN

This is a site dedicated to preserving the ideals of the United Irishmen.

<http://www.unitedirishmen.org/>

THE UNITED IRISHMEN

This is another good site with much useful information on the United Irishmen.

http://members.pcug.org.au/~ppmay/acts/UI_organisation_1797.htm

THOMAS RUSSELL

This site of the Ulster History Circle is dedicated to the United Irishman, Thomas Russell (1767—1803).

<http://www.ulsterhistory.co.uk/russell.htm>

THE REBELLION OF 1798

This site contains a number of facsimile documents related to the rebellion, including handwritten photocopies and typed versions of the texts.

<http://www.nationalarchives.ie/topics/1798/1798.pdf>

THE REBELLION OF 1798

The material on this portion of the BBC history site was written by Thomas Bartlett, a renowned historian.

http://www.bbc.co.uk/history/british/empire_seapower/irish_reb_01.shtml

THE REBELLION OF 1798 IN WEXFORD

Part of the Multitext Project in Irish History, this site devoted to the rebellion in Wexford was written by Daniel Gahan, a historian of the rebellion.

http://multitext.ucc.ie/d/The_1798_Rebellion_in_Wexford

THE ACT OF UNION VIRTUAL LIBRARY

“The Act of Union Virtual Library is a unique collection of pamphlets, newspapers, parliamentary papers and manuscript material contemporary with the 1800 Act of Union between Ireland and Britain. The entire content is searchable bibliographically, the search results displaying individual images that can be browsed by turning the pages of each virtual book or document. A free text search is provided for the pamphlets and parliamentary papers.

The website is of inestimable use for scholars in that it provides immediate access to a panoply of documents held in various public institutions in Belfast, more often than not, in specialised collections. Those with a more general interest in the Act of Union will also benefit both from exposure to these archives and to the myriad search functions and explanatory notes contained within this website.” – From the website

<http://www.actofunion.ac.uk/>

THE UNION

This is the section of the Multitext Project in Irish History was written by Donnchadh Ó Corráin.

http://multitext.ucc.ie/d/The_Union