

While my depression proved to be my undoing, each of you must ask yourselves what role you played in this.

Who's (sic) integrity is really in question when you have conveniently ignored your duty to review pro se criminal writ applications so you can reduce your workload, present a false picture of the court's workload, and charge large sums for work you haven't done?