

Exercise B15.2: Labelling clauses and identifying conjunctions

Each of the English sentences below contains a main clause and a subordinate clause.

Underline the subordinate clause in each sentence, name what type of subordinate clause it is and select the correct Latin subordinating conjunction for it from the list below.

It may be useful to refer to the table on p114 to help you remember the names of the different types of subordinate clause.

quod	postquam	ubi	nisi	quam
dum	quod	quamquam	si	qui

1. If you ever do wicked things, you will pay the penalty.
2. Because our feet were now tired, we were not rejoicing.
3. Unless we resist, all the captives will die.
4. The soldier was hiding his wound which was dreadful and large.
5. Although we were accustomed to rejoice, after the battle we did not feel joy.
6. She alone suffered while she supported the wicked emperor.
7. When they returned home, they were amazed at the courage of the children.
8. The unlucky captives, who did not know about the punishments, willingly entered the camp.
9. The whole legion, which the general had praised, suddenly overwhelmed the camp.
10. The faithful legions, after they had received a great victory, were greeted by the emperor.