

Contents

List of figures	xiv
List of tables	xvi
List of exhibits	xviii
Acknowledgements	xx
Introduction	1
Background to the book	2
Core themes	2
Who is the book intended for?	2
Distinctive features	3
Pedagogy	3
Contributors	3
About the authors	4
1 Marketing and financial services: an overview	5
Learning outcomes	6
Introduction	7
What are financial services?	7
The financial services industry	12
Marketing	13
Marketing services	16
Components of services marketing	18
Financial services	20
Technology	22
Corporate social responsibility	22
After the credit crunch	22
Summary	23
References	24
Further reading	24
Exercises	25
Case study: Long live mutuality! The friendly society	25
2 The financial services environment	29
Learning outcomes	30
Introduction	31
The financial services environment	32
Political/regulatory environment	33
Regulatory bodies	34
Europe	36
Basel Accord	38
Economic environment	39
Eurozone	39

The natural environment	43
Recycling and green behaviours	44
Sustainability	44
Socio-cultural environment	46
Technology	47
The stakeholder environment	49
Competitors	49
Brokers and intermediaries	50
Suppliers	50
Employees	51
Management	51
Strategic partners	52
Customers	52
Shareholders	53
Summary	54
References	55
Further reading	55
Exercises	56
Case study: Financial services in China – a case study of the credit card	56
3 The financial services customer	65
Learning outcomes	66
Introduction	67
Consuming financial services	68
Taking decisions	69
Decision-making units	72
Alternative perspectives on consumption	72
Risk	74
Involvement	76
Satisfaction and dissatisfaction	77
Customer loyalty	81
Customer switching and inertia	83
Persistency	84
Business behaviour	86
Summary	89
References	89
Exercises	92
Further reading	92
Case study: Consumer attitudes to finance and pensions – a Swedish case study	92
4 Segmenting and targeting the financial services marketplace	97
Learning outcomes	98
Introduction	99

What is segmentation?	99
Consumer segments	100
Predetermining segments	100
Behavioural segmentation	104
Dynamic segments	108
Internet users	110
Segmentation practice	112
Business segments	113
Organizing segmentation	115
Organizational structure	115
Double-checking	116
Targeting	117
Positioning	118
Summary	121
References	121
Exercises	123
Further reading	123
Case study: Customer segmentation in Swiss retail banking	124
5 Information regarding marketing financial services	133
Learning outcomes	134
Introduction	135
Researching the marketplace	136
Organizational learning	137
Customer relationship management (CRM)	139
Customer value	143
Size of wallet	143
Share of wallet (SW)	143
Cross-selling and up-selling	145
Customer attrition	146
Customer persistence	147
Satisfaction and share of wallet	148
Loyalty programmes	149
Organizing information	152
Ethics in research and information management	154
Summary	155
References	155
Exercises	157
Further reading	157
Case study: Expatriates	157
6 Relationship marketing in financial services	163
Learning outcomes	164
Introduction	165

Relationship marketing	165
Developing a central element to the relationship	166
Personalize the relationship	166
Increasing the central element by offering extra benefits	167
Making employees aware that they are immediately responsible to the customer	167
Relationships with stakeholders	168
Business relationships	170
Cross-cultural relationships	172
Relationship outcomes	173
Customer satisfaction	174
Trust and commitment	174
Relational benefits	175
Internal marketing	177
Relationship lifecycle	178
Digital relationships	181
Managing business accounts	182
Connecting with consumers	182
Summary	183
References	184
Exercises	186
Further reading and references	186
Case study: Managing customer relationships in Irish retail banking	187
7 Building and sustaining the financial services brand	195
Learning outcomes	196
Introduction	197
What is a brand?	198
Branding in financial services	198
Developing the brand	200
Extending the brand	203
Sustaining the brand	204
Corporate branding and identity	205
Product branding	207
Own label	208
Partnerships	209
Re-branding	209
Stakeholders	210
Communities	211
Branding to the customer	212
Branding responsibly	212
Stakeholder branding	214
Branding in a digital environment	215
Brands in a global environment	215

Brand equity	217
Summary	219
Exercises	219
References	219
Further reading	221
Case study: Re-branding a major Russian financial group – the Alfa Banking Group	221
8 Creating value: The financial services product	225
Learning outcomes	226
Introduction	227
The financial product	227
Value and benefits	229
Bundling	230
The service performance	231
Service setting	231
The customer experience	232
Value co-creation	234
New product development	235
Product elimination	241
Service quality and delivery	241
Service recovery	243
Affinity marketing	244
Summary	246
Exercises	246
References	246
Further reading	250
Case study: Pay as you go or not?	250
9 Pricing and value in financial services	255
Learning outcomes	256
Introduction	257
Costs	257
Pricing objectives	260
Increase market share	260
Profit maximization	260
Product quality leadership	260
Pricing strategies	261
Penetration or low pricing	261
Price bundling	262
Relationship pricing	263
Risk and pricing	266
Pricing by channel	268
Fixed pricing	268
The customer	270
New and existing customers	270

Perceptions and awareness	271
Evoked set	272
Price satisfaction	273
Perceived value and consumption	275
Summary	277
References	277
Exercises	279
Further reading and information	279
Case study: Price satisfaction in Austrian banks	280
10 Distributing financial services	287
Learning outcomes	288
Introduction	289
Distribution	289
Channel strategy	290
Adoption of channels	291
Branches	293
Financial services intermediary	296
Price comparison information	299
Remote banking	299
Automated telling machines (ATMs)	300
Telephone	302
Mobile banking	303
Internet	304
Multichannel banking	306
Managing multiple channels	306
Consumers and multiple channels	308
Summary	309
Exercises	310
References	310
Further reading	312
Case study: Crédit Agricole – a multichannel mutual bank	312
11 Communicating in the marketing of financial services	319
Learning outcomes	320
Introduction	321
The communications loop	322
Message sender and recipient	322
Selecting the target audience	323
Source and interpretation of message	324
Did it work for you?	325
Marketing communication objectives	326
Needs recognition	326
Finding customers	327
Building the brand	327
Overcoming alternatives	327

Deciding to purchase	328
Retaining customers and relationships	328
Marketing communications strategy	329
Pull strategy	331
Push strategy	331
Profile strategy	332
Communications and quality	332
Determining budgets	335
Marketing communications mix	336
Advertising	336
Direct mailing	338
M-technology	339
Sponsorship	339
Word-of-mouth	341
Personal selling	341
Public relations	342
Blogging	343
Communicating in a global marketplace	343
Summary	345
Exercises	345
References	346
Further reading	347
Case study: The ASA and Alternative Finance Group Ltd	347
12 Marketing strategies in financial services	351
Learning outcomes	352
Introduction	353
What is strategic marketing?	354
Competitive strategies	357
Marketing strategies	359
Being offensive	360
Protection strategies	362
Social responsibility and stakeholder thinking	367
Relationships and brands	368
Brands as relationship builder	370
The immediate future?	373
The rise of the alternatives	373
Marketing more than ever	374
Summary	375
References	376
Further reading	378
Exercises	378
Case study: Tesco – the rise and rise of a food retailer	378
Index	383