

Numerical reasoning

If your project has involved quantitative techniques and tools, you will have demonstrated that you have a range of arithmetical skills necessary to interpret and use data. You may have used sophisticated techniques of statistical analysis, but even if you have limited the level to which you have processed the data, you will have demonstrated that you can perform calculations involving percentages, fractions and decimals, which you may have represented in tables, graphs, bar charts and pie charts.