

BLOOMSBURY HISTORIC DRESS IN DETAIL

BRINGING THE HISTORY OF DRESS TO LIFE FOR STUDENTS THROUGH BEAUTIFULLY CRAFTED VIDEOS USING HISTORICALLY ACCURATE PERIOD COSTUME

Bloomsbury Historic Dress in Detail centers on exclusive videos with complementary resources and articles, ideal for teaching and study. They explore historical context and materials, fastenings and garment details, how garments were made, and how they were worn. A key aspect of each video is the act of getting dressed; they clearly demonstrate how the garments were layered and worn in real life.

FEATURES AND BENEFITS

- Watch immersive videos exploring garments, both menswear and womenswear, in detail, spanning a vast historical timeline, and aimed specifically at an academic audience
- The videos are from Crow's Eye Productions core team, including a filmmaker specializing in period drama, documentaries and instructional films, and a dress historian and costumier with over 30 years experience in period costume-making
- Get practical advice with learning material videos on how to research historic dress and how to create garments without patterns – all videos have closed captions and transcripts
- Delve deeper by reading articles accompanying each video, providing key historical context as well as primary and secondary source lists to aid further research and study
- All content has been reviewed by leading dress historian Valerie Cumming and topics include Roman, Tudor, Regency, Victorian and Modernist dress, many of which are perfectly aligned to designing costume for performance

This unique collection will bring period costume to life for all those studying and designing costume for performance, as well as for students and researchers within dress and fashion history, and theatre studies alike.
