Caring for the Ones Who Cared for You

Maybe you've already gotten the phone call, or you're worried it's coming any day now—the one that explains how your mother tripped and fell, or your father became ill because he wasn't taking the correct dosages of his medications.

Knowing when to step in for parents and get them extra help can be difficult, especially if you're not living in the same town or city and aren't in a position to help them yourself. That's when you need to find someone you can trust. This brochure is a way to help you do that.

Inside, you'll find steps to help you determine if it's time for in-home care and tips for evaluating potential care providers. We'll also introduce you to the range of services available from Comfort Keepers® to assist with your evaluation.

Determining if Your Loved One Needs Assistance

Figuring out if your parent or loved one needs extra help isn't always easy, but there are signs that can help you determine if it's time to introduce care. Consider the following scenarios:

Has there been a recent crisis?

Is he/she becoming more forgetful?

Is he/she able to run errands alone?

Does the individual bathe less often?

Have there been recent falls?

Are there scorch marks on dish towels?

Are pills left over or running out too soon?

Has there been any recent weight loss or gain?

Is routine house cleaning not being done?

Does the individual need help walking?

Is his/her hearing affecting daily function?

Is his/her clothing changed daily?

Is he/she verbally or physically abusive?

Is his/her vision affecting daily function?

Have social activities diminished?

If only ONE of the scenarios here applies to your situation, it may be time to consider in-home care.

It will help to have this information available when calling to discuss your loved one.

Initiating a Conversation

Discussing a senior's need for care can be uncomfortable, which is why these discussions often don't happen. The best advice is to plan carefully and keep talks positive and productive. Don't approach this as "The Conversation," but as an ongoing series of chats. Address one issue at a time rather than trying to resolve everything at once.

Below are additional tips for starting discussions:

- Begin early when your parents' health allows them to fully share their wants, needs, and preferences.
- Choose a time and place that makes everyone comfortable. Avoid special family occasions or events with time constraints so that you can have a relaxed, unhurried conversation.
- Make the experience non-threatening by letting your parents know you're concerned for their wellbeing and want to help.
- Offer options, not advice. Pose questions, listen, and offer more than one acceptable solution.

Staying Safe, Happy, and Healthy at Home

Sometimes the first thought is to move loved ones to a facility, but moving parents against their wishes can lead to frustration and depression. Formerly independent adults suddenly find themselves in unfamiliar and stressful environments, forced to comply with pre-set schedules. By contrast, helping parents remain in their homes where they are comfortable and happy allows them to maintain their lifestyles, independence, and community relationships.

Aging in place has other benefits, not the least of which is cost savings. For those who already own their homes, old age is often much less of a financial burden. Residence in an assisted living facility can cost hundreds of dollars per day. On the other hand, with the help of a caregiver, care dollars stretch much further.

What to Look for in a Care Provider

Finding organizations you can trust to take care of those you love most is not easy. They must be professional, trustworthy, and have the ability to meet your loved one's needs. When you are evaluating care providers, make sure to ask the following questions:

	YES	NO
1. Does the agency carry liability coverage?	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
2. Does the agency conduct criminal background checks and check driving records?	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
3. Does the agency provide 24/7 telephone service?	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
4. Does the agency provide backup coverage?	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
5. Do agency services include personal care, such as bathing, incontinence care, and mobility assistance?	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
6. Does the agency provide transportation services?	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
7. Does the agency make periodic supervisory visits to clients' homes?	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
8. Can the agency provide documentation explaining the client's rights, code of ethics, workers' compensation, and HIPAA compliance?	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
9. Will the agency provide an in-home assessment?	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
10. Does the agency provide ongoing training to caregivers?	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>

The Comfort Keepers' Difference

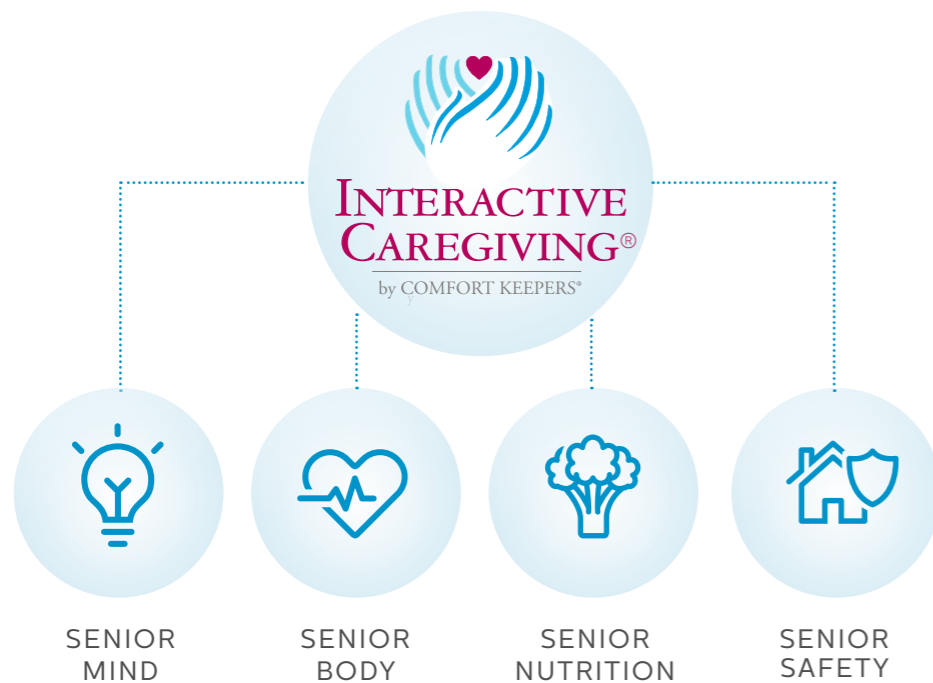

Comfort Keepers offers quality, loving, in-home care services for families just like yours.

Our custom care plans provide just the right mix of services that preserve your loved ones' independence, maintain their in-home safety, and enhance the quality of their lives.

We Are as Strong as the Company We Keep

Interactive Caregiving™, our distinctive approach to in-home care, is at the very heart of Comfort Keepers. Our dedicated caregivers, the people we refer to as Comfort Keepers®, transform day-to-day caregiving into opportunities for meaningful conversation and activities that engage and enrich the lives of seniors physically, mentally, socially, and emotionally.

Our Comfort Keepers are our employees, not contractors, whom we select after a rigorous interview process, and who go through continuing education classes to provide the best care. They are also bonded, insured, and covered by workers' compensation to protect our clients and their families.

Personal Care

Sometimes even the most basic tasks can become the most difficult. Our trained professionals make daily life easier by offering a variety of customized, personal care services to meet the unique needs of each senior. These services help seniors stay safe in their own homes longer. Our personal care services include the following:

- Bathing, grooming, and hygiene
- Mobility assistance
- Transferring and positioning
- Toileting and incontinence care
- Feeding and special diet
- Dementia care
- Medication reminders

In addition, our Comfort Keepers help make certain that seniors and other clients stay on prescribed diets that prevent or control a wide variety of medical conditions, such as heart disease and diabetes. In general, our Comfort Keepers enable clients to eat well-balanced diets that provide the energy and nutrients needed for active, healthful living.

Dementia Care

For seniors with Alzheimer's disease or other forms of dementia, living at home in a familiar environment can be helpful because it surrounds them with memory cues that can reduce confusion and enhance mental engagement. In-home care from our specially trained caregivers give your family the care and support you need:

- Education for your family to help you better understand dementia and what you can do for your loved one
- Structured activities geared to your loved one's interests and capabilities that minimize dementia symptoms
- Home modification guidance
- Connection to medical professionals, support groups, and other resources
- In-home medical alert systems and motion detectors

Financial Considerations and Resources

There are many funding options available for in-home care. Researching options based on you or your loved one's financial situation is critical to finding the most advantageous way to pay for care. Below are some of the most common options, with brief explanations on how the programs work. Be sure to research all your options thoroughly as options vary by individual.

- Medicare. Medicare applies to long-term care in limited circumstances, such as immediately following a hospital stay. It also covers short-term, physician-prescribed home health care for skilled nursing; physical, occupational, and speech therapy; medical social services; and assistance with bathing, feeding, and other personal care.
- Medicaid and State Programs. Medicaid, the largest public payor for long-term care, may cover some in-home care services.
- Long-Term Care Insurance. Long-term care insurance helps pay the costs of long-term care, preventing the depletion of life savings. However, coverage is expensive, as premiums increase with the age of the purchaser.
- Veterans Administration (VA) Aid and Attendance Pension Benefit. Veterans and their surviving spouses may qualify for VA benefits to cover some of the cost of in-home care.
- Out of Pocket. Determining out-of-pocket costs and how to minimize them is best done after considering all your options.
