Remember what we have talked about today.
Reflect on the emotions it has uncovered and create a space for them.
Find acceptance if you can. Then figure out the best way you can respond positively and pro-actively. There will always be something we can do.

There is a place for everyone in the climate emergency, find the one that is relevant and appropriate for you.

This project is designed to help you find or build on that place. We will be exploring actions we can do as individuals and as community groups, then see what positive impact we can make as a city.

It also provides us with the opportunity to present our REQUIREMENTS to otherwise inaccessible policy makers and council leaders about what we can't do and what changes need to be made to policy and infrastructure so we can create a more sustainable, connected, conscious and just society for us all.
