Nautical information

At about 6:00 we will be able to see, on the starboard side of the ship, at an approximate distance of 3 miles, the Island of Planier, a natural island, located near the port of Marseille, is an attraction for tourists passing through the region, also mentioned in the famous novel "The Count of Montecristo" (by A. Dumas). After the departure we will sail along the French coasts, visible on the portside of the ship until about 23:00, when we will change course towards the North East, skirting the island of "Ile du Levant", sailing for the entire night away from the French coasts, then the Italian ones.

Distance from Marseille to Genoa: 212 nautical miles.

DISCOVER MARSEILLE!

Ready to visit Marseille?

Are you ready to walk along the streets of the most populated metropolis in France after Paris and Lyon?

The perfect place to enjoy afternoon coffee is at Le Panier with its sunny terraces and its clean streets: it is the ancient heart of Marseille, the typical vieille ville (old town) of the French Riviera. The European Capital of Culture in 2013, the city is an example of multiculturalism and dynamism.

• Admire the view of the Old Port from the Palais du Pharo, on the promontory past Fort Saint-Nicolas, or, for a broader view, from Notre-Dame-de-la-Garde, the most important of the city's landmarks, located on top of La Garde hill and dating to the Second French Empire.

• From Marseille, start your journey of the discovery of fascinating Aix-en-Provence.

• Immerse yourself in the history of Avignon. Its low medieval walls surround the old town, enclosed at a right angle by a bend in the Rhône River.

Interesting fact about Marseille

Artistic paradise

The dramatic colours of Provence have attracted many artists. The small port of l'Estaque at the end of the Bay of Marseille was a haunt of Renoir, Braque, Dufy and Cézanne, who painted many views across the water in all seasons.
