I. Introduction

This dataset provides an empirical understanding of the changes in the mandates of UN Peace Missions between January 1, 1991 to December 31, 2020 (i.e., the period marking the end of the Cold War, to present day). The term "UN Peace Missions" entails UN Peacekeeping Operations (PKO), Special Political Missions (SPM), as well as Special Envoy/Adviser (SE/SA) appointments.

The dataset codes the provisions in UN peace mission mandates according to the classification of minimalist, moderate, and maximalist. Mandate provisions or tasks within the minimalist approach content themselves with the absence of renewed armed conflict and focus on containing the violence, thus aiming at bringing about negative peace. Mandate tasks within the maximalist approach see peacebuilding as addressing root causes and transforming conflicts, thus aiming at positive (and often a liberal) peace. Lastly, moderate mandate tasks aim at no renewed armed conflict and decent governance without specifying the precise governance model.

The peace missions in this dataset have also been assigned an overall mission classification and score that follows this same logic.³ Missions can be classified as Minimalist, Maximalist, or Moderate. To derive this overall classification, we rely on a formula detailed in Section IV below. For the sake of distinction, we use minimalist, moderate, and maximalist beginning in lower case when speaking of mandate tasks, and Minimalist, Moderate, and Maximalist beginning in upper case when referring to overall mission classifications.

II. Codebook

Variable Name	Description
mission_id	Unique ID number for each mission.
mission_abbrev	Official abbreviated name for each mission, as given in the UN documentation.
mission_fullname	Full name given to mission (in English).
mission_type	PKO = Peacekeeping Operation
	SPM = Special Political Mission
	SE/SA = Special Envoy or Special Adviser appointments mission_location	The name(s) of the country or region where the mission takes place.

¹ Two missions are not included in our dataset. These are: the United Nations Military Liaison Team in Cambodia (UNMLT) and the United Nations Observer Mission for the Verification of the Elections in Nicaragua (ONUVEN). Information on both the establishment and mandates of these missions were not readily available from UN sources. Further, they were not found listed on the official UN sources consulted during the cross-tabulation process. As both were necessary criteria for the coding of missions in the dataset, these two missions were excluded. A full list of key sources consulted in the establishment of this dataset can be found at Section VII below.

² This categorisation is based on Call, C. T. and E. M. Cousens (2007). Ending Wars and Building Peace. Coping with Crisis - Working Paper Series. New York: International Peace Academy.

³ The exceptions to this rule are UNFICYP and UNIFIL, both of which only have mandate changes after January 1, 1991 coded in the dataset. As such, we did not calculate an overall mission classification from their partial mandates.

⁴ Good offices and mediation often go beyond attempts to stop conflict violence by assisting the parties to find a mutual acceptable agreement on other issues, including a political transition, reconstruction, and ways of dealing with the past. Yet, we log it as a minimalist task because the overarching objective and most pressing issue remains to stop the violence.

IV. Coding of mandate by year established: Exceptions

In certain cases, a mission's mandate might be outlined in an official document that pre-dates the mission's official establishment. For example, BNUB's mandate was stipulated in S/RES/1959 (2010), but the mission was established in 2011. UNIOGBIS's mandate was stipulated in S/RES/1876 (2009), but the mission was established in 2010. UNOCA's mandate was outlined in S/2009/697 (2009), but the mission was established in 2011. In such instances, the mandate will be coded in the year the mission was established. A similar logic follows in the case of UNMIH which differs slightly from the preceding examples. Though its mandate was outlined in S/RES/867 (1993) and the mission was established in the same resolution, the mission was not implemented due to the non-cooperation of Haitian authorities. UNMIH's mandate was revised in S/RES/940 (1994) and the mission deployed in 1994; thus, UNMIH's mandate is coded in 1994. In cases where a mission's mandate is first outlined in an official document that post-dates the mission's official establishment, we would check to see if there is evidence of a match in the mandate from the point of the mission's establishment. Where no such evidence can be found, we code the mandate in the year the official document outlining it appeared. This is the case for both UNPOS, whose mandate was outlined in S/RES/1863 (2009), though the mission was established in 1995; and UNAMI, whose mandate was outlined in S/RES/1546 (2004), though the mission was established in 2003. In both cases, the missions' mandates are coded in the year their mandates are officially outlined.

V. UCDP conflict ID coding rationale

In coding the UCDP conflict ID field for the missions, we followed three general rules:

First, we coded the UCDP IDs in a manner sensitive to conflict onset. If a peace mission ran from 2015 to 2020, and the first UCDP-logged episode of a relevant conflict occurred in 2017, it would be coded no earlier than 2017 (i.e., it would not be coded from 2015). This is to enable the better matching of mandate task establishment to conflict onset, should this prove a relevant avenue of analysis for a user of the dataset. However, if the first UCDP-logged episode of a relevant conflict occurred before the mission's establishment, the conflict is simply coded throughout the mission's lifetime. For example, in the case of MONUSCO in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), the Katanga conflict (265) is coded from the point of the mission's start date in 2010 though the most relevant episode of the conflict occurred in 2013, as the first UCDP-logged episode of the conflict occurred in 1961.

Second, our coding of UCDP IDs does not take into account the 'end' of a conflict. If a peace mission ran from 2015 to 2020, and the last UCDP-logged episode of a relevant conflict occurred in 2018, the ID would still be coded in the 2019 and 2020 row for that mission. It is reasoned that the 'end' of a conflict is often a highly debated issue. As such, the assessment of a conflict being 'over' (or not) based on its last UCDP-logged conflict episode was not taken into account during the coding process. A further reason for this decision is that many of the missions (especially SPMs and SE/SAs) coded in this dataset endure well past, or are deployed years after, the last UCDP-logged conflict episode of the relevant conflict(s). Yet, they apply clearly to a specific conflict, or specific conflicts. In such cases, the relevant conflict IDs are logged for the whole duration of the mission. Examples of such missions include UNPOB and UNOMB in Bougainville.

Third and finally, the decision to not code UCDP conflict ID(s) are taken under any of the following circumstances:

(i) The mission is dedicated to a highly specific issue that does not directly pertain to a UCDP conflict. Examples include: the UN Secretary-General's Personal Envoy for the name dispute between Greece and the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYRoM), UNOAU (African Union), CICIG (Guatemala), the International Commission of Inquiry in Guinea, the UN Secretary-General's Personal Representative on the border controversy between Guyana and Venezuela, UNIIIC (Lebanon), and the UN Commission of Inquiry in Pakistan;⁵

- (ii) The mission has a regional mandate that does not reference a specific conflict, or specific conflicts. Examples include: UNOCA in Central Africa and UNRCCA in Central Asia;⁶
- (iii) The mission has a preventive mandate which does not apply to a specific conflict, or specific conflicts. Examples include: UNPREDEP in the Republic of North Macedonia; or
- (iv) The mission was deployed to unstable contexts that do not meet the UCDP criteria of a conflict. Examples include: MINURCA in the Central African Republic (CAR), which was precipitated in the wake of three successive mutinies within the CAR Armed Forces in 1996. These mutinies did not meet the UCDP/PRIO criteria for state-based armed conflict.

The UCDP ID coding rationale for several missions apart from those discussed in the preceding paragraph deserves further elucidation, which is provided for in table below.

Mission ID	Notes on coding of UCDP ID
MONUA, UNOA and UNMA	The Cabinda conflict (387) is not coded as no reference
(Angola)	to it could be found within these missions' mandates.
UNASOG (Aouzou Strip)	The relevant conflict episode in the UCDP dataset started and ended in 1987, though this mission was deployed in 1994. At that point, diplomatic relations had been established between the Republic of Chad and the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriya and dispute over the ownership of the Aouzou Strip had been referred to the International Court of Justice (ICJ).
ONUCA (Central America)	ONUCA's mandate related generally to the Cold War conflicts in the Central American region. The three 'main' conflicts in El Salvador, Guatemala, and Nicaragua are coded in the dataset. Other potentially relevant conflicts are: 225, 255, and 306.
OSEGL (Great Lakes Region)	283 is coded as the Peace, Security and Cooperation
	Framework for the Democratic Republic of the Congo
	(DRC) and the region explicitly references the conflict in eastern DRC. The conflict between the government

⁵ Exceptions to this rule are UNSCOM in Iraq and the OCPW-UN Joint Mission in Syria, which addressed specific issues but were clearly established in relation to specific conflicts.

⁶ Note that OSEGL (Great Lakes Region) and UNOWAS (West Africa) are also regional, but specific conflicts are mentioned in relation to these missions' mandates.

⁷ In order to be a conflict episode to be considered an instance of state-based armed conflict and thus logged in the UCDP/PRIO Armed Conflict Dataset, there needs to be a use of armed force and a minimum of 25 battle-related deaths per year and per dyad, among other criteria.

	of the DRC and the Bundu dia Kongo (BDK) is not coded.
UNSCOM (Iraq)	371 was coded as the resolution establishing the mission refers specifically to the aftermath of the Gulf War.
UNDOF (Iraq)	UNDOF's mandate pertains specifically to the tensions between Israel and Syria. Hence, only 302 is coded.
UNMOGIP (Jammu and Kashmir)	The Kashmir insurgency (264) is not coded as UNMOGIP's mandate is directly aimed at the monitoring of the ceasefire between India and Pakistan.
UNSMIL (Libya)	13694 is coded, as part of UNSMIL's mandate concerns the provision of assistance to efforts led by the Government of National Accord to stabilize post-conflict zones, including those liberated from ISIL.
Special Envoy (Myanmar)	The other relevant conflicts from the UCDP/PRIO dataset are: 231, 253, 264, 439, 440, and 11475.
Special Envoy (Syria)	299 is coded as the Special Envoy's mandate specifically references the March 2011 protests.
OCPW-UN Joint Mission (Syria)	299 is coded, as in spite of being a mission targeted at a specific issue, its mandate directly pertains to the civil war in Syria.
UNOWAS (West Africa)	This mission had a general regional mandate. However, the Cameroon-Nigeria dispute is referenced specifically in its mandate, hence 405 is coded.

VI. Gleditsch/Ward numbers coding rationale

In coding the GW ID and number fields for the missions, wherever possible, we included the GW IDs and numbers for the location or headquarters of the mission, the location of the relevant conflict(s), and/or the main conflict parties involved.⁸ The GW numbers are listed in ascending order, and are not sensitive to match conflict onset.

Several missions merited special treatment in regard to the coding of their GW numbers and IDs. These are described in the table below:

Mission ID	Notes on coding of GW ID and number fields
UNRCCA (Central Asia)	All the countries encompassed by this mission are coded, namely: Turkmenistan, Tajikistan, Kyrgyzstan, Uzbekistan, and Kazakhstan. The mission has offices in all five countries, though it is headquartered in Ashgabat, Turkmenistan.
ONUCA (Central America)	All the countries encompassed by this mission are coded, namely: Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador,

⁸ The main conflict parties are those coded as "side_a" or "side_b" in the UCDP/PRIO Armed Conflict Dataset (Version 20.1). We do not code the GW numbers of countries logged as "side_a_2nd" and "side_b_2nd" in the aforementioned dataset.

	Nicaragua, and Costa Rica. The mission was headquartered in Tegucigalpa, Honduras.
UNRGID (Georgia)	Switzerland is coded, as significantly, this mission is hosted in Geneva, Switzerland.
OSEGL (Great Lakes Region)	All the countries encompassed by this mission are coded, namely: DRC, Burundi, and Rwanda.
UNOWAS (West Africa/Sahel)	Senegal is coded as this is the mission's headquarters.
	Cameroon and Nigeria are not coded, though the mission references UCDP conflict 405.

VII. Mission classification formula

A formula is used to determine the classification of a mission as Minimalist, Moderate, or Maximalist. Each minimalist, moderate, and maximalist task is assigned a weight of 1, 2, and 3 respectively. The weighted sum total is then divided by the total number of tasks assigned for the mission, resulting in a score between 1.0 and 3.0.

The classification criteria is as follows:

Score	Overall	Mission
	Classification
$0 > \text{score} \le 1.0$	Minimalist
$1.0 > \text{score} \le 2.0$	Moderate
$2.0 < \text{score} \le 3.0$	Maximalist

Each mission is assigned just one overall mission classification which does not change over time and is based on all the mandate tasks established during the mission's lifespan, taken in aggregate. Though the formula is designed such that one task from a higher category tips a mission into a higher category, there are some exceptions to the rule. Notably in the case of UNOSOM II (Somalia) and UNMIH (Haiti), the missions are classified as Moderate even though the missions contain maximalist tasks.
