VERTIGO

There are sailing yachts, and there is Vertigo. She scooped every superyacht prize going on her launch, thanks to a dream design collaboration between Philippe Briand, the genius behind the world's fastest luxury boats, and Christian Liaigre, who has designed homes for Karl Lagerfeld and Calvin Klein. Such high standards make Vertigo an icon.

A SAILING ICON

While Vertigo remains a true sailing yacht – able to streak across the sea at speed or wend gently with little breeze – you'll lack nothing in onboard comfort. Her achingly edgy New York loft-style interior is the kind of relaxed space you could spend all day in, not that you'll want to once you see how she unfolds into a floating watersports centre, with a variety of toys and towables and an 8m limo tender to take you ashore in style. Other amenities such as a sea-facing gym, 10-person jacuzzi and on-deck barbecue cement Vertigo's status as one of the ultimate sailing yachts in her class.

VERTIGO

Vertigo's urban-at-sea interior is given visual character by a palette of walnut, creams and blacks, which bring warmth to an otherwise minimalist layout. Large windows soak the spaces with light, while sightlines allow glimpses of the full length of the interior, making it feel even more voluminous.

URBAN AT SEA

Two salon spaces and a dining area with seating for up to 12 guests are separated by liquid crystal panels and doors that can be rendered transparent or opaque at the flick of a switch, allowing the spaces to be separate or open plan, like a New York Loft. On the lower deck, lazarettos unfold at the midship to reveal Vertigo's watersports centre and a well-equipped gym that opens out directly on to the water with a ladder down into the sea.

A cleverly-designed layout means that Vertigo has the storage capacity for two 6m tenders, an 8m Limo tender with a removable roof, two sailing dinghies and a host of other fun water toys for all the family.

TOP TIER COLLECTION

With everything from seabobs to trampolines, dive equipment and kayaks on board, Vertigo's collection far surpasses that of other sailing yachts.

A large sailboat with two smaller dinghies on the water under a cloudy sky. The sailboat is a ketch with two masts. The dinghies are small, open boats with sails. The water is dark blue with whitecaps. The sky is overcast with grey clouds.
