Our Friends Brooke Savona & Carlo

WESTCHESTER, NEW YORK

We spent a quiet morning with Brooke Savona and Carlo, and asked her to bring the pieces she reaches for most: the Leonora Day Tote, roomy enough for a life that moves between the stable, the studio, and the city, and the Pénélope Pouch tucked inside, keeping the small things close.

PENELOPE POUCH IN TOMATO

Her path ran through some of fashion's most storied houses where she learned that clothing is never just clothing. It's storytelling. It's feeling. It's the quiet power of a beautiful thing, made well.

Today she pours that same devotion into Flora Vintage, her curation of vintage collections and embroidered French workwear, sourced and styled between New England and New York. She's built a life around the belief that beauty and craft are worth honoring, worth slowing down for.

LEONORA DAY IN SADDLE

That belief lives in her barn, too.
Two years ago, Brooke brought Carlo home from a tough situation in Ocala, Florida. He was nearly twenty, and he needed someone.
She became that someone. What's grown between them since is the kind of trust that can't be rushed, only earned, one quiet morning at a time.

PENELOPE POUCH IN HAVANA

She lives the way we try to design:
unhurried, devoted, quietly beautiful.
