

Urbanek – Family Know-How Trusted by Partners Worldwide

In the global food industry, trust is earned over time. For more than 40 years, Urbanek has been strengthening its position as a specialist in vegetable processing, combining family values, expert know-how, and modern production technologies.

At SIAL, the company presents itself as a reliable partner for the retail, HoReCa, and B2B sectors, offering a diverse portfolio of premium-quality processed vegetables in sustainable packaging solutions, including glass jars, cans, and 100% recyclable plastic cups.

For over four decades, Urbanek has remained a family-owned business managed by successive generations of the Urbanek family. Every product proudly bears the family name—a symbol of accountability, quality, and the personal commitment of the owners to everything that reaches the market. The company's foundation is built on generations of expertise in vegetables, from cultivation and selection to processing methods that preserve their authentic taste and exceptional quality.

Today, Urbanek products are available in 24 markets across four continents, with more than 10 million units delivered annually. Export growth is supported by a state-of-the-art production facility covering over 21,000 m², partnerships with more than 200 associated farms, and an annual processing capacity exceeding 26,500 tonnes of vegetables. Seven automated production lines ensure consistent quality, operational flexibility, and reliable execution of international projects.

Urbanek delivers far more than products. The company continuously monitors market trends, develops tailor-made solutions for customers, launches around 40 new products every year, and provides packaging designed for long-distance international transport. Every stage of production—from supplier audits and raw material selection to the finished product—is subject to rigorous quality control, supported by internationally recognized certifications including IFS Food.

Urbanek is looking to establish long-term partnerships with distributors and retail chains that value quality, reliability, and mutual trust. More than 40 years of experience, unrivalled expertise in vegetables, and the family name proudly displayed on every label are the foundations that continue to strengthen the Urbanek brand in international markets.
