

HOUR RHO TWIN WALL LIGHT

The Nikau Palm - Rhopalostylis Sapida sprouts singular female flowers, while the male flowers appear in pairs. The design of this wall light playfully appropriates the species with its single and twin iterations. Bec is drawn to these subliminal stories when researching a body of work, which in turn inform honest design decisions. The lamp champions the beauty of the natural world with luxe lathe-turned timber, hand-finished metal and hand-dyed raw silk diffusers in earthy hues of dusk, dawn and rise.

ASSEMBLY INSTRUCTIONS

Lighting must be installed by a qualified electrician.

After unpacking the wall light, fit the wall mount to the wall. Screws are not provided.

Connect wiring as required, then fit the rose to the wall mount using the provided screws.

Fit the two light bulbs.

Turn each shade clockwise onto the threaded fittings.

Keep turning until the shades are snug against the diffusers and can no longer be twisted. Be careful not to over-tighten, as this could damage the light fitting.
