

MOTORIDE ADVENTURES

THE COASTAL TRAIL

Coastal areas are commonly described as the interface or transition areas between land and sea, comprising large inland lakes. Coastal areas are diverse in function and form, dynamic and do not lend themselves well to definition by strict spatial boundaries.

Day 5 : Ganpatipule to Panaji (260kms)

Today is a good day ;)

We throttle ourselves all the way to the party capital of India 'GOA'. We will be entering goa through the southern part and settle ourselves at Panaji the capital of Goa. Panaji, also known as Panjim, is the state capital of Goa, in southwest India. Located on the banks of the Mandovi River, the city has cobblestone streets lined with colorful villas and buildings from the Portuguese colonial era. Palm-fringed Miramar Beach sits at the confluence of the river and the Arabian Sea. Set on a hill overlooking the city is the baroque Our Lady of Immaculate Conception Church, built in 1619.

We enjoy some goan delicacies, walk around the beach and rest ourselves for the day.
