Where History Feels Like Home

Nestled along Kentucky's iconic Bourbon Trail, The Aldenberg Hotel was designed as a place where history, character, and hospitality come together. The interiors draw inspiration from the building's past and the surrounding region, creating a space that feels warm, storied, and intentionally lived in, like a gracious Southern home passed down through generations.

"We wanted it to feel very Kentucky and old world, like stepping back in time. Luxurious, but warm and full of character."
