Upcoming Speakers – January 3rd

Juan Hovey, who makes infill planes under his craftsman name Juan Vergara. Juan is a retired newspaperman, turned self-taught woodworker, who saw a magazine piece on making infill planes last spring and decided to test his skills. He bought a kit on e-Bay and, thinking that he could do better, put that one on the scrap heap and made two others from scratch. They cut some pretty fine shavings, he says, and that hooked him. He has made eight more since then, one after the other, refining his design and technique and experimenting with different woods for the infill. It takes work and planning to make an infill plane from scratch, he says, but if you pay attention at half a dozen key points in the process, you can end up with a plane at least the equal of, if not better than, anything you can buy on the market. Juan is a former member of the San Fernando Valley Woodworkers Club now living in Santa Maria on the central coast of California.

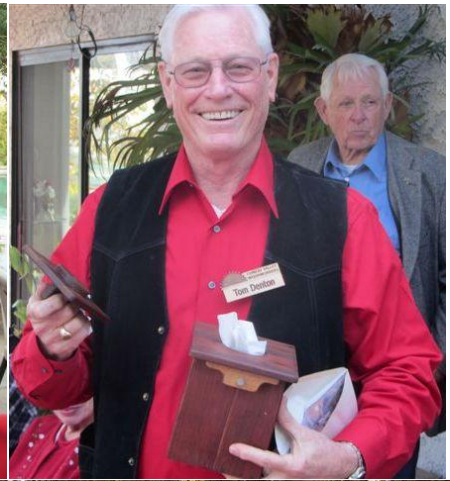

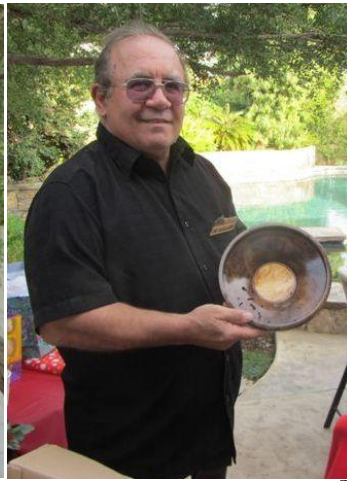

Thank You!!!

Christmas Party

The CVWA would like to thank Dave & Vicki Hutter for opening their home, again, to the club for the annual holiday party. Thank YOU both for your outpouring of hospitality.

Along with great food and camaraderie, there was the Gift Exchange

December Meeting – Toy for Needy Children

Again, the club has done an outstanding job of stepping up and making toys in our annual toy drive. Corina Lozano and Maria Rangel from the Ventura County Sheriffs Department were there to accept the toys. The Dep't distributed them on December 22nd to needy children around Eastern Ventura County.

Thanks Guys! Again some outstanding work.

Help Wanted – Something to consider... Positions

The success of any club is up to the membership and what they put into it. Your effort is what keeps the club going and makes it enjoyable. We have had outstanding support in the past and we are looking toward the future for more of the same. It is the membership that makes this a great club, and getting to know a few of these like-minded woodworkers a little better. Keep in mind, there will be some positions open, so please give it your consideration, as we look forward to another successful year at CVWA.

Don't be shy and Thank you!!!
