

It Takes Two to Talk: The Hanen Program

It Takes Two to Talk is a program for parents of children who have language delays.

It Takes Two to Talk recognizes:

- The importance of involving parents in their child's early language intervention
- The need to help children and families as early as possible in a child's life

This popular program was developed by The Hanen Centre and is recognized around the world for its research into how parents communicate with their children and how the communication skills of children with language delays can improve with their parents help.

It Takes Two to Talk is led by a Hanen certified speech-language pathologist who has received specialized training through The Hanen Centre.

The program teaches parents practical ways to help their child learn language during every day routines and activities. Parents will learn to let their child lead, giving them more insight into how a child expresses his or her needs, feelings and interests. Both parents and children will learn how to add words to interactions to help the child express himself and learn about the world.
