

Sibin Nair M.D., Family Medicine

Medical School:	Saint James School of Medicine, Anguilla
Higher education:	University of Texas at Austin – Human Biology in Genetics and Biotechnology
Hometown:	Sugar Land, Texas
Medical practice interests:	Attaining the ability to provide primary care to people in need in an inpatient, outpatient, and emergency setting. This also includes participating in preventive medicine by volunteering and providing awareness in the community.
Recreational activities/hobbies:	I enjoy team-based activities, working out, basketball, ping-pong, watch parties, and group hangouts.
Other:	As someone who is ethnically Indian, but having spent my adolescence in Dubai, Qatar, and then the rest of my life in southern America, I appreciate all opportunities, resources, and cultures our country has to offer, and I firmly believe in the collective good in people to make positive changes in our community. I also appreciate warm weather, BBQ, football Sundays, and The Office.
