Yesterday, advanced genetic testing gave her the confidence to start a family

Caitlin's family had a history of cancer. So when she was ready to have kids of her own, her obstetrician recommended genetic testing. At the White Plains Hospital Center for Cancer Care she found an experienced genetic counselor, Nicole Boxer, and a program designed around prevention and treatment, supported by all the cancer-fighting resources of Montefiore. Nicole guided her through difficult decisions and a life-changing surgery. Today, Caitlin can focus less on her cancer risks and more on her life as a new mom.
