DREAMING ONWARD.

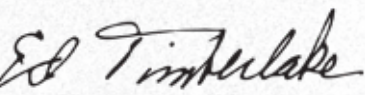

Arts For Every Life® had a lifetime of a year. In broader strokes and bolder choices, we moved our vision forward by fulfilling long-term goals, while committing all-in to big ideas that sparked our spirit.

In 2023/24, we expanded our offerings, and with them, our understanding of all that the arts center can be. From the opening of Judson’s Live, our most intimate new music room, to the debut of The Residency Festival, a week-long celebration of outstanding musical collaboration, it was a year of reaching new audiences in meaningful new ways.

We welcomed over 720,500 guests with 700 performances, treated a record number of community giveback guests and hosted enough private event rentals for nearly every day of the year. We solidified our five-year strategic plan, and together, continued to create an inspirational place where people love to be.

The world took notice. Steinmetz Hall was honored as one of the 11 most beautiful theaters in the world by Architectural Digest, and DownBeat named Judson’s Live one of the greatest jazz venues anywhere.

Today, after 10 years of learning, growing and daring to do more, we’re embracing all-new aspects of what it means to be a leading performing arts center. It’s a thrilling and ever-evolving dream...All the best ones are.

Judson's LIVE

OPENING OUR NEWEST VENUE

Inspired by the world's most legendary listening rooms, Judson's Live opened in February to the all-star sounds of Keb' Mo', Wynton Marsalis and more. Named for our dear friend and late Board member Judson Green, who with his wife Joyce made the project possible, this stunning space is where atmosphere, acoustics and great music collide.

PERFORMANCES

With a what-if mindset and reenergized commitment to lifting new voices, our shows took Arts For Every Life® to the next level, and proved just how rewarding creative risks can be. We brought life to art with programming that stepped away from the status quo – and outside our own four walls – presenting Andrea Bocelli at the Kia Center. Dance parties shook-up the schedule. Phenomenal jazz artists brought Judson’s Live to its feet. Celebrated comedians kept Orlando laughing, and multicultural performances brought the community closer. With so many ways to connect audiences with the arts, this year’s mix was every kind of inspiring.

RESIDENCY

FESTIVAL

Steinmetz Hall was made for these moments. For six incredible nights, creative giants joined forces at our first-ever Residency Festival, where audiences got to experience the artists they love in a breathtaking new way – performing live with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra.

From Diana Ross to Harry Connick Jr., Beck to The Birmingham Royal Ballet, as well as a double Broadway billing with Sutton Foster and Brian Stokes Mitchell, each night offered a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

Meanwhile, throughout the week, RPO musicians visited 520 students at six different schools, and workshopped with 100 young musicians from the Florida Youth Symphony Orchestra. Note for note, measure for measure, it was one of our most daring and dynamic ventures yet.

EDUCATION

Teaching the steps is one thing. Growing great artists is another. In the AdventHealth School of the Arts, the next generation of talent found a nurturing environment to learn and create at the highest level. From producing and presenting the sold-out Applause Awards, to helping under-resourced elementary schools build sustainable musical theater programs, our educational initiatives helped develop the whole person – mind, body and imagination. Field trips, residencies, masterclasses and summer camps left students of all ages with lifetime memories.

TITLE I SCHOOLS PARTICIPATED WITH A TOTAL OF 1,200 ACTIVE STUDENTS

Giving under-resourced elementary schools the tools, know-how and connections to build their own sustainable musical theater programs, Disney Musicals in Schools showed more students and teachers the possibilities of pursuing the performing arts. The program was capped by a 30-minute Disney Kids musical at each school and a Student Share Celebration in Walt Disney Theater at Dr. Phillips Center, where schools performed one number from their show on our professional Broadway stage. This year, six schools graduated from the program, which will in turn engage 400 kids annually.

COMMUNITY GIVING

Our purpose. Our passion. Community givebacks helped us share meaningful performing arts experiences with members of the community who may otherwise have limited access to them. This year, the arts center came alive with our highest number of community giveback guests to date – a group that included first responders, veterans and public school teachers, as well as kids and families served by our community partners. Whether it was the chance to see a Broadway season mega-hit like Les Misérables or a childhood favorite like Blippi, these moments of creative discovery and connection helped put the arts where they belong – at the heart of our community.

ARTS & WELLNESS

We believe it because we’ve seen it: The arts make lives better. This year, we doubled-down on our commitment to outreach and accessibility with an eye toward setting the standard of whole-human care. Through our Arts & Wellness program, we reinforced an approach to arts integration that brings joy, support and measurable purpose to people’s lives. Through the healing power of music and the mind-body connection of dance, these initiatives are just the first step toward a new meaning of well-being.

3 MEANINGFUL INITIATIVES

STROKESTRA®

Developed by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, this pioneering program brought together patients, clinicians and professional musicians to play a vital part in our Residency Festival. STROKESTRA supports stroke survivors' rehabilitation through group creative music-making, using a range of specially adapted techniques to address the complex needs of stroke survivors and their care-givers.

SUPPORTED BY

PILOBOLUS @ PLAY

In this free, week-long residency, participants worked closely with Pilobolus company members to create an original dance piece. The program brought together residents of Orlando Lutheran Towers, a senior living community, with local 8th through 12th grade dancers, as well as disabled and special needs students from Chance 2 Dance, to perform in a showcase on the stage of Alexis & Jim Pugh Theater.

SUPPORTED BY  KATHIE & BILL HOHNS

THE SECOND CITY RESIDENCY

During its annual residency, Chicago's legendary sketch and improv comedy theater, The Second City, hosted a workshop with OCA, an organization serving Central Florida children and adults with autism and other special needs. "Improv for Students on the Autism Spectrum" used improvisational games to teach valuable skills like team-building, accessing emotions, storytelling and processing social cues. The troupe also incorporated a sensory-friendly show into its weekend performances.

THANK YOU TO OUR DONORS

You had to be there...That's what people say when they're wrapping up a really great story. Like when a new dream took the stage and passion turned into a purpose. Thanks to you, this was one of those "you had to be there" years. And with your incredible generosity and support – you absolutely were.
