Have you noticed that people don't ask for your business card much anymore? They ask if you are on LinkedIn instead. Why? Because that's where serious-minded career professionals. Don't miss out on a great opportunity to elevate your professional brand in the world of online networking.

Here are 8 top reasons why you need to add LinkedIn to your Career Branding Strategy

1. It's your professional bio, career track record, and online résumé all wrapped up in one.
2. Opportunities come to you. Recruiters love looking for passive job seekers on LinkedIn.
3. Connect with those in your industry and network with people all around the world.
4. Write articles to showcase your expertise and become a thought leader in your field.
5. Grow your network by commenting on articles to showcase your expertise and perspective.
6. When someone "googles" your name, your LinkedIn profile will come up first. Don't get caught with an undone profile.
7. It's a place to collect endorsements and recommendations to build your credibility.
8. After reviewing your résumé, recruiters use LinkedIn to research you before calling you.

In essence, LinkedIn has many benefits and the eight above are just the crux of what it can offer. Building an awesome profile will pay great dividends now, and in the future. Let's work together to transform your LinkedIn profile into a powerful career branding tool.
