Section A

Question 1. Read the passage given below carefully and answer the questions that follow: Globalisation as a concept fundamentally deals with flows. These flows could be of various kinds – ideas moving from one part of the world to another, capital shunted between two or more places, commodities being traded across borders and people moving in search of better livelihoods to different parts of the world. The crucial element is the ‘worldwide interconnectedness’ that is created and sustained as a consequence of these constant flows.

(1)

'Worldwide interconnectedness' is also known as ____.

- (a) Globalisation
- (b) Liberalisation
- (c) Socialisation
- (d) Privatisation

[1 Marks]

Answer: 'Worldwide interconnectedness' is also known as Globalisation. This term captures the essence of the interconnectedness created through the flow of ideas, capital, commodities, and people, which is the fundamental basis of global interactions.

Key Points: Worldwide interconnectedness-globalisation-flows of ideas, capital, commodities, and people

Dimensions of globalisation are __.

- (a) political, social and spiritual
- (b) social, economic and geographical
- (c) political, economic and environmental
- (d) political, social and economic

[1 Marks]

Answer: The dimensions of globalisation include political, social, and economic aspects. This means that globalisation affects not only economic scenarios but also the political structures and social relationships within and between countries. As stated in the passage, globalisation creates 'worldwide interconnectedness' which highlights how these dimensions interact and influence each other. Therefore, the correct choice is (d) political, social and economic.

Key Points: globalisation involves political, social and economic dimensions; impacts various societies unevenly; includes flows of ideas, capital, commodities and people

Which among the following increases economic activities?

- (a) Decline in employment
- (b) Increase in the index of poverty
- (c) Strong global economic growth
- (d) Great decline in the trade

[1 Marks]

Answer: The correct answer is (c) Strong global economic growth. Economic activities typically increase when there is a strong global economic growth because it leads to more investment, increased trade, and a broader flow of resources and commodities across borders. In contrast, a decline in employment and an increase in poverty would negatively impact economic activities, while a great decline in trade would signify reduced economic engagement between countries.

Key Points: Strong global economic growth leads to increased investment-Enhanced trade among nations-Better job opportunities and economic stability

Which one of the following is an impact of globalisation ?

- (a) The power of the states has increased.
- (b) New trade barriers have been imposed.
- (c) Choice of the customer has increased.
- (d) It has given a boost to local industries.

[1 Marks]

Answer: The most significant impact of globalisation is that it has increased the choice of the customer. As global markets have opened up and trade barriers have been reduced, consumers now have access to a wider array of products from different countries, leading to more competition and greater variety. This expansion of choices reflects the interconnectedness that globalisation fosters, allowing ideas, capital, and commodities to flow more freely across borders. Therefore, option (c) is the correct answer.

Key Points: Increased choice for customers–reduced trade barriers–worldwide interconnectedness

Question 21. Analyse India's policy of Non-alignment.

[2 Marks]

Answer: India's policy of non-alignment emerged as a vital aspect of its foreign relations during the Cold War. Advocated by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, the policy aimed to maintain India's sovereignty, territorial integrity, and promote economic development without aligning with either the US or the USSR. India's role in protesting Britain's attack on Egypt in 1956 exemplified its commitment to this policy. However, the policy faced challenges, as seen with Pakistan aligning with US-led military alliances, creating tensions in Indo-US relations. Despite these challenges, India's approach encouraged other developing nations to consider a neutral stance in international affairs. Non-alignment helped India to assert its independent foreign policy, focusing on peace, unity, and cooperation among nations, distinguishing itself from the military blocs formed during the Cold War.

For instance, India's approach to diversity and regional aspirations demonstrates how democratic citizenship evolves as societies change. By negotiating the demands of marginalized groups, South Asia highlights the importance of inclusive politics. [2 Marks]

Answer: India did not sign the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) and the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty (CTBT) primarily because these treaties were perceived as discriminatory. Firstly, India viewed the NPT as legitimizing the nuclear monopoly of the five recognized nuclear-armed states, which undermined the security of non-nuclear states like India. Secondly, India's commitment to maintaining credible minimum nuclear deterrence made it resistant to binding agreements that could hinder its defense capabilities. The rejection of these treaties reflects India's stance for equal treatment in international security discussions.

Coming to power in 1967 and again in 1977, the Akali Dal formed coalition governments despite facing challenges, such as mid-term dismissals by the Central government and a lack of support among Hindus. The party was instrumental in advocating for a Punjabi-speaking state and was proactive in addressing Sikh identity and autonomy issues, particularly highlighted by the movement for water distribution in 1980. However, internal divisions within the Sikh community, alongside a stronger Dalit support base for the Congress, complicated the Akalis' political standing. As a party representing Sikh interests, it continually navigated complex dynamics, balancing coalition politics and diverse community concerns.

Patel believed in the necessity of a united India and was instrumental in framing the government's policies against fragmentation into small states. His strategic approach included sending letters to the princes, urging them to accede to India voluntarily, which helped to ensure a smoother transition. Through compelling arguments and assurances of political and administrative stability, he successfully integrated most princely states, including Hyderabad, Junagadh, and Kashmir. Question 28.

"The 'Arab Spring' was the people's revolution against injustice." Support the statement with any two examples.

[4 Marks]

Answer: The 'Arab Spring' epitomized the struggle against oppression and authoritarian rule in the Arab world. One significant example is the uprising in Tunisia, which began in December 2010 when Mohamed Bouazizi, a street vendor, self-immolated in protest against police harassment and corruption. His act ignited widespread protests leading to the ousting of President Zine El Abidine Ben Ali, marking the first success of the Arab Spring. Another example is the Egyptian uprising in 2011, where massive protests in Tahrir Square galvanized citizens against President Hosni Mubarak's 30-year regime characterized by human rights abuses and socio-economic inequality. The mobilization of diverse groups, including youth and civil society organizations, illustrated a collective desire for democratic reforms and justice. Both examples reflect the universal demand for dignity and accountability, illustrating the Arab Spring as a people-driven revolution against injustice.

Question 29.

Highlight any two reasons for the split in the Congress Party in 1969.

[4 Marks]

Answer: The split in the Congress Party in 1969 can be attributed to ideological differences and internal power struggles. Firstly, Indira Gandhi's vision for the party leaned towards a more socialist perspective, emphasizing reforms that would benefit the marginalized and enhance state control over key industries. This clashed with the older Congress leaders, referred to as the 'syndicate,' who favored a more moderate and traditional approach to governance. Secondly, there was an ongoing struggle for power within the party, as Indira sought greater autonomy and control over decision-making processes, which created friction among the traditional leadership. The divide ultimately led to the emergence of two factions: the Congress (Organisation) and the Congress (Requisitionists), marking a significant turning point in the party's history.

Section F

Question 30. Explain the process of evolution of the European Union from an economic union to an increasingly political one.

[6 Marks]

Answer: The evolution of the European Union (EU) from an economic union to a political entity is a multi-faceted process that has unfolded since the mid-20th century. Initially established as the European Economic Community (EEC) in 1957, the primary aim was to foster economic cooperation among member states. Over time, this economic integration laid the groundwork for deeper political unity. The Treaty of Maastricht in 1992 was a pivotal moment as it formally established the EU, expanding its role beyond just economic matters. The EU began to develop a common foreign and security policy and gained attributes of a nation-state, including a flag, anthem, and currency. The introduction of the euro in 2002 marked a significant step towards political integration. Furthermore, the formation of the European Parliament provided a platform for democratic governance, thus enhancing the EU's political dimension. The collapse of the Soviet bloc accelerated this process, leading to the inclusion of Eastern European countries and the promotion of shared policies and values. Hence, the EU today operates not just as an economic entity but as a cohesive political body with aspirations for a unified stance on global issues.

Question 31. Explain any three factors that led India to emerge as a new Centre of Power.

[6 Marks]

Answer: India's emergence as a new Centre of Power can be attributed to several significant factors. First, the creation of nuclear weapons established India as a formidable force in South Asia, enhancing its security and international standing. Second, the emergence of Communist China posed a strategic challenge, prompting India to consolidate its power and adopt a more assertive foreign policy in regional affairs. Third, the process of decolonization allowed India to take a leadership role among newly independent nations, fostering solidarity and cooperation with countries striving for sovereignty. These factors collectively contributed to positioning India as a key player in the global arena.

Question 32. Explain terrorism as a new source of threat to the security with the help of any two examples.

[6 Marks]

Answer: Terrorism has emerged as a significant threat to national and global security, characterized by the deliberate targeting of civilians to instill fear and achieve political objectives. A notable example is the September 11, 2001 attacks by Al-Qaeda, which involved hijacking airplanes to crash into the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, resulting in thousands of casualties and profound global implications for security policies. Another example is the Mumbai attacks in 2008, where terrorists targeted multiple civilian locations, including hotels and train stations, highlighting the vulnerability of urban centers to such threats. These events underscore terrorism's capability to transcend borders, disrupt societal harmony, and provoke widespread fear, necessitating a reevaluation of conventional security measures to address this pervasive issue.

Question 33. Explain any four criteria proposed for new permanent and non-permanent members of the UN Security Council.

[6 Marks]

Answer: The criteria proposed for new permanent and non-permanent members of the UN Security Council revolve around representation, contribution to global peace, and democratic principles. Firstly, it is suggested that new members should represent various regions, ensuring geographical diversity, particularly including developing nations. Secondly, a member's contribution to international peace and security is crucial; countries with active roles in peacekeeping missions should be considered. Thirdly, the ability to support the UN's goals is emphasized, necessitating a commitment to multilateralism. Lastly, discussions around abolishing or limiting veto powers also influence membership criteria, with the belief that the veto conflicts with principles of democracy and sovereign equality. These considerations aim to make the Security Council more reflective of the contemporary global landscape and to secure broader international support for its decisions. Addressing these criteria could enhance the Council's legitimacy and effectiveness, fostering stronger cooperation among member nations.

Question 34. Why is the emergency imposed in 1975 considered the most controversial episode in Indian politics? Highlight any three reasons.

[6 Marks]

Answer: The Emergency imposed in 1975 is often viewed as a controversial episode in Indian politics due to several compelling reasons. Firstly, it curtailed fundamental rights and led to widespread repression of civil liberties. Media censorship and the arrest of political opponents silenced dissent, raising concerns about authoritarianism. Secondly, the justification for the Emergency was questioned; while it was claimed to address internal threats, many believe it was primarily enacted to consolidate power. Thirdly, the political fallout was significant. The Congress party's loss in the 1977 elections marked a dramatic shift in Indian democracy, as the public's rejection reflected discontent with the authoritarian measures. This episode significantly transformed party politics and instilled a lasting lesson regarding the protection of democratic institutions in India.

Question 35. Highlight any three factors which were responsible for the downfall of the Congress Party in the 1977 elections.

[6 Marks]

Answer: The downfall of the Congress Party in the 1977 elections can be attributed to several key factors. Firstly, the imposition of the Emergency from 1975 to 1977 led to widespread discontent among the public, who felt their democratic rights were curtailed, resulting in a backlash against Congress. Secondly, the rise of the Janata Party, which united various opposition groups under the 'non-Congressism' umbrella, capitalized on the anti-Congress sentiment and managed to consolidate votes, ensuring a broad spectrum of support. Lastly, the Congress's failure to adequately address the demands of backward castes and its inability to project an inclusive image hurt its electoral prospects, as voters sought alternatives that resonated with their aspirations. These factors collectively contributed to the historic defeat of Congress.

Question 36. How are the three recommendations of the Mandal Commission an effort to solve the problems of the 'Other Backward Classes' (OBCs)? Analyse.

[6 Marks]

Answer: The Mandal Commission, chaired by Bindeshwari Prasad Mandal, aimed to address the socio-economic challenges faced by the Other Backward Classes (OBCs) in India. Its three key recommendations prominently served this purpose. First, the Commission suggested reserving 27% of government jobs and educational institution seats for the OBCs, providing them better access to opportunities that were historically denied. Second, it recommended land reforms to secure economic stability for OBC families, enhancing their livelihoods. Third, the focus on social awareness spurred political mobilization within OBC communities, fostering a collective identity and advocacy for their rights. The implementation of these recommendations initiated a national debate, raising awareness and empowering the OBC population to assert their place in society, ultimately leading to a more equitable social structure.

Question 37. Analyse any three factors that led to the rise of 'Other Backward Classes' (OBCs) in Indian Politics?

[6 Marks]

Answer: The rise of Other Backward Classes (OBCs) in Indian politics can be attributed to several interrelated factors. Firstly, the Mandal Commission's recommendations in 1980 played a pivotal role by advocating for reservation of seats in educational institutions and government jobs for OBCs. This formal recognition aimed at uplifting the educational and social status of these communities spurred political mobilization. Secondly, the establishment of various regional political parties focused on the interests of OBCs brought representation to these communities, emphasizing their political significance. Parties such as the Janata Dal in the 1980s emerged, advocating for OBC rights. Thirdly, the intense national debate surrounding reservation policies heightened awareness among OBC populations about their rights and identity, galvanizing them to demand political power and influencing electoral strategies of mainstream parties to cater to this substantial segment of society. This convergence of factors catalyzed the emergence of OBCs as a formidable political force in contemporary Indian politics.
